MAY D-OGS MEETING NEWS

The May 3 meeting will be held at 7:00pm at the OWASA Community Meeting Room at 440 Jones Ferry Road, Carrboro NC. It will be presented by D-OGS President Ginger Smith, The program will be: "USING ESTATE AND DEED RECORDS TO CONSTRUCT FAMILIES IN EARLY 19TH CENTURY NORTH CAROLINA"

Description: Land Grants and Deeds are a very valuable resource to have in your research toolbox. They allow you to tract the transfer of land from one person or persons to another. They can tell you where your ancestors lived and who their neighbors were, which may be helpful when tracing persons with the same name. If you are lucky, familial relationships will be identified in many deeds as well. My lecture "Using estate and deed records to Construct Families in early 19th century North Carolina" will show you how a family unit was constructed out of deed and land grant records.

Biography: Ginger R. Smith has been researching in North Carolina for the past 15 years. She has a Bachelor's degree in Biology and a Master's degree in Library and Information Science. She is a professional genealogist specializing in North Carolina research and DNA consultation services. She loves to help adoptees utilize their DNA results to find their birth families and she enjoys speaking at genealogical libraries and societies on DNA and research topics.

MEMBER CONTACT UPDATES

Please let us know if you change your email address, mailing address or phone number. It is very frustrating for your officers to have mail or mail "bounce" because of a bad email address or deal with returned mail of any sort.

You can update the info yourself on the D-OGS website. After you login, look under the "Members – Profile" section and select the "contact info" tab. Just click the "pencil" button to get into edit mode. Make your correction and be sure to hit the "save" button when done.

Also, please make sure that D-OGS is one of your accepted receivers and that you are not blocking receipts of D-OGS email with a SPAM filter. If you keep your contact info current, we will all be happier.

NORTH CAROLINA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY WEBINAR

NCGS presents: Anita Finger-Smith "Cherokee Genealogy: The Basics". The webinar will be presented on 19 May 2017 at 3:00 PM DST

The free viewing period of the recorded webinar will be 2-4 June 2017 About the Webinar: Many people from North Carolina with traditions of Native American ancestry often assume the ancestry was Cherokee. Identifying the tribal communities residing in North Carolina, their geographic location, and their recognition status will help in channeling possible tribal affiliations. If the indicators lean toward Cherokee ancestry, the webinar will demonstrate how Cherokee genealogical research can separate fact from fiction. Also, the webinar will introduce you to basic tribal enrollment criteria, blood quantum requirements, and the documentary evidence available to conduct Cherokee genealogical research.

EARLY AMERICAN IMMIGRANT LOOKING FOR PARENTS - VICK FAMILY ANNUAL MEETING & REUNION

Saratoga Springs, UT - My name is Joseph Vick and over 350 years have passed since I last knew where my parents lived in Europe. I was born around 1640 and immigrated to America in the midto-late 1660s. On 20 December, 1673 I was deeded 50 acres by Hodges Council where I cultivated the rich soil at the Beaver Dam Swamp and grew my small parcel of land to build a plantation in Virginia. I died in Isle of Wight County, Virginia around 1700.

Over the years my descendants have organized to find my roots:

- 1972 Sam Vick of Mississippi hosted a family gathering of 170 of my descendants
- 1984 Mary Jo McCrary and James M. Perrin (descendants of Reverend Newit Vick, founder of Vicksburg, Mississippi) organized the Joseph Vick Family of America
- 1990 Gailen Vick and O. Richard Wright formally incorporated JVFOA
- 2004 published first 5 generations Joseph Vick of Lower Parish, Isle of Wight County, Virginia co-authored by John Beatty, Di Ann Vick & published by James Davis

Today my progeny includes the governor of Alabama, a past president of the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund, ministers of most religious faiths and men & women that served in the armed forces in every war since I came to America. In fact I have over 20,000 descendants in America today.

In 2006 JVFOA started a DNA project: so far they have tested 50 of my posterity. They've helped find adoptees' parents and corrected errors that had been previously published. They've reached out and tested other Vick's around the world. Recently, my descendants found a "new" cousin through their Vick DNA project. While this new cousin does not have the Vick surname, his ancestor was born in Gloucestershire, England, and he shares my father's paternal line. This important new finding will be highlighted at the JVFOA annual meeting in Suffolk, Virginia this coming June on 23-25th. The community and my descendants will be educated on family genealogy, and DNA test results at the 2017 Annual Meeting & Reunion.

For more information visit www.jvfoa.com or call Gailen Vick at 510-364-7631 or Robin Yaklin at 214-783-2817.

HOW TO FIND SOMEONE WHO HAS THE BOOK YOU SEEK

Perhaps the full title of this article should be How to Find Someone Who Has the Book You Seek and Also Let Everyone Else Know About the Books You Own and Also Catalog Your Own Personal Library with Minimal Effort.

You can find dozens of programs that will help you catalog your personal book collection. Some of these will create a list that you can print or store on your own computer or store on your smartphone or even upload to the World Wide Web. Some products also keep track of the books you want to read (sometimes called a wish list) and will also keep track of books you have loaned out to others, including the date loaned. Some cataloging products will also track other media, such as CD and DVD disks, video games, and more. However, one online service does all that and lots more. You can access your information from a web browser on a desktop computer, a laptop computer, or even from a smartphone. The last feature is very useful when you are at a bookstore or flea market or genealogy conference and are wondering, "Do I already have that book?" Best of all, you can share your catalog with others and also see what others have in their collections. The service is available either free of charge or for very low fees.

The product I use is primarily a service for cataloging books, but it can also be used to catalog and track other media, including music and videos. You can sort, share, explore, import, and export data pertaining to your personal or even institutional library. You can track who has borrowed which book. You can see other users who have similar libraries to yours and browse books they have that you might be interested in. Perhaps best of all, you can find reviews of books on the system.

Of course, you can search your inventory at any time, whether seated at your desktop computer at home or by using your handheld cell phone when at a book fair or even at a garage sale.

With most library card catalog software, entering information about all the books you own can be tedious if you need to enter everything on the keyboard. Luckily, in today's "online, all the time" environment, manual data entry is no longer necessary. The owners of this online service will even sell you a $17 barcode scanner that plugs into your computer's USB port. (See https://www.librarything.com/more/store/cuecat.)

All newer books have a unique barcode printed in each although you probably won't find this in a genealogy book printed in the 1890s. Simply load the appropriate software in your Macintosh or Windows computer, open the book to view the appropriate page, and hold the barcode scanner a few inches away from the barcode. The complete information about the book, including title, author, publisher, date published, and more will automatically be entered into your personal list of books in inventory.

LibraryThing is sometimes called "the world's largest book club." It is an online service for storing and sharing book catalogs and various types of book metadata. It is used by individuals, authors, libraries and publishers. LibraryThing helps you create a library-quality catalog of books: books you own, books you've read, books you'd like to read, books you've lent out ... whatever grouping you'd like.

Tens of thousands of individuals and libraries catalog their books online with LibraryThing. As a result, they are all cataloging together. LibraryThing is much more than an online card catalog. While each entry includes the book title, author, publisher, date of publication, and other, traditional information, users are also encouraged to contribute tags, ratings, reviews for each book, and Common Knowledge (facts about a book or author, like character names and awards), as well as participate in member forums or join the Early Reviewers program. Everyone gets the benefit of everyone else's work. LibraryThing connects people based on the books they share.

LibraryThing's basic services are available free of charge, although payment of modest fees provides more services. You may enter up to 200 items for free, as many items as you like for $10 (per year) or $25 (life).

Searching for books is a fascinating experience. You may find others with interests similar to your own who live across town or across the globe. Searching is easy: enter some title words, the author, or an ISBN into the search box, and then click SEARCH.

Of course, you will want to add your books to the list for two purposes: (1.) this creates your own catalog that you can carry with you and search at any time and (2.) you can (optionally) make your collection visible to others.

The process for adding your books is simple and similar to the search method. If you have purchased the $17 barcode scanner, simply open the book cover and scan the barcode. However, if you do not yet have the barcode scanner, start entering a bit of information about the book, such as the ISBN number, some title words, or the author's name. As soon as LibraryThing receives enough information to match a list of books, the list is displayed to you. You can click on the appropriate entry on the list, and all the remaining information will be entered for you. LibraryThing obtains its book data from Amazon.com and from hundreds of libraries around the world, including the Library of Congress.

If you are the first person to enter information about a particular book, you will need to manually enter all the appropriate information. This probably won't happen on modern books since information about millions of books is already in LibraryThing's database. However, older genealogy books or any books privately printed with a limited number of copies produced might not be pre-loaded in the system.

The information already contained in LibraryThing's database is library-quality data about your books. Other library card catalog products may require you to manually enter every bit of information on the keyboard, a tedious process at best. In contrast, by entering a few letters of the book's title or by entering the ISBN number, LibraryThing quickly returns a detailed description of the book, as well as social information from other LibraryThing users. You simply click SAVE to enter all that data about the book you own. Each book entry on LibraryThing shows you which members have the book and what they think about it – tags, reviews, and even links to conversations about the book. With more than 2.000,000 users and 50 million books in the system, you undoubtedly will find others with similar interests.

Once you enter data about your books, you are in charge of your library. Your catalog shows all the books you've entered into your collections. You can look at your catalog and its collections in either a customizable list or cover view. You can search your books, sort your books, create new collections, edit book reviews, and more. You can also print a copy of your catalog, write reviews, and apply tags. You can write about yourself and your library, or you can keep all your information completely private. You can list your favorite authors, bookstores and libraries, leave comments for other members, and see the interesting data about your books.

One of the more popular services of LibraryThing is called Talk. It is a discussion forum that is organized into Groups. You can search and join groups that cover books or topics you're interested in, or you can make your own group (which can be public or private). You can read what others have to say and post messages. The Genealogy Group may be found at https://www.librarything.com/talk.

In short, if you own a lot of books, or if you love books, you need LibraryThing! You can learn a lot more about LibraryThing if you start at http://www.librarything.com/quickstart.php.

LibraryThing is a great service for individuals as well as for many libraries. For instance, does your local genealogy society have a library of a few hundred or even a few thousand books? If so, you may have found that card catalog software for libraries can be very expensive. Using LibraryThing's services may be an attractive alternative. It is not only cost-effective, but use of LibraryThing eliminates all the headaches involved with installing software, making backups, installing occasional software updates, making the information available online, and more.

If you own a smartphone, you might want to take advantage of Library Anywhere, a free app for Android or iPhones that takes any library catalog on LibraryThing and makes it mobile, instantly. Library Anywhere provides the following for you and your patrons:

- Search the catalog, place holds, see checked-out books, and more.
- Showcase hours, branches, and events with a customizable homepage.
- No installation process.
- Comes with an "accessible version" that provides a fully Section 508-compliant version of your existing catalog.
- LibraryThing for Libraries customers get integration of tags, reviews, recommendations, other editions.

Details about Library Anywhere may be found at http://www.libanywhere.com/.

I was pleased with the simplicity of LibraryThing. It is easy to input information about my books and also easy to find other books, both in libraries and in private collections. Its integration with Amazon.com, the Library of Congress, and hundreds of other libraries reduces the tedium of data entry to point where it is now easy to catalog my books.

If you haven't seen LibraryThing, do yourself a favor: check it out now at http://www.LibraryThing.com.

I bet you will be impressed.

GENEALOGY TIPS OF THE MONTH FROM MICHAEL JOHN NEILL

There Was No Jarvis

A relative insisted an ancestor had a son named Jarvis. There was only one document that provided any evidence that this Jarvis existed--there was no mention anywhere else. After locating the "Jarvis" document, it was determined that the researcher had misread "James" for "Jarvis."

It never hurts to take a look for yourself. That "extra child" may just be a transcription variation.

Named for a Dead Wife?

Names of children frequently come from family members. One additional place that people do not often think of is names of deceased spouses. While it might seem strange, your ancestor may have named his first daughter with wife number two after his deceased wife number one.

This usually doesn't happen if your ancestor was divorced from his first spouse.

Names that Appear from Nowhere

Those middle or first names of family members that appear out of the blue could be from relatives you do not yet know about, famous people, locations, or someone's maiden name.

And it is always possible your ancestor simply pulled the name out of thin air.

Are the Steps and Halfs Mixed Up?

Did that obituary confuse the half-siblings, step-siblings, and the full siblings? An estate settlement will be concerned about the accuracy of those relationships, an obituary, being a less formal document, may not be. Always consider the possibility that relationships in an obituary may not be entirely correct.

How Did They Meet?

While often we really do not know how our marrying ancestors met, it can sometimes be a helpful "brick wall breaking" exercise to think about possible ways they did meet? Were their parents neighbors? Did they meet at church? Did they meet at school? Did someone travel a distance for a temporary job? Was one of them in the military?

Even if you really have "no way of knowing," just thinking about possible scenarios may get the genealogical wheels turning in your head.

BOOKS OF POSSIBLE INTEREST

PUBLISH YOUR FAMILY HISTORY: A STEP-BY-STEP GUIDE TO WRITING THE STORIES OF YOUR ANCESTORS - The following book review was written by Bobbi King:

Publish Your Family History: A Step-by-Step Guide to Writing the Stories of Your Ancestors By Dina C. Carson. Iron Gate Publishing. 2015. 369 pages.

I'm not a good storyteller. I've ruined many a good yarn with a lot of pointless detail and too much talk.

I haven't a clue how to design a book cover except by stealing the ideas of others.

I have no idea how to put together a book except by reading the instructions written by Dina Carson.

Ms. Carson is a Colorado genealogist, gravestone photographer, writer, and publisher. Her books on self-publishing are so helpful, easy to read, full of direction and inspiration, I simply don't try to write a book without her references nearby.

- "Writing the Stories" is one of her several publications meant to help us get our family stories out of our computers and on to the printed page. This is a very helpful self-help guide segmented into five sections:
- "Getting Started" helps get you thinking about picking a project to write about, a general idea how publishing works, and the right tools for the right job, where she talks about which softwares are available for organizing notes, the different word processing programs, design and project layout programs, and programs for images capturing and editing.
- "Planning" discusses identifying your target market, conducting a research review, scanning and optical character recognition (a very nicely detailed and understandable explanation about scanning), developing a new research plan, how to overcome writer's block, and drafting a preliminary outline.
- "Writing" has chapters on becoming a storyteller (a very helpful chapter), creating your own style guide, writing a first draft, and editing your manuscript.
- "Production" includes chapters on creating page layout, typesetting the front pages, body of the book, and back matter, designing the cover, and preparing the final files.
- "Marketing" has chapters on creating a marketing plan, reaching your audience, generating publicity, and selling online.

Ms. Carson thinks of everything to get us going, and even thinks of a few things to help us wrap up a completed and polished project. And proudly present to our families.

CALENDAR OF UPCOMING EVENTS

MOOREFIELDS HISTORIC SITE LAST SUNDAY OPEN HOUSE - April 30 @ 1:00 pm - 5:00 pm - join us again on the last Sunday of each month (April through August) to see the historic house and grounds of Moorefields. Meet Board Members who will be available at the house to host brief tours, answer questions and direct you to points of interest- artistic, historical and horticultural. You can view artwork, sculpture and antiques; visit our old cemetery or walk down to the creek or in the shaded back yard. Or you can just sit a spell in a rocker on the 230 year old front porch and listen to the quiet.

A $5 donation to tour the site is suggested.

GRANVILLE COUNTY GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY - May 4th Program Featured Speakers: Charlie Bryan - "Finding Thomas Blount Littlejohn" - The program for the May 4, 2017 meeting of the Granville County Genealogical Society will be presented by Mr. Charlie Bryan on "Finding Thomas Blount Littlejohn." As the great-great-great grandson of Thomas Blount Littlejohn, Charlie has recently published a book about Thomas and his family. The book, entitled "Finding Thomas Blount Littlejohn", documents his search for the long lost Littlejohn family cemetery, and Thomas Littlejohn's role in the founding and development of Oxford. This is the first book to be written about the Littlejohns that, beyond just names and dates, chronicles this family's role in the early development of North Carolina.

Charlie Bryan grew up in Oxford. He and his wife Carol live in Raleigh, as does their daughter Jennifer, an executive with the State Employees Credit Union. Their son David is an administrator at Saint Bartholomew's Episcopal Church in Manhattan, and also a professional musician. After a twenty-four year career in state government, Charlie now enjoys doing genealogical research. His Scottish ancestors came to Granville County over 250 years ago.

Please join members of the Granville County Genealogical Society in attending this meeting, to be held at 6:30 P.M. on May 4, 2017 in the conference room at the Richard H. Thornton Library in Oxford, N.C. All GCGS meetings are open to the public, and visitors and guests are always cordially invited to attend.

CONSULAR RECORDS AT THE NATIONAL ARCHIVES - Friday, May 19 - 7:30 pm - Dunn Loring Volunteer Fire Station Hall, 2148 Gallows Road, Vienna, VA 22027

Presenter: Sharon Hodges

Lecture Description: Consular records hold numerous surprises for records created overseas. A few items are on ancestry.com, but there are many records with genealogical information "hiding" in the files. Note: Because this is such a large Record Group, examples of items that may be found will mainly be from Germany.

Sharon is a professional genealogist, teacher and lecturer, Sharon has been involved in genealogical research for over 25 years. Sharon is a graduate of the NGS American Genealogy: Home Study Course, and a past grader of two lessons, and of the National Institute for Genealogical Research. She has been a guest numerous times on Fairfax Cable Channel 10 program Tracing Your Family Roots. She also taught genealogy through Fairfax County Parks and Recreation and the Fairfax Adult Education program. In addition she has authored numerous articles for the National Genealogy Society Magazine, The Virginia Genealogical Society, the Mount Vernon Genealogical Society, and Fairfax Genealogical Society newsletters.

She has received a number of awards from the genealogical community, but is most proud of the Mount Vernon Genealogical Society's Lifetime Sustained Meritorious Service Award for long-time service to the Society and the Shirley Langdon Wilcox Award for Exemplary Volunteerism from National Genealogical Society which she received in 2014.

GUILFORD COUNTY GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY - Our new meeting location is at the Greensboro Public Library, 219 N. Church Street in downtown Greensboro, NC. Click here for a map. Downtown deck and on-street parking are free on the weekend. The parking deck arm will be up when you arrive for easy access. Do not park in the Greensboro Children's Museum lot.

Membership meetings are at 10:00 a.m. on the third Saturday of the month, January through May and September through November. From 9:00 a.m. until noon on meeting days, GCGS's genealogical exchange journal library is open for members to check out some other societies' journals. Regular meetings usually end about 11:30 a.m. Non-members are always welcome to attend these free programs.

20 May 2017 - Jimmy Campbell, will speak about "Observations on the North Carolina Militia and its impact on citizens from 1590-1870". He has been involved with the Revolutionary War Living History community since 1981 and is the past commander of The Guilford Militia. Now he is the NC Militia regimental blacksmith. He also is a blacksmith interpreter at the High Point

Museum. Retired from the machining industry, he is a Baptist minister and foundations teacher at a local Baptist church.

THE POST OFFICE AND ITS EFFECT ON AMERICAN SETTLEMENT - Saturday, May 20 - 10:00 am - Dunn Loring Volunteer Fire Station Hall, 2148 Gallows Road, Vienna, VA 22027

Presenter: Sharon Hodges

Lecture Description: For centuries, our universal mail system has strengthened the bonds of friendship, family, and community. Discover how the post office helped build communities and deliver the mail since the 1600s.

MOOREFIELD WILD BIRD WALK WITH HELEN KALEVAS - Please join us for an early morning Birding Walk on Saturday, May 20 at Moorefields. This fun hike of introductory Bird Identification for all ages will explore both woods and open fields, so bring binoculars and wear shoes appropriate to cover uneven terrain.

We will be guided by Helen Kalevas, who has a Master of Science Degree in Biology with emphasis on Avian Ecology. She has over 20 years of experience in university level teaching and research in ornithology and bird ecology, including bird diet and endangered species, from Arizona to North Carolina.

At the hike, a $5 donation is suggested.

GUILFORD COUNTY GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY – 20 May 2017 - Jimmy Campbell, will speak about "Observations on the North Carolina Militia and its impact on citizens from 1590-1870". He has been involved with the Revolutionary War Living History community since 1981 and is the past commander of The Guilford Militia. Now he is the NC Militia regimental blacksmith. He also is a blacksmith interpreter at the High Point Museum. Retired from the machining industry, he is a Baptist minister and foundations teacher at a local Baptist church.

WAKE COUNTY GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY - May 23, 2017 - 7:00 pm to 8:30 pm - Olivia Raney Local History Library, 4016 Carya Drive, Raleigh, NC 27610

Join us for our last meeting of the society year when Diane Richard gives us an encore presentation of one of her exciting NGS Conference talks!

If your family lived in the very center of a county in the center of the state and appears to have never moved, then, you might be in the enviable position of not needing to look any further than the records of that one county for your ancestors.

More often than not, whether you had a family living near a county border or at a state border, there is a good chance that they conducted their business or were involved in various matters (e.g., attending church, marrying, etc) in adjacent counties or even the next state. Families seemed to behave as if the "borders" didn't exist and it's important to recognize and appreciate that mentality and to make sure that you expand "where" you research, when you can't find them in the census, can't find marriages or burials, can't locate a deed or land grant, etc. It might be that all of these events within a 10 mile radius which just happens to encompass a different county and maybe state.

We'll talk about "why" someone might have records elsewhere and look at several examples of families, from around the country, whose records were found in more than one jurisdiction.

Diane L Richard is the Principal of Mosaic Research and Project Management (MosaicRPM), www.mosaicrpm.com. She has M.E. and M.B.A. degrees from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute (RPI). She has been doing genealogy research since 1987 and since 2004 professionally focused on the records of North Carolina, neighboring locales and migration paths to the Mississippi River. She has researched NC roots for the popular TV show Who Do You Think You Are? and appeared on the Bryan Cranston episode.

All WCGS meetings are free and open to the public. Bring a friend! Refreshments will be served during social time after the presentation.

BENNETT PLACE STATE HISTORIC SITE - Our Annual Memorial Day Military Timeline Event – May 27 & 28 - Following the Civil War a "Decoration Day" began in communities across America remembering soldiers who gave the ultimate sacrifice. Join military historians representing the American soldier of all time periods throughout our nation's history. This year marks the 100th anniversary of America's entrance into WWI and the 75th anniversary of WWII. There will be a ceremony to commemorate the sacrifice of all soldiers throughout our nation's history on Saturday the 27th at 3pm.

HUMOR

You know you are getting old when everything either dries up or leaks.
