The Daily Tar Heel

Volume 124, Issue 89 dailytarheel.com Monday, October 24, 2016

No. 13's legacy lives on in UNC's win

Bug Howard honors injured Mack Hollins

NORTH CAROLINA VIRGINIA

35 14

By Logan Ulrich Senior Writer

As soon as Mack Hollins landed hard on his shoulder after grabbing a 49-yard pass against Miami, he knew it was bad.

Tests confirmed his gut, and No. 21 North Carolina announced to the players last Sunday that its big-play specialist at wide receiver would miss the rest of his senior season because of a broken right collarbone.

But on Saturday, No. 13— Mack's number — was out catching passes in warmups before UNC's 35-14 win over Virginia.

And in the second quarter, No. 13 blew past the secondary and soared above two defenders to pull in a 40-yard touchdown to seize a lead UNC would never relinquish.

After the play, senior wide receiver Bug Howard walked over to the sidelines, where Hollins stood with his arm in a sling, and fistbumped his brother.

Howard, who usually dons No. 84, switched jerseys to honor his injured teammate.

"That was his idea," said Coach Larry Fedora. "He wanted to honor Mack with his play, and he did a great job of that."

Howard finished with seven catches for 109 yards and the deep touchdown grab. It was his second straight game with more than 100 yards receiving — the first such streak of his  $\operatorname{career}$  — after he racked up 10 receptions for 156 yards in North Carolina's 20-13 win over the Hurricanes a week ago.

Hollins didn't know about the switch until Howard surprised him in the locker room before the game wearing Hollins' No. 13.

"You kind of see the softer side of Mack you don't see a lot," Howard said.

DTH/ARAMIDE GBADAMOSI

Senior wide receiver Bug Howard (13) scores a touchdown. He wore number 13 in honor of teammate Mack Hollins, whose season ended from injury.

The normally brash and outspoken Hollins didn't have much to say — for once. The leader of UNC's wide receivers is usually never short

Perhaps it comes from how hard he's had to fight to make the team. The former walk-on who was dubbed 'the unlucky kid' by his father, who endured injuries and disappointment, who wears No. 13 to laugh in the face of the circumstances that tried and failed to drag him back to obscurity — Hollins has come a long way to be here.

"He comes from just working," Howard said. "He's always positive, he's always pushing you. He's not the type of guy to be satisfied with just one good game."

SEE HOWARD, PAGE 8

Clinton urges early voting in N.C.

A diverse crowd greeted Clinton during her stop at a local HBCU.

By Jessica Baucom Staff Writer

At times speaking over chants of "Hillary for President," Democratic nominee Hillary Clinton distanced herself from Republican presidential candidate Donald Trump in a campaign event at St. Augustine's University in Raleigh Sunday.

The mothers of Trayvon Martin, Eric Garner, Jordan Davis, Sandra Bland and Dontre Hamilton introduced Clinton at the event and encouraged attendees to vote early and bring a friend. "Eric can't vote," said Gwen Carr, Garner's mother. "But we can."

Clinton's contrasted the positivity at her campaign events with the criticisms and complaints from opponent Donald Trump's

"I hear all of the insults and the downer comments coming from my opponent in this campaign and I don't recognize the country he is talking about," Clinton said. Clinton praised the economic progress that has been made under President Barack Obama and credited him for pulling the nation out of the 2008 recession. "It's easy to forget how far this country has come," Clinton said.

She also endorsed Democratic gubernatorial candidate Roy Cooper and Democratic Senate candidate Deborah Ross.

Clinton said she hopes to expand small businesses, make education more affordable and grow infrastructure. She said she wants to create jobs by deploying half a million solar panels in the next four years.

Clinton said in her speech that if she's elected, she will work to combat systemic

DTH/NATHAN KLIMA

Hillary Clinton stands with Mothers of the Movement members Sybrina Fulton and Lucy McBath.

Kara Carter, N.C. spokesperson for the Republican National Committee, said in a statement Clinton has proven she will only look out for herself.

"Her pattern of serial dishonesty is completely unacceptable for a candidate seeking the nation's highest office and Tar Heel State voters deserve better," Carter said.

Raleigh resident Chelcey Chavis and her mother Emma Chavis said they had already voted for Clinton during early voting, but they attended the event because it was held at a local historically black college they both attended.

"I went here," Chelcey Chavis said. "My mom went here for classes. We just felt like it was important to see because of the history.

I was amazed when we got here to see all of the diversity in the crowd."

Emma Chavis also praised the event's

"This is one of the best reasons I could have voted for Hillary," she said. "It's such a diverse group of people, where if we had tried to go to another rally, we wouldn't be comfortable and we wouldn't see people that

Clinton said no matter what decisions voters make, it is likely that more North Carolinians will vote in this election than

"That's something to be proud of," she

state@dailytarheel.com

SEXUAL ASSAULT ON CAMPUS

44 years later, UNC continues to adjust policy

Sexual assault has been an issue for UNC's policies to handle since 1972.

> By Jenni Ciesielski Senior Writer

In 1972, with the implementation of Title IX, universities were tasked with a new and daunting responsibility — addressing and adjudicating cases of gender-based violence.

The 44 years since have seen countless changes and corrections to UNC's system of handling reports of sexual assault on campus.

In 1989, amendments to the Code of Student Conduct made sexual assault an honor code violation. Students on the Honor Court would hear and determine the outcome of cases, while students in the student attorney general's staff would prosecute and defend their classmates.

Students on the Honor Court received legal and psychological trauma reaction training from the Orange County Rape Crisis Center and Campus Health Services in order to properly deal with these cases.

When Melinda Manning began working as an assistant dean of students in 2001, she said, the training programs of the 90s were gone.

Although her formal role as assistant dean was to work with the graduate student honor system, Manning said she acted as an informal mentor for undergraduate women in the honor system because she was one of the few women

SEE ASSAULT, PAGE 8

Wilson Library receives largest donation in library history

Florence Fearrington gave $5 million for a new reading room.

By Alexis Bell Staff Writer

Florence Fearrington, a 1958 UNC graduate and a rare book collector, gave the largest single gift UNC Libraries has ever received.

She gave $5 million to Wilson Library to go toward updating the grand reading room and maintaining inventory.

"I was going to leave it under my will and I thought, 'Well, why not do it in my lifetime?" Fearrington said.

Associate Provost and University Librarian Sarah Michalak said they were grateful to be receiving the

"I was thrilled and the library staff were also very excited. She gave us such a huge compliment in addition to such a big gift," Michalak said. "It feels so good when somebody trusts you enough and trusts your institution to know that she is making a good investment." Fearrington is specifically dedicating $1 million of her donation to be used to update the grand reading room in Wilson Library – to be renamed to the Fearrington Reading Room in her honor. The grand reading room is a space she remembers studying in as a UNC student.

"In Chapel Hill, I had used that reading room and I loved it," Fearrington said. "It's a magnificent room and somebody said it was the most beautiful room in North Carolina, and I think it may be."

Fearrington graduated from UNC with a degree in mathematics.

She then earned a certificate from the Harvard-Radcliffe Program in Business because the UNC business school did not allow women to attend.

Her previous gifts include establishing the Joseph Peyton Fearrington and James Cornelius Pass Fearrington Fund at the Health Sciences Library. The names honor her grandfather and her father.

Michalak said the reading room will appear the same physically after the update, but there will be all new infrastructure.

"The first thing that the planners will do is go

SEE WILSON, PAGE 8

🚄 🚄 We blend into my favourite colour. 之 CARLY RAE JEPSEN

The Daily Tar Heel

www.dailytarheel.com

Established 1893 123 years of editorial freedom

JANE WESTER

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF EDITOR@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

HANNAH SMOOT MANAGING EDITOR MANAGING.EDITOR@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

DANNY NETT ONLINE MANAGING EDITOR ONLINE@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

JOSÉ VALLE

VISUAL MANAGING EDITOR VISUALS@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

ALISON KRUG

NEWSROOM DIRECTOR DTH@DAILYTARHEEL.COM SARA SALINAS

DIRECTOR OF PROJECTS AND INVESTIGATIONS SPECIAL.PROJECTS@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

ACY JACKSON UNIVERSITY EDITOR UNIVERSITY@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

JANE LITTLE CITY EDITOR CITY@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

BENJI SCHWARTZ STATE & NATIONAL EDITOR STATE@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

SARAH VASSELLO SWERVE DIRECTOR SWERVE@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

C JACKSON COWART SPORTS EDITOR SPORTS@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

ZITA VOROS DESIGN & GRAPHICS EDITOR DESIGN@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

> SARAH DWYER, ALEX KORMANN PHOTO EDITORS PHOTO@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

COURTNEY JACOBS, ELLIE SCIALABBA COPY CHIEFS COPY@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

Contact Managing Editor Hannah Smoot at managing.editor@dailytarheel.com with tips, suggestions or corrections.

Mail and Office: 151 E. Rosemary St. Chapel Hill, NC 27514 Jane Wester, Editor-in-Chief, 962-4086 Advertising & Business, 962-1163 News, Features, Sports, 962-0245 Distribution, 962-4115

One copy per person; additional copies may be purchased at The Daily Tar Heel for $0.25 each. Please report suspicious activity at our distribution racks by emailing dth@dailytarheel.com © 2016 DTH Media Corp. All rights reserved

Haunted hunts for Halloween

Pregame Halloween with cornfield mazes and scary forests.

By Seth Pyle Staff Writer

Halloween is on a Monday this year, which is a perfect fit for how 2016 has been so far. Instead of raging on Oct. 31, some students may opt to get their fill of Halloween fun throughout the week and weekend. To make up for this unfortunate fact, here is a list of haunted things to do before Halloween — and one not haunted activity, just in case.

HAWFIELDS HAUNTED FOREST

What: The Haunted Forest is put on by the Hawfields Civitan and Junior Civitan clubs. Tickets cost $10, sold at the door

Where: 2115-B NC Hwy 119, Mebane, N.C. About a 25 minute drive from UNC.

When: The Haunted Forest will be open Thursday through Saturday and Halloween night. The Forest will run from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Thursday and Halloween night and 7:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

HOLLYWOOD HORROR SHOW

What: The Hollywood Horror Show is put on by North Carolina makeup artists Dean and Starr Jones. Tickets cost $25 and can be purchased online. The Horror Show features a Mr. Twisty section (aka the clown from "American Horror Story") and a ghost Pirates of the Caribbean section as its main attractions this year.

Where: 6333 Bass Mountain Rd, Snow Camp, N.C. About a 40 minute drive from Chapel Hill.

When: The Hollywood Horror Show is open every night this week. It is open from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and 8 p.m. to 12 a.m. on Friday and Saturday.

HAUNTED FOREST AT PANIC POINT

What: The Haunted Forest costs $19, but the other attractions at Panic Point are priced on a ticket basis with package options. College Night is Thursday; it is a $5 discount for a person with a college I.D. at the door for the Haunted Forest and other discounts for the package options. Panic Point has the trifecta of scariness with a haunted forest, hayride and corn maze as their main attractions.

Where: 2808 Cedar Creek Rd, Youngsville, N.C. It is about an hour drive from Chapel Hill.

When: Panic Point is open Thursday through Halloween. On Thursday and Sunday, it is open from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. and on

In the spirit of Halloween, The Daily Tar Heel's newsroom staff decorated a pumpkin Sunday night.

Friday and Saturday, from 7 p.m. to 12 a.m. Panic Point is open from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. Halloween night.

CORN FIELD MAZE

What: A 12-acre corn maze designed by Vickie McKee. The maze is usually a regular corn maze, but offers a haunted maze on Friday and Saturday. Sunday is the last day the maze is open; it will be a regular corn maze. Admission is Where: 5011 Kiger Rd, Rougemont, N.C. It is about a 35 minute drive from Chapel Hill.

When: Friday and Saturday. Tickets will start being sold around 6:30 p.m. with people being let into the maze at dusk. The last time to buy a ticket is 10 p.m. The maze will be open 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Sunday.

PAINT A PUMPKIN AT LA VITA DOLCE

What: La Vita Dolce, a coffee, espresso and gelato café located in Southern Village, is hosting a pumpkin painting event. La Vita Dolce is providing the paint and pumpkins for $3.75.

Where: 610 Market St, Suite 101-C, Chapel Hill. It is approximately a 9 minute drive from UNC-Chapel

When: Wednesday from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.

@sethpyle22 swerve@dailytarheel.com

He's Not pink Blue Cups represent graduate life

By Sarah Vassello Swerve Director

Over Fall Break, I was one of a lucky few who were selected to go to New York on a networking trip through the

FIELD WITH A

DTH SPORTS EDITOR

WIN FREE WIN FREE Homecoming Field Passes

Georgia Tech

MJ-school. A second home to many UNC students, especially those who majored in journalism, it's a destination that is somewhat known for bringing the South north.

We met with a UNC

graduate on Thursday who mentioned Blue Cups from He's Not Here. While we were sitting at a table in the Wall Street Journal, a very prestigious news outlet, she stopped telling us about her very cool, important job to let us know that there was a bar in the city with Blue Cups

When we told her that He's Not was serving pink Blue Cups to fight against breast cancer, she was thrilled. We spent probably a good five minutes talking about them why, when, etc. To her, the pink Blue Cups were interesting.

To many UNC students, that's true, too.

We only had a hotel room for Wednesday and Thursday, so my friends and I stayed with a friend on Friday night. When we told him about this encounter, he was agreeable not shocked, not excited.

I asked him if he wanted one. After all, the woman at the Journal wanted one.

He told me, in not so agreeable words, no. Blue Cups are the symbol of #collegelife at UNC. You are meant to drink a Blue Cup before a football or a basketball game. You are meant to drink a Blue Cup in between classes and at the end of the night, right before last call. When I asked my friend why he reacted so strongly against us sending him a pink Blue Cup, he responded thoughtfully.

He said that getting sent a Blue Cup meant that you liked college more than you like your life at the moment. And, in the defense of the woman at The Wall Street Journal, I don't think that's necessarily true. As a woman who's been graduated from college for more than 10 years, she's nostalgic. She remembers UNC fondly, and she wanted a collector's item. After all, I've lived in the area for my entire life, and I don't remember an instance where Blue Cups were anything but blue.

But for him, a May graduate, getting a Blue Cup means that he misses drinking in the afternoon, more than he wants to pitch and write a front page story for the prestigious news organization where he works.

I get both sides of the argument. As a senior, I'm trying to figure out where my loyalty lies. At this stage in my life, I'm currently failing a class badly and not doing well in most of the other classes that I need to graduate (aka all of them). I almost cried on the way back from New York because I wasn't ready to stop avoiding my life in Chapel Hill. I was, and I am, ready to move on.

Will I want a Blue Cup - or even a pink Blue Cup - when I'm a year out of college? My guess is probably

But will I want a Blue Cup in five years? In 10? My hope is that I will.

So He's Not — keep making collector's editions. Keep making symbols of #colleg-

We'll keep coming back. No matter the distance.

@sarahvasselloswerve@dailytarheel.com

POLICE LOG

 Someone broke and entered on the 2700 block of Homestead Road at 2:38 a.m. Thursday, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

The person kicked the front door open during an argument, reports state.

- Someone disturbed the peace on the 600 block of Christopher Road at 3:22 a.m. Thursday, according to Chapel Hill police reports.
- Someone disturbed the peace on the 1000 block of N.C. 54 at 2:25 p.m. Thursday, according to Chapel Hill police reports.
- Someone reported larceny on the 100 block of East Franklin Street at 9:54 p.m. Thursday, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

The person stole a backpack, headphones and a button-up shirt, valued at $60 total, reports state.

• Someone reported larceny on the 1500 block of East Franklin Street at 4:15 p.m. Thursday, according to Chapel Hill police reports..

The person stole two credit cards from the victim's vehicle, reports state.

• Someone committed larceny at Johnny T-Shirt at 128 East Franklin St. at 5:00 p.m. Thursday, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

The person stole a hat, valued at $20.99, reports state.

• Someone committed assault by pointing a gun at the intersection of Fordham Boulevard and Manning Drive at 5:21 p.m. Thursday, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

The person pointed a handgun at another driver, reports state.

• Someone committed armed robbery at the Pizza Hut at 1728 Fordham Blvd. at 9:55 p.m. Thursday, according to Chapel Hill police

The person stole a cell phone, valued at $150, and $530 in cash, reports state.

• Someone reported found property at the bus stop on the 2500 block of Homestead Road at 7:44 p.m. Thursday, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

The person found a wallet and $60 in cash, reports

 Someone trespassed at the Whole Foods at 81 South Elliot Rd. at 9:17 p.m. Thursday, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

The person was intoxicated in the store, reports state.

• Someone reported trespassing on the 600 block of Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard at 4:24 p.m. Thursday, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

CORRECTIONS

- The Daily Tar Heel reports any inaccurate information published as soon as the error is discovered. · Editorial corrections will be printed on this page. Errors committed on the Opinion Page have corrections printed on that page. Corrections also are noted in the online versions of our stories.
- Contact Managing Editor Hannah Smoot at managing.editor@dailytarheel.com with issues about this policy.

Nov. 5, 2016

To enter, donate $25 or more to join

Friends of

The Daily Tar Heel

http://alumni.dailytarheel.com/donate-to-the-dth/

The Daily Tar Heel

JANE WESTER EDITOR, 962-4086 OR EDITOR@DAILYTARHEEL.COM TYLER FLEMING OPINION EDITOR, OPINION@DAILYTARHEEL.COM EMILY YUE ASSISTANT OPINION EDITOR

JONATHAN NUNEZ

KATE STOTESBERY

CHRIS DAHLIF GEORGIA BRUNNER ZAYNAB NASIF ELIZA FILENE

Established 1893, 123 years of editorial freedom

WILL PARKER SEYOUNG OH CRYSTAL YUILLE

Annie Kiyonaga

Annie Get Your Pen

Sophomore English and art history major from Chevy Chase. Email: anniek@live.unc.edu

Watch, feel, react, repeat

uick test: what comes to mind when I throw out the number 525,600? If you didn't say RENT, please refrain from ever speaking to me again.

On second thought, read this column thoroughly, go watch RENT 25 times in a row, and write me an enthusiastic thankyou note for opening your eyes to the wonders of this beloved Broadway institution.

Two weeks ago, I found myself seated in the backmost row at the Durham Performing Arts Center, reliving every "sick day" of my high school career when I would, inevitably, watch RENT and sob copiously.

RENT has everything: Akitas named Avita; lawyers; strippers; a tragic death and a heart-wrenching near-death, all set to a continuous stream of song. Above all else, though, it's a musical that aims to humanize the marginalized in society, memorializing the stories of gay, trans and drugaddicted characters.

Celebrating and expressing these stories through art, where the empathetic link between audience and subject is so integral to the work itself, is powerful.

I watched, enthralled, as Angel the drag queen addressed the audience in a pair of towering heels, and I listened to a life-support group explicate the terrifying realities of living with a life-threatening disease. As I relished the stories and successes of RENT's characters, I couldn't help but compare the diverse, supportive fictional world crafted in this play to the realities within our own state, where laws like House Bill 2 strip protection from gay and trans men and women.

Whether or not art truly exists outside of the realm of politics, artists have long relied on figural depiction to humanize radical political philosophies.

Consider Jacques-Louis David's The Death of Marat, in which David commemorates the death of the French Revolutionary leader Jean-Paul Marat, providing a martyred cause for the Revolutionaries. Examine Diego Rivera's repeated incorporation of the Revolutionary Trinity — field workers, industrial workers and soldiers — in his famous murals, where his portrayal of everyday Mexicans lent a human presence to the Communist revolution that he so eagerly anticipated. Artists understand the power of shared humanity in conveying a radical message. It is natural to feel with, and for, stories presented through art, even if their actual plot lines are fictional. Shared experience leads, hopefully, to shared understanding, which engenders support for otherwise abstract ideologies. Here, then, is the "practical" value of art that I am so often quizzed on. (Stay strong, Art History majors.) The value of artistic expression lies in its ability to move audiences to challenge individual or societal biases, by presenting an alternative experience viscerally and comprehensibly, leading, hopefully, to substantive change. Connect through art and celebrate narratives unlike 10/24: Editor's Note Emily Yue muses on some real cool, spooky-spook stuff.

EDITORIAL

Tar Heels, take a walk

Walking in Chapel Hill ought to be better and safer.

t is a wonderful time to be in Chapel Hill from spooky decorations on Franklin Street to the leaves changing around the Old Well. Clearly, now is the time to compose the best Instagram photos and explore this wonderful area.

But doing this by car is boring, expensive and can often lead to missing the best parts of the town. While cars are a fast way to get from point A to point B, life should be more than convenience.

Walking is the cheapest and easiest way to explore. And if you are going long distances, taking the free public transit is a great alternative. You see more, for starters, but you also decrease the impact driving has on the local environment (both social and ecological).

While gasoline is pretty cheap now, who wants to pay for it? That money could be spent on coffee or as important as pedesalcohol. Kids, don't drink and drive.

While the town is miles ahead of many other North Carolina cities, it still can use some improvements to ensure students, staff and townsfolk feel safer.

First, more crosswalks on major roads would be appreciated. Anyone who has ever crossed Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard knows the Frogger-esque gambit. There is a lack of crosswalks at the bus station, which compels students to cross the road in unsafe ways. Even if one walks to the crosswalk, many cars ignore the flashing lights, leaving the pedestrian terrified.

The scene is pretty common: a student spends late night studying and tries to cross the street, car does not see pedestrian, car swerves and honks, student feels unsafe.

While most occurrences end up with a mildly scared pedestrian and an annoyed driver, the fear is still awful.

On streets like these, the town should place a priority on ensuring that signs to stop or yield are clearly visible and that drivers are well aware of the fact that people are crossing.

Secondly, while not trian safety, walkability is important as well. Benches, seating areas and water fountains all make for a more walkable town, and seeing friends eating or relaxing on the sidewalks is always a highlight of walking down Franklin.

While it is unreasonable to say the town should abolish all parking spots, it would be nice to see those spaces used for small parks, seating areas at restaurants or as a resting place for dogs or bikes.

Chapel Hill Parking Day, where residents take over a few parking spots and set up a relaxing zone, would be a good, established model to base this off.

Lastly, plant life is key. It was a shame to see the town remove several old trees from Franklin Street a couple years ago. The shade cools the streets on hot days. The changing leaves give the town a fall aesthetic and trees are just really cool.

Also, more flowers would be nice. But don't bother making them Carolina Blue — if our high school biology class taught us anything worthwhile, it is that pollinating bees will alter any plant colors. Oh, and by the way Chapel Hill, a beehive on Franklin Street would be super cool. Bees would make the street more vibrant. If you haven't noticed, this page cares a lot about bees.

While all this may seem small, and the town is already a beautiful place to walk, we can still make it better.

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"It's a cool idea, but it was even more surprising just because it was the only change they've ever made to their cups at all."

Mary Anne Kavjian, on the pink cups at He's Not Here

FEATURED ONLINE READER COMMENT

"Just before the bicentennial celebrations an update on the castle was completed. I was lucky to have worked on the project ..."

wieceu, on knowing some of the secrets of Gimghoul Castle

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Republicans have fascist tendencies

TO THE EDITOR: Dear David Council, You stated that the Republican Party is not made up of Nazis. I will remind you of things your so beloved Republican Party and its candidate for president of the U.S. have said or supported in the last eight years. First, they have repeatedly shown great disrespect to our sitting president, purely based on his race, for there is no other explanation for their agreement to block everything he has done.

Your party and their candidate have openly said they/he supports religious tests, wants Muslims to carry ID's (extremely similar to what Germans did to Jews), said Mexicans crossing the border are "rapists, murderers and criminals," said that African Americans are more violent and less intelligent and even said they are less moral, said that if you have two intelligent people who have a kid that their kid will be more intelligent and superior, his supporters have degraded anyone of color or another religion other than Christianity and want Christianity to be a "state-supported" religion, thereby demeaning other religions.

In addition, Trump has failed to fully denounce hate groups that have latched onto him and anyone in his crowd spewing racist remarks and violence at rallies or violent rhetoric ... currently some of his fans and even him are calling for Hillary to be assassinated and overthrowing the government. Lastly, Hitler was infamous for lying and his men, lying often because they felt if you lie enough the public will believe you. This is why Hitler and the Nazis were able to murder over six million people based on their ethnicity and religion.

I ask all Republicans who believe in a fair and equal system that embraces freedom, equality and non-violence to denounce Trump and his violent and immoral friends. For if you don't you are no better, you're actually worse, and ves, vou're embracing many of the same notions Hitler had as well as the Nazis.

> Kathy D. Morgan Chapel Hill

UNC has sold out, and

The University of North Carolina has sold out, and everyone is feeling the effects from it. Last summer, Barnes & Noble College bought out UNC Student Stores, causing prices to go up while hurt-

Honestly, Student Stores has always been overpriced, but at least the students could be sure that the money was going to benefit the University directly. Now that Barnes & Noble owns the store, I can't help but feel that the University is disserving both itself and its students. Students can't even be sure where their money is going anymore, and they're paying more.

Prices for miscellaneous products around the store have gone up since the buyout. Even the coffee is more expensive. Many students' loudest complaint is that the Daily Grind, the former café attached to the Student Stores, has been replaced by Starbucks, stealing a once beloved part of UNC away from the students while once again asking them to pay more. Even the former Student Stores employees have suffered. Barnes & Noble has also taken away the state benefits employees used to have. No one ever asked for Barnes & Noble to cheapen our college experience, but now it's too late.

> Brian Shurney Sophomore Journalism and Music

DTH should disable online comments

TO THE EDITOR:

As a writer, I know that criticism is a key part of the writing process, and I embrace all efforts to get me to think of my writings in a different way, or improve the clarity of my work. However, I also know what it feels like to have hours of work met with ridicule and harassment that in no way attempts to create a meaningful discussion about the issue I am writing about.

That is why I am insisting that The Daily Tar Heel should disable commenting on its articles. Far from creating a "great discussion," the comments section is filled with ridicule, trolling and outright harassment from users that are oftentimes anonymous.

If you don't believe me, just look at the opinion section.

For those of you whose knee-jerk reaction to this letter is "First Amendment," I would like to quickly remind you what the first amendment says. The first amendment prevents the state from infringing upon your right to free speech.

In other words, the government cannot prosecute you for what you say.

Since I am not advocating for the prosecution of anyone, the first amendment does not apply. The DTH is just like any other newspaper; it reserves the right to control how its readers interact with its content.

Nothing good is coming from the DTH comments section. Therefore, the DTH should strongly consider disabling comments on its articles, and if it cannot come to a decision, the issue should be voted on by the student body.

Jack Walsh Sophomore Environmental Science and History

no one asked for it

TO THE EDITOR:

ing employees.

WRITING GUIDELINES

• Email: opinion@dailytarheel.com

- Please type. Handwritten letters will not be accepted.
- Sign and date. No more than two people should sign letters. • Students: Include your year, major and phone number.
- Faculty/staff: Include your department and phone number.
- Edit: The DTH edits for space, clarity, accuracy and vulgarity. Limit letters to 250 words.

SUBMISSION

SPEAK OUT

• Drop off or mail to our office at 151 E. Rosemary St., Chapel Hill,

EDITOR'S NOTE: Columns, cartoons and letters do not necessarily represent the opinions of The Daily Tar Heel or its staff. Editorials reflect the opinions of The Daily Tar Heel editorial board, which comprises 11 board members, the opinion assistant editor and editor and the editor-in-chief.

COLUMN #EstamosAquiUNC

The importance of standing with #EstamosAquiUNC

inority students make up a small part of UNC. Many times these students are forgotten. More specifically, Latinx students are forgotten. Given they are such a small percentage of the undergraduate population, it is very easy to lose sight of their presence on this campus.

Before Fall Break, the Latinx Unity Council, a group of Latinx student leaders, staged a series of events leading up to the first meeting of the committee that will decide the fate of a possible Latinx Center for students, faculty and alumni. This week is just a small part of the over eight-year-long push for a center of this kind on UNC's campus.

As a person of color on a predominantly white campus where the institution, both physically and systemically, was not built with you in mind, spaces like this are essential. As it currently stands, the only space for Latinx students is the Carolina Latino/a Collaborative, which meets in the Seminar Wing of Craige North Residence

Hall. With the Latinx stu-

Cameron Jernigan Junior communications major

Email: cameron.jernigan1@gmail.

dent population at 1,400, the space is nowhere near large enough to accommodate that many students.

Many will question why Black, Latinx, and Native American students deserve a designated space on campus and not white students. Many may cry "racism" and "prejudice," saying it's unfair for there to be "minority only" student spaces, or spaces dedicated to minority students, and not their white counterparts. But the thing is, there are white spaces on UNC's campus — the entire campus. This campus was designed for white students and continues to function for the survival and success of white students. Even when we have spaces for minority populations, white students still find ways to infiltrate and co-opt those spaces. One thing UNC prides itself on is its diversity, multiculturalism and inclusionary practices. UNC uses minority students as a means of promulgating its diversity initiatives to the masses. As it relates to Latinx students, in actuality, there is not nearly as much support for their success as UNC likes to show.

During the protest, Chris Guevara, junior biology major and member of the Council, said "All of the Latinx programming that goes on here at the University — the University loves to publish it, and they love to claim diversity. But when it comes to voicing our concerns about the need for a space so that we can work as a community, we keep getting shut down."

This sentiment is felt by many minority students on campus. By and large, this is how minorities are treated at this University.

We are lauded as the reason UNC is seen as progressive and modern, but when it comes to actually hearing our concerns and supporting us as a community, we fall on deaf ears.

Released emails show McCrory faced pressure to sign HB2

The emails show that businesses reacted negatively to signing.

By Becca Heilman Staff Writer

After the Charlotte Observer filed a public records lawsuit

Oct. 7 — over six months after filing a public records request — the governor's office released thousands of pages of House Bill 2-related emails Oct. 17.

The release contained emails sent to the governor's office detailing the pressure Gov. Pat McCrory was under to sign HB2 and business' reactions to the new law.

REALIZE THE POSSIBILITIES ssw.unc.edu

Interested in a Master of Social Work degree?

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill School of Social Work extends a warm invitation to individuals interested in learning more about graduate social work education and our MSW program.

Please attend our:

Evening Information Session for Potential Applicants

Monday, October 24 5:30–8 p.m.

Join us for a reception with alumni, students and faculty 5:30–6:15 p.m.

UNC School of Social Work

Tate-Turner-Kuralt Building, 325 Pittsboro St.
Parking available in the deck of the FedEx Global Education building at the corner of Pittsboro and McCauley streets.

For directions, see

ssw.unc.edu/about/directions

Please RSVP to: Tiffany Carver 919-843-8452 tscarver@email.unc.edu

Pressure to sign

State political figures and religious leaders alike sent emails to McCrory to pressure him to overturn the Charlotte non-discrimination ordinance passed in February.

In an email to Fred Steen, McCrory's legislative liaison to the N.C. General Assembly at the time, Frank Turek, a Christian author and speaker, initially criticized the governor for not doing enough after the passage of the Charlotte ordinance.

"This kind of inaction is exactly what is feeding the anti-establishment rage," Turek said. "If the Republicans don't want to be engulfed by the (Donald) Trump wave, they better get off their butts and do something before this dangerous ordinance goes into effect in April."

The Charlotte ordinance was passed Feb. 22 and HB2 was passed during a special legislative session March 23.

Bob Stephens, McCrory's general counsel, sent an email to Charlotte lawyer "You have no idea how hard the governor worked to limit (HB2)."

Bob StephensGeneral Counsel to Gov. McCrory

Bob Turner that said the governor opposed HB2 but passed it anyway.

"You have no idea how hard the governor worked to limit it," Stephens said in the email. "He told the legislature that it went too far. We lobbied against it and even drafted our own version of the bill but it was not accepted."

Businesses react

The emails also contained concerns from private companies.

A partner at the Parker Poe law firm, which represents Apple, sent an email to a McCrory staffer that said Lisa Jackson, vice president of environment, policy and social initiatives, wanted to speak with the governor. After PayPal canceled 400 jobs in Charlotte, Stephens expressed his concern for the economic fallout in a response to an email.

"I'm afraid some of the tech companies in the (Research Triangle Park) are going to be next," he said.

Some small business owners also shared their thoughts on HB2 and the Charlotte ordinance.

Brion Blais, owner of SpeedPro Imaging-Charlotte Center and member of the Charlotte Chamber, said HB2 would encourage economic development.

"I suspect there would be fewer attendees at public events otherwise," he said.

Election impact

Rick Thames, executive editor of the Charlotte Observer, said the Observer did not intend to affect the gubernatorial race in publishing the emails, but the governor's office waited until after the lawsuit was filed to fulfill the records request.

"I don't think it's right that news media have to sue their public officials to obtain public records, and I hope the legislature is watching," Thames said.

Steven Greene, a political science professor at N.C.
State University, said the emails could be used against McCrory to suggest that he doesn't actually support a social conservative agenda.

"The thing is, pieces of information like this are really effective when they fit a kind of preexisting narrative about a candidate," he said.

At the same time, Greene said this information would not be particularly new for many North Carolinians.

"Honestly, I think it confirms what a lot of people really suspected, and what I've been saying all along is that I don't think Pat McCrory really wanted it, but he decided politically that he needed to jump in with both feet and double down on this and support what the conservatives in the legislature had done," he said.

@beccaheilman state@dailytarheel.com

Free coffee attracts students to museum

By Lorcan Farrell
Staff Writer

UNC's campus art museum, the Ackland Art Museum, changed leadership over the summer, and along with the change comes a host of programs designed to increase student involvement.

Katie Ziglar took over as director of the museum after 13 years as Director of External Affairs at the Freer|Sackler Galleries, Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. Now with over three months on the job, Ziglar said the transition has gone well.

"I inherited a very motivated and a good staff at the Ackland," she said. "They are very dedicated to the museum and know their jobs and perform them very well.

I've also spent time getting to know people all around the University, trying to learn about the University from their perspective and how it affects the Ackland."

Ziglar said one of her goals for the Ackland is to increase its interaction with the UNC community. She said before she arrived, the museum would see, on average, 10,000 students a year who came with their class.

Torin Edwards, a first-year media and journalism major, said trips to the Ackland helped him gain a better understanding for his class.

"I went to Ackland to see the Burk Uzzle exhibit with my photography class," he said. "I went in having gone to countless museums on school field trips, but this was different. I think this was the first time that I actually understood how a picture could be worth a thousand words."

Ziglar said education is something the Ackland specializes in and it is something their staff is very good at.

"We are reaching out to the different professors and encouraging them to try this," she said. "We are actually tracking, so far this year, ahead of our average statistics."

Ziglar said she wants the museum to attract students for more than just educational opportunities. One way in which this is being accomplished is the ART&

— An Experiment in Art and Community program.

"ART& is this converted gallery space where individuals or groups can gather to drink coffee, hang out or do homework," Ziglar said.
"From 10 to 2 there is

"From 10 to 2 there is free coffee but people can bring their own whenever. The space itself is adjacent to the Extended Remix gallery so the hope is people using the Art& space will go through that door and visit the exhibition and maybe go deeper into the museum."

Ziglar said the ART& space has been heavily used, attracting students like first-year chemistry major Alton Gayton.

"It's a nice place to study. I've only been once because the museum is a bit out of my way but the idea's pretty cool," Gayton said. "I don't drink coffee but I'm sure offering it for free attracts a lot of people."

university@dailytarheel.com

Porter, a Bernese Mountain Dog, celebrated his second birthday Sunday night at He's Not Here.

He's Not turns cups pink for breast cancer research

By Erin Kolstad Assistant City Editor

For over 40 years, He's Not Here has been the home of the Blue Cup, but this October, the cups changed for the first time.

He's Not made their signature Blue Cup pink to raise money for breast cancer research.

Matt Mehok, one of the owners of the bar, said a percentage of proceeds from each Pink Cup will be donated to breast cancer research.

"Part of our mission when we bought the bar was to give back always," he said. "With October being breast cancer awareness, we thought it could make a real nice impact by changing the cup for the first time in 40 years to the Pink Cup. We thought it would get a big following behind it, and that's why we

The proceeds from the Pink Cups will be split between two organizations — 1in9, a charity based in Raleigh, and the UNC Lineberger Comprehensive Cancer Center.

There are a limited number of cups, and the sale will go until the end of October, unless they run out first.

"We are at least gonna give a couple thousand dollars, depending on how it all goes, but we expect the cups to go pretty quick," Mehok said. "We're gonna be in the thousands providing for those two charities.'

Mehok, who graduated from UNC in 1993, said he's been very pleased by the support He's Not has received from the community and students.

He said the reception for the color change of the cups has been great, as they have gotten a tremendous response on social media.

"The pictures, the spread and the likes on all platforms of social media has been outstanding," he said.

Mari Norcross and Mary Anne Kavjian, both UNC alumni, said they saw the Pink Cups on Instagram and drove a combined three and a half hours to He's Not to celebrate the birthday of Porter, a Bernese Mountain

"We decided we wanted to throw Porter a birthday party," Norcross said. "We were thinking Raleigh first, then we saw these on Instagram and then we thought 'hmm, let's go to He's Not instead."

Porter was celebrating his second birthday on Sunday

Kavjian said she was surprised He's Not made the color change for the cups because the bar has not made many changes over the

"It's a cool idea, but it was even more surprising just because it was the only change they've ever made to their cups at all," she said.

Kavjian said she was curious about future opportunities for multi-colored cups at He's Not.

'We were talking about it earlier, are they going to do this all the time now with different colors and different things, or is this a one-time thing?" Kavjian said. "It opens a lot of doors for things to do in the future."

@erin kolstad city@dailytarheel.com

Sole N.C. Affordable Care Act provider increases rates

Blue Cross Blue Shield said coverage costs have gone up.

By Ari Sen Staff Writer

Customers on Blue Cross Blue Shield of North Carolina's Affordable Care Act plans might see a hike in their insurance premiums next year.

The insurer plans to increase the rates for Affordable Care Act plans by an average of 24.3 percent in 2017. This follows a May filing in which Blue Cross Blue Shield estimated the plans would increase by an average of 18.8 percent.

Brian Tailili, director of actuarial and pricing services for Blue Cross Blue Shield of N.C., said in a statement the rate increase is due to rising costs of medical care.

"On average, ACA customers tend to require more medical services than most other customers, and have more chronic conditions that are costly to treat," he said.

Tajlili said the lack of young, healthy people enrolled in Affordable Care Act plans fails to balance out the price of higher-cost customers.

The statement also said about 72 percent of Blue Cross Blue Shield of N.C. customers with ACA plans will pay either less or the same for their insurance due to the act's federal subsidy program.

The rate increase follows insurer Aetna's decision to suspend their 2017 ACA plans in North Carolina. Tajlili said Blue Cross Blue Shield, as the only insurer in North Carolina, estimates they will enroll 260,000 people who were dropped by other insurers.

Larry Levitt, senior vice president for special initiatives at the Kaiser Family

Foundation, and Gary Claxton, vice president for the foundation, said in a statement released in May insurers had been warning of cost pressures increasing and therefore health plan rate increases might be higher in 2017 than the previous year. Blue Cross Blue Shield has also faced problems related to its customer handling. The insurer is currently under investigation by the N.C. Department of Insurance due to a large volume of complaints about insurer issues.

"I'm going to hold Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina accountable for fixing its problems and doing right by consumers," Insurance Commissioner Wayne Goodwin said in a statement released in February.

Presidential candidates have used rate increases to show the ACA needs to be fixed.

Republican presidential candidate Donald Trump said in a rally in Fletcher, N.C. Friday "Obamacare" is failing and he would repeal and replace it. In a statement on his website, he said he would provide block grant Medicaid to the states for health care.

Hillary Clinton said in a statement on her website she would defend the ACA as president, and would attempt to bring down co-pays and deductible costs by reducing costs of health care.

Tajlili said the current plan is not viable in the long term on the current path.

"We must continue to seek improvements to the ACA to make it more sustainable."

@ArijitDSenstate@dailytarheel.com

ver the past four years at Chapel Hill, my name appeared twice in our fine newspaper -- once with my picture on Franklin Street at Halloween, and the second time accompanied with a poem I wrote. The first time, readers saw what I look like. In the second appearance, readers saw how I think, who I am, and what I find interesting and important. That's the value in continuing to feature poetry in the DTH: so that students might peek into each others' souls at a small but spectacular moment, without judging external appearances.

~ Lily Clarke '16

Lily Clarke is currently pursuing her MFA in creative writing at the University of St. Andrews in Scotland.

Check out Tar Heel Verses this Wednesday!

Urad School Into Fall

NC students and alumni are invited to attend UNC-Chapel Hill's Graduate School Info Fair! There will be opportunities to network with graduate/ professional school representatives.

Tuesday, October 25, 2016 1-4pm Great Hall, Union

There is no pre-registration required of students to attend this event. This event is open to anyone interested in attending Graduate School.

University Career Services

To view the list of participating Graduate and Professional Schools, go to

http://bit.ly/UNCGradFair16

Tim Kaine criticizes Trump during N.C. visit

Kaine also spoke about North Carolina's state races.

By Danielle ChemtobAssistant State & National Editor

As polling places across North Carolina opened for business Thursday, Democratic vice presidential candidate Tim Kaine rallied voters in a sweep across what he dubbed the "checkmate" state.

Kaine campaigned for Hillary Clinton at North Carolina Central University in an effort to encourage early voting and emphasize North Carolina's importance in the election. He also visited early voting sites in Charlotte and Apex before his NCCU appearance and spoke at UNC-Asheville on Wednesday.

Kaine's appearances followed the third and final presidential debate, and he discussed his experiences as a missionary in Honduras to criticize Trump's comments surrounding accepting the election results.

"What I learned there is that our democratic tradition of elections and accepting the outcome of elections and then having a peaceful transfer of power, not everybody in the world lives that way," Kaine said in his speech.

"We are fortunate to have that as a basic pillar of our democracy, and Donald Trump doesn't accept that."

Trump has since clarified his comments. Earlier Thursday, Trump told a crowd in Ohio that he would accept the results — if he won.

He said he reserves the right to legally challenge questionable results, but that he would accept them if they were clear.

"No, Donald, you've got to accept the results, win or lose," Kaine said. "That's what every candidate does in every presidential election in this country."

Kaine also laid out his and Clinton's four-point plan to rebuild the economy — which he said includes investing in infrastructure, education and small businesses and increasing the minimum wage.

"Hillary Clinton and I look at education as a way for society to get stronger," Kaine said. "Donald Trump looked at education as 'wow, what a great way for me to make some money."

Jaquel Brown, a senior at NCCU who attended the event, said it concerns him that the candidates haven't discussed education more.

"I don't want it to be one of those things where you just mention education just to get the young college student's vote," Brown said. "I would really like to see a more concrete plan."

N.C. Republican Party Chairman Robin Hayes said in a statement that Kaine's visit comes in light of the scandals centered on the Clinton Foundation.

"As Tim Kaine talks to North Carolina voters, he should explain why corruption and conflicts of interest seem to follow the Clintons wherever they go," he said. Composition of the state of the

DTH/ALEX KORMANN

Tim Kaine, vice presidential nominee, spoke at North Carolina Central University about early voting.

Unlike other states, Kaine said, North Carolina's senate and gubernatorial races have brought energy to the presidential race.

"Sadly in the last couple years, you've had leadership at the state level that's made North Carolina known for things that isn't who North Carolina really is," he said. "You are not a place where bigotry is okay."

When Clinton called Kaine in July to ask if he would be her running mate, he said she outlined a unique vision for her presidency.

"(She said), 'I want to measure our administration by the difference we can make in people's lives," he said.

@daniellechemtob state@dailytarheel.com

YOUR WALLET WON'T KNOW YOU RETIRED.

You could get over 90% of your income and maintain your lifestyle in retirement. Start now at TIAA.org/results

INVESTING | ADVICE | BANKING | RETIREMENT

BUILT TO PERFORM.

CREATED TO SERVE.

Hume twins highlight Coastal-clinching victory

By Ethan Belshe Staff Writer

North Carolina men's soccer coach Carlos Somoano has always attributed the success of his teams to his system.

The players in that system might change, but the expectations don't. Yet, two players have stood out in Somoano's system time and time again: redshirt senior forward Tucker Hume and his twin brother, redshirt senior defender Walker Hume.

Saturday's game against Virginia Tech (9-4-3, 2-4-1 ACC) was no different. In their final regular-season game at Fetzer Field, the Humes were directly involved in both of North Carolina's goals in a 2-0 victory that clinched an ACC Coastal Division championship for the Tar Heels (11-2-2, 5-1-1 ACC).

"I've never taken any of these games for granted," Walker said.

"Because you never know how many you're going to get." In the 18th minute of Saturday's contest, Walker headed the ball to Tucker in the box off a set piece. Tucker was fouled and earned the penalty that led to North Carolina's first goal courtesy of David October.

Later, in the 87th minute, Tucker scored his fifth goal of the season and UNC's second of the game. It was the goal that clinched the game and the Coastal Division title for the Tar Heels.

"It's definitely special to get a goal on senior night," Tucker said.

"Just for the occasion as well as the Coastal Division."

But it hasn't been an easy road for the seniors. This was the first season of their UNC careers that the two have been able to take the field at the same time.

The Humes transferred to North Carolina from Rollins College in 2014. Tucker came to Chapel Hill knowseason, but the pair planned to play together in 2015. But an injury forced Walker to take a redshirt and sit out the 2015 season, putting that plan on hold.

Having finally teamed up in 2016, the Humes have become a dominant force for the Tar Heels — combining for nine goals and eight assists, which accounts for almost 25 percent of the team's points this season.

"Obviously, we always had that self-belief in ourselves," Tucker said.

"(But) this has been more than we could imagine, and it's just been an unreal experience."

But the field isn't the only place the Humes have left their mark — they've also stood out off the field.

"We're very proud to have them ..." Somoano said. "(Their) presence, personality, commitment to our university has been fantastic."

With the division title in

DTH/LACHLAN MCGRATH

UNC senior forward Tucker Hume battles for the ball against Virginia Tech on Senior Night Saturday.

hand, North Carolina will now look ahead to the ACC Championship. For Somoano, this tournament represents not only a chance for a trophy, but also a chance to extend his seniors' careers.

"I want to keep this season going for as long as possible, so I get to be around them as long as possible," he said. "I'm not looking forward to the day they move on." @The_Belshe

sports@dailytarheel.com

Research round-up

Deaths of pregnant women

UNC Gillings School of Global Public Health researchers recently found the number of violent deaths of pregnant women in North Carolina is higher than previously reported.

Doctoral student Anna Austin worked with professor Catherine Vladutiu and researchers from the N.C. Division of Public Health and N.C. State Center for Health Statistics. They found that between 2005 and 2011, there were 55 homicides and 29 suicides among pregnant and recently postpartum women in North Carolina. Previous statistics reported 34 homicides and 20 suicides in the same time period.

One reason the statistics weren't previously accurate is because a box on death certificates indicating women were pregnant wasn't fully implemented in North Carolina until 2014.

Continuing to protect the air

The Environmental Protection Agency awarded UNC's Institute for the Environment a seven-year contract worth up to $10.2 million Thursday to continue the research of its Center for Community Air Quality Modeling and Analysis.

The contract will allow the center to continue its air quality work in environmental and human health areas.

The center has created a participant-funded training program at the Institute focused on air quality and emissions models. The training is conducted on campus, online and at national and international sites.

This week, the center is hosting its annual conference to bring together leading air quality scientists.

ARTS & SCIENCES

Part of a periodic update

on UNC research

Taking a crack at plate tectonics

Berk Biryol, a postdoctoral research associate in the Department of Geological Sciences, is shaking up how to understand plate tectonics in the Southeastern United States.

Although the Southeastern United States is about 1,000 miles from the closest plate boundary, earthquakes still occur in this area. Biryol thinks the earthquakes could be related to ancient weakness zones, left behind from a tectonic episode nearly half a billion years ago.

Biryol studied these areas to find weakness zones by analyzing data from earthquake monitoring stations.

Biryol discovered this region has weakness zones that likely contain faults, but he now wants to address why the zones activate in some places but not in others.

Compiled by assistant university editors

Sofia Edelman and Cailyn Derickson

Children reading emotions

Kristen Lindquist and Misha Becker, professors in the departments of Psychology and Neuroscience and Linguistics respectively, and psychology graduate student Holly Shablack used animated aliens to assess when children can assume complex emotions without context.

Becker said they chose aliens who speak an alien language to portray emotions rather than humans to avoid the problems that come with mutual exclusivity — when children already have a label for something and do not want to re-label it.

When sampling 3- to 5-year-old children at the Museum of Life and Science in Durham, researchers found only the 5-year-olds realized the aliens were experiencing an emotion when given a sentence with no context.

Symposium on Climate Change Ethics

The Parr Center for Ethics and the Institute for the Environment at UNC will host a day-long symposium offering sessions on the causes, effects and challenges of climate change in today's world.

Friday, October 28 • 9:30 a.m. to 6:30 pm. Student Union University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

SPEAKERS:

CORAL DAVENPORT, The New York Times energy and environmental reporter

DALE JAMIESON, professor of environmental students at New York University

TODD MILLER, North Carolina Coastal Federation executive director

PRISCILLA WALD, R. Florence Brinkley Professor of English at Duke University

VICTOR B. FLATT, Center for Climate, Energy, Environment & Economics at University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill.

Panel sessions include:

- Life in the Anthropocene and the Value of Nature
- Rising Sea Levels and Duties to Future Generations
- Responsibility for Climate Change and Duties to Other Nations

For the complete schedule and to register, visit: http://tinyurl.com/jhyaruj

Leave your mark at UNC! ----

The University Archives needs your help to tell Carolina's story through T-shirts.

We're seeking photographs of your favorites...

athletics, student organizations, academics, dorm life, programs, protests, and more.

unctshirtarchive.tumblr.com

Wear or bring your T-shirt to T-Shirt Archive Day

Wednesday, October 26, 2016 R.B. House Undergraduate Library 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.

OR

Send us your T-shirt photo

Email: archives@unc.edu Twitter and Instagram: @uncarchives #MyUNCTshirt

Don't just wear it, share it!

And so after seeing his teammate wearing No. 13

and carrying on his legacy,

HOWARD

FROM PAGE 1

Hollins always had a retort to whatever life threw at him. He never leaves the house without the proverbial chip on his shoulder.

Before North Carolina's 37-35 win over Florida State earlier this season, he and fellow receivers Howard and Ryan Switzer warmed up in bathrobes because Hollins felt the nation was sleeping on the Tar Heels' wide receiving corps.

Yet Hollins isn't just talk.

One doesn't go from walk-on to third in UNC history in touchdown catches without

The first place Hollins made his impact was on special teams, and No. 13 was UNC's best special teamer until that fateful play in Miami. The culture of hard work he embodied permeated the entire North Carolina receiving corps.

Hollins never knew that until he saw Howard wearing his jersey. But the signs were everywhere after that.

Junior transfer Jordan

Cunningham caught a pass to convert a 3rd-and-22 and set up the Tar Heels' first touchdown of the afternoon. Former walk-on Thomas Jackson caught a wide-open touchdown in the back of the end zone to give UNC a two-score lead in the third quarter.

And Hollins' replacement at outside receiver, Austin Proehl, caught another long touchdown to punctuate the final 35-14 margin against Virginia.

"Of course it hurt us ..." Howard said of Hollins'

"Regardless of who wears his jersey or not, Mack's with us."

Ryan Switzer Senior wide receiver injury. "But we got young guys who can come in and know exactly what needs to be done.

"They held their weight pretty good today."

Players who weren't starting at the beginning of the year stepped up when given the opportunity.

Down three preseason offensive line paved the way for 178 rushing yards, and young players on defense helped the Tar Heels continue the resurgence on that side of the ball.

"Regardless of who wears his jersey or not, Mack's with us," Switzer said. "We're going to honor him with our

Hollins looked at Howard and said something he'd never said before — "Bro, I starters, the reserves on the love you, and I appreciate you."

said.

play."

Nothing else had to be

"It really felt good to hear him say those words," Howard

"Because he don't ever say

@loganulrich sports@dailytarheel.com

WILSON

FROM PAGE 1

through and update the electrical system and all the outlets and everything, and probably put in a good sound system so that there can continue to be lectures and even some concerts there," Michalak said.

Other renovations might include upgrading the book shelves to act as exhibit cases for different book themes. Michalak said the end goal is to make the reading room as perfect as possible.

The remaining $4 million will create the Fearrington Special Collections Library Fund for the library to use as needed.

Michalak said the fund will be used to acquire items the library may feature in the future, such as special collections and journals.

"(The funds) are a vital importance because students' and researchers' needs continually change and there could be students who come to the library and use an array of correspondence ... it's so important that the library has the funding to support students and researchers as they examine a given subject,"

Michalak said.

Changes to Wilson Library will begin after Fearrington officially donates the money to the library after the New Year.

university@dailytarheel.com

ASSAULT

FROM PAGE 1

in the office. She also helped coordinate a half-day training program for students from both UNC and Duke's honor systems on how to proceed with sexual assault cases trainings that ended in 2006.

When trainings started back up several years later, they were part of a larger training session instead of standalone sessions.

Jon McCay, the student attorney general from 2011 to 2012, said that although sexual assault cases were rare in the honor system, they were unlike any other student misconduct issue.

"There was a level of intensity and emotion involved you wouldn't find in your student misconduct or academic integrity cases, which elevated both the skill and tax that were required on the part of the council," McCay said. Even when students were trained, Manning said she felt students were overall ill-equipped to deal with these cases. She said in some instances, survivors of sexual assault sat on hearing panels for sexual assault cases.

"It's emotionally grueling," she said. "I think it's even harder when you're 20 and it hits a little closer to home because you're talking about your peers."

Manning said she heard increasing calls from students to remove sexual assault cases from the Honor System before she left her position in 2012. But the biggest call for change came from the Department of Education.

In April 2011, the Department of Education issued its Dear Colleague Letter, reiterating schools' obligations under Title IX. Manning said the letter strongly implied that student honor systems making decisions about sexual assault on campus was inappropriate.

"College administrators read that and there was a collective, 'Oh shit," Manning said. "None of us were in the clear — no school was in compliance, no one."

"These cases are not appropriate for the honor system," she said. "They never were, they never should have been." In response to the Dear Colleague Letter, UNC created an interim policy on sexual assault that ultimately relieved the Honor Court of its obligation to hear cases involving sexual assault.

Joe Cohn, the legislative and policy director at the Foundation for Individual Rights in Education, has criticized the letter because it mandates a "preponderance of evidence" standard as opposed to the "clear and convincing" standard many universities had been using, lowering the threshold for the accused to be found responsible.

Under "preponderance of evidence," even a 50.01 percent certainty can mean the accused is found responsible.

Cohn said having such a low threshold for conviction in an atmosphere that is very politicized leaves room for many errors, which can threaten the right to a fair process on both sides.

He said that ideally universities would fully dedicate their resources to the prevention and aftermath of sexual assault instead of adjudicating cases.

"College administrators read that and there was a collective, 'Oh shit.'"

Melinda Manning Former assistant dean of students

But since they are responsible for adjudication, Cohn said, universities should make the process as fair as possible for both sides.

When Manning and four former students filed a complaint against UNC for its handling of sexual assault cases in early 2013, it became clear to students like 2013-2014 Student Body President Christy Lambden that the university needed to make a change.

As president, Lamdben worked with a student task force to recommend policy changes to the University, as well as the official task force that analyzed the interim policy, Title IX obligations and the Dear Colleague Letter to create UNC's current policy, which took effect in August 2014.

"The definitions in the new policy are a lot clearer and more defined than they were in the old policy — they provide really set parameters,"

Lambden said. He said despite positive changes and more encouraging reporting numbers the University needs to continue to improve how it deals with sexual assault. "I think the University is always looking to strive and improve and perfect the process," he said. "I don't think they would ever say they've got it completely right."

@yayjennic enterprise@dailytarheel.com

On the wire: national and world news

>>> Under fire in Mosul, Islamic State hits back

(TNS) IRBIL, Iraq — With an Iraqi government-led offensive underway to oust Islamic State from the northern city of Mosul, militants Friday staged an attack in the oil hub of Kirkuk designed to divert forces from the frontlines, officials said. More than 60 civilians were killed in attacks in Kirkuk, about 95 miles south of Mosul, and the death toll was expected to rise as security forces battled the militants in residential areas late into the night. Also, a missile strike at a Shiite shrine outside the city late Friday killed at least 15 women and wounded about 50, according to Hassan Barham, an official with one of Kurdistan's main political parties, the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan.

Ali Husseini, a local spokesman for the Badr Shiite militia, said the attack struck a gathering of female mourners. Women could be heard shrieking in video uploaded by activists.

Ali Dalagi, an Iraqi army spokesman, said the strike came from a plane, and that the army was investigating.

Massive cyberattack blocks popular websites

(TNS) LOS ANGELES The Department of Homeland Security and the FBI are investigating a massive cyberattack that stopped or slowed access to Twitter, Spotify, Amazon and other sites Friday by targeting a firm responsible for routing internet traffic their way.

Dyn, a New Hampshire

internet services company, reported early Friday that a large-scale attack temporarily overwhelmed its servers. Hours later, the company said, service was back to normal, but around midday, Dyn again said it was under attack. In the early afternoon, Dyn said it was investigating "several attacks," which were "resolved" around 6 p.m. Eastern time.

Dyn links web addresses to specific numeric codes, called IP addresses, that computers use to communicate with each other. rely on Dyn as a go-between, the effect was widespread.

Users reported outages and slowdowns at sites including PayPal, Github, Netflix, The New York Times, The Boston Globe and Vox Media, among others.

Obama administration officials have determined the outages were the result of a malicious attack, according to a federal law enforcement official speaking on the condition of anonymity to discuss internal assessments.

AT&T clinches $85 billion deal for Time Warner

(TNS) LOS ANGELES - AT&T has reached a deal to buy Time Warner Inc. for $85.4 billion — a blockbuster marriage that would transform the telephone company into the nation's largest entertainment company and a major force in Hollywood.

The agreement, which was hammered out at breakneck speed and announced by the two companies Saturday afternoon, accelerates the wave of consolidation sweeping through the telecommunications and media industries. AT&T agreed to pay $107.50 a share to Time Warner investors in a cash and stock deal approved unanimously by both boards, the companies said.

"Premium content always wins," said Randall Stephenson, AT&T chairman and chief executive.

South Africa quitting international court

(TNS) JOHANNESBURG — South Africa said Friday it will withdraw from the International Criminal Court, raising fears of an African exodus from a tribunal established to prosecute the worst  $\,$ crimes against humanity.

Human rights activists quickly expressed dismay that South Africa's governing African National Congress, known for its iconic struggle against apartheid, had rejected the court and its central tenet that no matter how powerful the perpetrators of the worst abuses, they could still face international justice.

Simon Adams from the New York- and Genevabased Global Center for the Responsibility to Protect tweeted that it was "a terrible decision for South Africa."

"This decision strengthens the hand of mass atrocity perpetrators everywhere and lengthens the dark shadow of impunity," he said. Adams said the struggle against apartheid in South Africa had been a global one, adding that South Africa's former President Nelson Mandela had placed human rights at the center of his country's foreign policy when he was leader.

DTH Classifieds

Line Classified Ad Rates

Private Party (Non-Profit) Commercial (For-Profit)

25 Words .......$20/week Extra words ...25¢/word/day Extra words ...25¢/word/day Extra words ...25¢/word/day

To Place a Line Classified Ad Log Onto www.dailytarheel.com/classifieds or Call 919-962-0252 BR = Bedroom • BA = Bath • mo = month • hr = hour • wk = week • W/D = washer/dryer • OBO = or best offer • AC = air conditioning • w/ = with • LR = living room Deadlines

Line Ads: Noon, one business day prior to publication Display Classified Ads: 3pm, two business days

EXTRAS: Box: $1/day · Bold: $3/day Announcements

NOTICE TO ALL DTH CUSTOMERS

Deadlines are NOON one business day prior to publication for classified ads. We publish Monday thru Friday when classes are in session. A university holiday is a DTH holiday too (i.e. this affects deadlines). We reserve the right to reject, edit, or reclassify any ad. Please check your ad on the first run date, as we are only responsible for errors on the first day of the ad. Acceptance of ad copy or prepayment does not imply agreement to publish an ad. You may stop your ad at any time, but NO REFUNDS or credits for stopped ads will be provided. No advertising for housing or employment, in accordance with federal law, can state a preference based on sex, race, creed, color, religion, national origin, handicap, marital status.

ETHAN BAECHTOLD AND CAVALIER Open for Adam Anderson at the Open Eye Cafe October

Child Care Wanted

AFTERNOON CHILD CARE We need child care 3:45 until 6:45 M, W Th in our home in Hillsborough. Our son is fun loving and has Down Syndrome. $14 / hour. Call mom at 919 265 9714. Thanks!

Place a DTH Classified! www.dailytarheel. com/classifieds

For Rent

FAIR HOUSING

this newspaper is subject to the Federal Fair Housing Act of 1968 which makes it illegal to advertise "any preference, limitation, or discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, handicap, familial status, or national origin, or an intention to make any such preference, limitation, or discrimination." This newspaper will not knowingly accept any advertising which is in violation of the law. Our readers are hereby informed that all dwellings advertised in this newspaper are available on an equal opportunity basis in accordance with the law. To complain of discrimination, call the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Develop-ment housing discrimination hotline: 1-800-669-9777.

FOR RENT IN CHAPEL HILL: Newly construct ed 4BR/3BA house, 109 Cole St., $2,500/mo; 3BR/2BA house, 601 Morgan Creek Rd., $1,700/mo; 2BR/1BA house, 115 Cole St., $900/mo. All have DW, stove, refrigerator, W/D, parking, wood floors. Call 919-309-6756

MERCIA RESIDENTIAL PROPERTIES: Now showing and leasing properties for 2017/18 school year. Walk to campus, 1BR-6BR

Help Wanted

UNC STUDENTS: Need strong, reliable person to help with yard and housework. Experience a plus. Must be able to follow instructions and work independently. References required. Flex ible schedule. Great for students. $12/hr. 919

Help Wanted

Want to earn extra money??

We have positions available immediately, no experience necessary - you just need to be excited about coming to work and helping others! Various shifts available 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Entry-level pay starting up to $11 per hour. Visit us at https://rsiinc. applicantpro.com/jobs/!

GYMNASTICS INSTRUCTOR: Chapel Hill Gymnastics has full time and part-time positions available for energetic, enthusiastic instruc-tors. Applicants with knowledge of gymnastics terminology and progression skills preferred, must be available 2-4 days/wk. 3:30-7:30pm, ne weekends. Send a resume to hr@chapel-

STUDENT NEEDED FOR part time yard work. 919-942-5746 dougday103@gmail.com

LOST & FOUND ADS RUN FREE IN DTH CLASSIFIEDS!

Help Wanted

AFTERSCHOOL COUNSELORS NEEDED

Counselors needed for fun and engaging afterschool program at the Chapel Hill-Carrboro YMCA. Great opportunity to work with elementary aged students leading active and creative programming in the afternoon. Hours are 2-6pm on weekdays. Please apply online at link provided on dailytable com/cliassifieds on link provided on dailytarheel, com/classifieds or contact Youth Director Nick Kolb (nick.kolb@ YMCATriangle.org, 919-987-8847) with ques-

ONLINE COMMUNITY MANAGER Open position at thriving CH Edtech startup ReadTheory org to manage online community relations Must have excellent writing and critical think ing skills. Must be disciplined, courteous, and service oriented. Starting at $12/hr. Email support@readtheory.org. Serious inquiries only.

Rooms

5 BR 2. 5 BA well furnished home near UNC fenced backyard, sunroom, internet, Netflix on busline. $595 per bedroom or $2995 entire home. 919-923-4280

Travel/Vacation

BAHAMAS SPRING BREAK $189 for 5 DAYS. All prices include: Round trip luxury party cruise, accommodations on the is choice of 10 resorts. Appalachia

RECYCLE ME PLEASE!

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Today is an 8 -- Over the next three

prior to publication

If October 24th is Your Birthday... What do you want this year? Consider possibilities. Plan and budget for long-term goals. Ritual and symbolism satisfy. One door closes as another opens with your career this spring, before romance flowers anew. Domestic changes next autumn lead to

To get the advantage, check the day's rating: 10 is the easiest day, 0 the most challenging

HOROSCOPES

Aries (March 21-April 19) Today is an 8 -- Focus on financial planning over the next three weeks, with Mercury in Scorpio. Talk about family funds. Collaborate to manage extra work today and tomorrow. Share with love. Taurus (April 20-May 20) Today is an 8 -- Communication thrives with your partner over the next three weeks, with Mercury in Scorpio. Listen

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Today is a 6 -- Discuss your work, health and fitness with experts to grow stronger over the next three, weeks with Mercury in Scorpio. Enjoy domestic pleasures today and tomorrow.

and compromise. Stay in close contact. Romance blossoms, especially today and

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Today is an 8 -- Your thoughts turn toward fun and romance, with Mercury in Scorpio. For about three weeks, it's easier to express your feelings, and you're exceptionally creative, especially today weeks, fix up your place with Mercury in Scorpio. You're inspired; revise the budget today and tomorrow. Get creative with color, form and function. Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today is an 8 -- Writing, recording and publishing projects come together over the next three weeks, with Mercury and the Sun in Scorpio. Push for a personal goal over the next two days

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Today is a 6 -- Use creativity to boost ncome over the next three weeks, with Mercury in Scorpio. Profit from com munications. Consider strategies today and tomorrow. Stay in the conversation. Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
Today is a 9 -- It's easier to make personal decisions, with Mercury in your sign for about three weeks. Reinvent and share your vision. Inspire your team, especially over the next two days.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Today is a 7 -- Complete old projects and plan what's next over the next three weeks, with Mercury in Scorpio. Professional op-portunities have your attention today and tomorrow. Commune with your inner muse Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today is a 6 -- For about three weeks, with

Mercury in Scorpio, team projects coalesce. Communication oils the machinery. Plan a trip over the next few days. If you can get Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Today is a 7 -- Plan your next career move. Make bold professional choices over the

Do numbers with your partner, especially today and tomorrow.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) Today is an 8 -- Invite someone special on an adventure over the next two days. For about three weeks, with Mercury in Scorpio, travel and discovery beckons. Strengthen next three weeks, with Mercury in Scorpio.

loving bonds. (c) 2016 TRIBUNE MEDIA SERVICES, INC.

STARPOINT STORAGE NEED STORAGE SPACE? Hwy 15-501 South & Smith Level Road (919) 942-6666 UNC Community SERVICE DIRECTORY

UNC's 10th ACC win sets record mark

NORTH CAROLINA SYRACUSE

By Chris Trenkle Staff Writer

Composure and execution described the No. 8 North Carolina volleyball team's 3-0 sweep (25-21, 25-12, 25-21) of Syracuse on Sunday for UNC's 10th consecutive win.

The Tar Heels (18-2, 10-0 ACC) stayed calm during a tough first set before breaking the door open in the second against the Orange (5-15, 4-6 ACC) and finishing strong in the last set.

With the win, the Tar Heels set a record for the best conference start in program history.

UNC dominated at the net thanks to redshirt sophomore Taylor Leath and redshirt junior Taylor Fricano.

"I was just trying to find open court and trying to be smarter with my swings," Leath said.

"By swinging higher and having more angles and switching it up a lot, by not going to the same spot every time.

Leath certainly found those spots for UNC on Sunday, finishing tied with a game-high 12.5 points.

In the third set, the Tar Heels were down 19-15 before a huge spike by Leath turned the momentum of the set in UNC's favor.

Leath's kill sparked a 10-2 run for the Tar Heels, who pulled away from Syracuse to win the set - and ultimately the match.

Fricano said depth has been key in maintaining UNC's 10-game winning streak.

"This team has a lot of depth, and we have a lot of people off the bench that can help us out a lot," Fricano said.

"We have those people off the bench that are supportive and ready to go in and crush it if needed.

The Tar Heels didn't hesitate to use that depth, employing 12 different players compared to the Orange's

"We have a lot of people off the bench that can help us out a lot."

Taylor Fricano Junior opposite hitter

With UNC the only undefeated team remaining in the conference, Head Coach Joe Sagula said the homecourt environment inside of Carmichael Arena made it easier for the Tar Heels to continue their success.

"I think it was great to be at home and knowing that we did not have people screaming against us," Sagula said.

"I told the team basically we have to learn how to dig ourselves out of a bad situation."

North Carolina plays its next four games on the road, starting with Virginia Tech on Friday. The Tar Heels then play No. 12 Florida State — the second-ranked team in the conference — on Nov. 6

Redshirt sophomore Taylor Leath (43) goes up to spike the ball over Syracuse defenders on Sunday.

before finishing the season at home with six conference games.

But Sagula said the Tar Heels still have some work to do before hitting the road again to take on tougher competition ahead of postseason play.

"I think what we are trying to do is learn how to be sharp two matches on the weekend," Sagula said. "We weren't as sharp today as I thought we were on Friday, but (the Orange) pose different chal-

we've found the perfect corridor for the Demogorgon to burst through), the hall leading to the bathroom has flickering lights and the buzz

It's hard to tell if Swain's bathroom makes you vulner-lenges, including being very physical at the net.

"And it caught us off guard, so we have to learn how to be more disciplined with that."

> @ctrenkle2 sports@dailytarheel.com

We found the best and worst bathrooms at UNC for you

Shoutout to South Building for being the best at UNC.

By Lauren Farrington Staff Writer

We all know that at UNC, no two bathrooms are alike. Just like the student body, the bathrooms have some things in common but are all unique in some way. Going into the right bathroom can make or break your day. I'm here to help you out. Here's your guide to the best and worst bathrooms on UNC's campus.

South Building

10/10, gold star, hearts 'n'

South Building's bathroom simply feels like the best. Maybe because it's in Carol Folt's office building, and the air she breathes circulates in the A/C and you get a contact high off being near the chancellor of the best school in America. Maybe.

The bathroom is on the third floor, but even if you're out of breath when you reach it, it's OK. There's a bench you can sit on for 10, 20 or 30 minutes reading the provided magazines, assumedly only Carol Folt's favorites — InStyle was on top.

Impeccably clean, there are two stalls and four different scents of Glade air freshener to choose from. On a tray is toilet paper — live off campus?

steal yourself a roll (ha ha, jk, iokes) — and a can of Gillette Satin Care Sensitive Skin Shave Gel, just in case you have a last-minute interview and the inevitable happens: You forget to shave your legs.

Not to mention there's a full-length mirror on the back of the door. Oh, Carol: UNC's mirror-selfie queen since '13.

Carolina Union

The main floor of Carolina Union has great bathrooms for location.

The hook on the back of the stall door is strong enough to hold a backpack full of "The Norton Anthology of English Literature," a complete collection of Shakespeare and an extra change of shoes, so you don't have to feel like a Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle while you pee with a pack on your back.

Most importantly, you can ask someone to save your spot in the 20-person line at Alpine Bagel, so when you get out of the bathroom, you might be at the front...hopefully.

Swain Hall

Swain Hall has a bathroom on the first floor, but from experience, it is more common to use the bathrooms on the basement level.

Perfect for shooting a scary movie or TV show (someone contact "Stranger Things," able and uneasy, or if it's the midterm in your next class, but why add to the hysteria?

of white noise.

Davis Library

Stay away.

Davis Library's first-floor bathroom is the aging Henry VIII of bathrooms: can't get its crap together. It's always dirty. It smells bad. It makes us sad.

We give our all to this library at 1 a.m. Our brains are mushy but full of new knowledge, and we need encouragement and stamina to trudge on. So, we drink water and coffee and energy drinks to stay awake.

All of a sudden, we realize that we have to pee.

We sleepily walk to the back of Davis and when we open the bathroom door, we're slapped in the face with nasty.

Ultimately, though, it's our fault that the bathroom is gross. We have to remember to throw our paper towels away in the trash and our toilet paper in the toilet, even if we are half-awake.

~Be the change you wish to see in your public bath-

> @laur_wren04 swerve@dailytarheel.com

Wednesday, October 26 Great Hall, FPG Union 10 a.m. - 2 p.m

The Daily Tar Heel

#HeelsHousing heelshousing.com

dailytarheel.com/classifieds find a job · buy a couch · sell your car

games 🙃

9

4

Level: 1 2 3 4

4 8

Complete the grid so each row, column and 3-by-3 box (in bold borders) contains every digit 1

	6	8	3								S	iol	uti	ic
		5		9		2		4					t p
		4	2		8	5			8	7	1	6	4
		1		4		8			2 5	3 9	6 4	8 3	7
					2	4	5		9	4 8	3 2	5 4	8 9	1
									7	6	5	1	2	1
_									4	5	7 8	9	6 3	Ľ
	1	2			3		6		3	1	9	7	5

TRIBUNE

to 9. on to uzzle

	Ø	/	1	b	4	9	3	2	5
1	2	3	6	8	1	5	4	9	7
	5	9	4	3	7	2	8	1	6
	9	4	3	5	8	7	2	6	1
	1	8	2	4	9	6	7	5	3
	7	6	5	1	2	3	9	4	8
	4	5	7	2	6	8	1	3	9
	6	2	8	9	3	1	5	7	4
	3	1	9	7	5	4	6	8	2

Pink cups and dogs

He's Not Here has turned their famous Blue Cups pink for breast cancer research. See pg. 5 for story.

Rounding up research UNC researchers used animated aliens to study kids' understanding of emotion. See pg. 7 for story.

The twins are alright

Men's soccer players Walker and Tucker Hume are working in sync on the field. See pg. 7 for story.

Big team, big rings ...

Elijah Hood got engaged Friday and had a great game on his fiancee's birthday. See pg. 10 for story.

Los Angeles Times Daily Crossword Puzzle

63 Dad, to grandpa

49-Across 66 Cutoff point

Place'

70 Sets free

67 C to C. in music

64 Ideal party thrower described by the first words of 17-, 27- and

68 Richard of "A Summer

69 Org. with a PreCheck Program

71 Facts and figures

Down 1 Electric guitar effect

2 Letter-shaped beam
3 __ Bora: Afghan region
4 Scrooge's "Nonsense!"
5 Worry about something,

slangily 6 Cloak-and-dagger org. 7 Animated bug film

8 Bar mitzvah toast 9 What fries are fried in 10 Ukr. or Lith., once

11 Actor Foxx 12 Freeway off-ramps (C)2012 Tribune Media Services, Inc. All rights reserved.

50 "... near and my

"out"

52 Surprise win 53 Bright signs

54 Press conference format, briefly

58 Degs. for choreographers 60 Old Roman robe

61 Future D.A.'s exam 62 Sicilian volcano

64 D.C. big shot

51 Assailed verbally, with

1 "Handle 5 Burns with hot liquid 11 Ex-Florida governor

Bush 14 "__ B Ben Adhem" 14 ___ Ben Adnem 15 Reacts facially to a bad joke, say 16 Chopping tool 17 What snowbirds seek in winter 19 "Mamma 20 Mecca's peninsula

21 Heat in a microwave 22 Indy service areas 23 "Do __ others . 25 Most doubtful

27 Ready-to-send correspondence 31 Network with regular pledge drives 32 D-Day French city 33 Steak orders 37 Calm under pressure

39 Since Jan. 1, in accounting 41 Folksy account 42 "Bewitched" witch 45 Buster

Brown's dog 48 Jamaican music genre 49 Liqueur holder

52 Last word of a verbally cited passag 55 "Doctor Zhivago' heroine 56 Potpie veggies 57

Hydroelectric 59 Quik maker

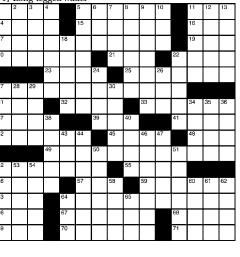

13 Savage sort 18 Tipplers 22 Cockpit figure 24 "I'm __ human" 26 Little lie 27 First fairy tale word 28 Second fairy tale word 29 Trampled (on)

John 34 Mission Control org. 35 Benevolent fraternal

30 '80s-'90s crime boss

group 36 Salty expanses 38 Center of power 40 Bygone phone feature 43 Pal of Piglet

44 Radio City Music Hall design style 46 Cursory looks 47 Long-legged

SportsMonday

SCOREBOARD

WOMEN'S SOCCER: UNC 3, Syracuse 1
FIELD HOCKEY: UNC 5, Liberty 1
SWIMMING AND DIVING: UNC men's and women's teams lose at Tennessee
Follow us on Twitter @DTHSports

'It was not a typical day for Carolina'

Tar Heels fall to fifth seed in ACC with loss to Blue Devils

FIELD HOCKEY

DUKE NORTH CAROLINA

> By John Bauman Staff Writer

With under one minute remaining, the No. 4 North Carolina field hockey team lined up for a penalty corner.

The Tar Heels (13-4, 3-3 ACC) had already lost the game, trailing Duke (14-2, 5-1 ACC) by three goals with the clock rapidly approaching zero. But junior Gab Major organized the offense in one final attempt to salvage a goal out of the afternoon.

The ball zigzagged across the field and made it to senior back Kristy Bernatchez. She lined up the shot — a good one with pace — but Blue Devil goalie Sammi Steele made a brilliant diving save. It was her eighth of the afternoon, protecting the shutout in Duke's 3-0 win to clinch an ACC regular-season title.

North Carolina's offense isn't used to days like this.

"You just try to get a lot of shots, put their defense under pressure and hope that the first will fall, and the others will come," said redshirt senior Emma Bozek.

"Our focus is to put this game behind us and move forward and look to get better."

Karen Shelton UNC field hockey coach

"And the first one didn't fall today. But we have to get back to the drawing board this week."

The shots came — North Carolina outshot the Blue Devils 11-10 on Saturday — but three of Duke's shots found the back of the cage while none of the Tar Heels' did.

"It was not a typical day for Carolina," Head Coach Karen Shelton said. "We defended poorly, started slowly, I think too carefully. I think we were afraid to lose as opposed to trying to win the game. But it's unusual for us to have a score like that — we don't like it one little bit."

On Sept. 25, North Carolina beat Duke 3-2 in Chapel Hill in a nonconference matchup. Senior captain Julia Young said the fact that Saturday's game was on the road and that Duke adjusted after the last game were the differences.

"I think they just played a lot tougher than we did, and I think they learned from last game they had to be a little bit tougher on us," she said.

"So I think they looked at our strengths and tried to get rid of them. And I think they did."

With the loss, UNC earned the fifth seed in the ACC Tournament, which starts Nov. 3 in Winston-Salem. A win against Duke would have given the Tar Heels the No. 1 overall seed and an ACC regular-season championship, but the difference in seeding adds to the sting of the loss against a close rival.

DTH/SARAH DWYER

Junior Gab Major (27) attempts to get the ball away from three Duke defenders. The Tar Heels fell to the Blue Devils 3-0.

"We just gotta do some soul searching and look to improve," Shelton said. "I still think we are one of the teams, as is Duke, that can win a national championship. So our focus is to put this game behind us and move forward and look to get better."

It's Bozek's job as a senior captain to rally her teammates after a tough loss. She said North Carolina can still accomplish a lot of its goals if the team keeps its belief.

"We can still be one of the contenders for an ACC title, we can still be one of the contenders for an NCAA title," she said.

"We just have to go back, work hard over the next few weeks and believe that we can."

@bauman_john sports@dailytarheel.com

Hood's 100-yard day caps off unforgettable weekend

The junior rushed for 107 yards and a score against Virginia.

By Christian Phillips

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VIRGINIA — No matter the result of Saturday's game against Virginia, it was going to be a weekend North Carolina junior running back Elijah Hood would always remember.

The day before the Tar Heels (6-2, 4-1 ACC) took the field in Charlottesville, Virginia, he proposed to his girlfriend, Shelby Valeriano.

Hood got to celebrate his engagement by facing the Cavaliers (2-5, 1-2 ACC) — a team he rushed for 101 yards and scored two touchdowns against in last year's 26-13 win in Chapel Hill

If that was not enough cause for celebration, Saturday also marked his fiancee's birthday.

So when Hood ended the day with 107 rushing yards and a touchdown — only his second 100-yard rushing game of the season — in No. 21 UNC's 35-14 win on Saturday, it was just the icing on the cake for the junior running back.

"I felt pretty good out there hitting the holes and making my reads," Hood said. "It felt pretty smooth. At that point I knew I was feeling pretty good, so I was just saying, 'Keep feeding it."

For Hood, this year has been somewhat disappointing on the field.

Coming into Saturday's contest — his second game back after sitting out with a concussion against Virginia Tech — the tailback from Charlotte had totaled 369 yards on 80 carries with only four touchdowns in six games.

Those were not the types of numbers Hood or anyone else was expecting this late in the season.

"It can get kind of frustrating when you know you want to be at a certain level, and you're not being productive at that level that you kind of expect for yourself," Hood

Everyone around the program knew the junior was too talented to stay in a funk all season.

So they did what they could to keep him upbeat.

"The coaches and my teammates have done a great job of just trying to keep me up and keep me positive," Hood said. "Just telling me, 'It's coming, it's coming, just keep working.'

"And I listened to them, and I guess that game finally came."

His breakout game could not have come at a more opportune time for the Tar Heels. Redshirt senior Jon Heck missed the game with an injury, adding another blow to an offensive line that was already down several starters.

But Hood's hard running in key thirddown situations earned an inexperienced line a positive review from Coach Larry Fedora after the game.

"We ran the ball pretty well," Fedora said.
"So I'm gonna say — just in the little bit that I saw — I thought they did a nice job."

His performance also gave everyone a look at how well UNC can play when everyone is playing up to their potential. With the bye week to get healthy, the Tar Heels could be formidable heading into the last month of the regular season.

regular season. And Hood will play a large part in that.

"They've got to respect our run," said senior receiver Ryan Switzer. "Obviously we're at our best as an offense when him and T.J. (Logan) are running well and getting big chunks of yards."

After the memorable weekend that he had, the relief on Hood's face was clear.

"We were finally able to get the whole gang back together." Hood said "It feels like a long."

back together," Hood said. "It feels like a long time coming."

 $@\mathit{CPhillips2020} \\ sports@\mathit{dailytarheel.com} \$

UNC defense shuts out ACC shots leader Acuna

MEN'S SOCCER

NORTH CAROLINA 2 VIRGINIA TECH 0

By David Adler Staff Writer

With just 0.5 goals allowed per game, the No. 3 North Carolina men's soccer team had no reason to change its defensive scheme ahead of Saturday's matchup with No. 23 Virginia Tech.

It didn't matter that the Tar Heels were hosting ACC shot leader Marcelo Acuna, whose nine goals are third in the conference. While the Tar Heels knew Acuna's talent, they were confident rather than changing their game for one player.

"We talk about guys before the game and talk about what they favor," said senior captain Colton Storm. "We didn't have any game plan with a double team; it was just making sure you do your job to make everyone else's easier."

With everybody doing their job, North Carolina (11-2-2, 5-1-1 ACC) shut down the Hokies (9-4-3, 2-4-1 ACC) and secured a 2-0 win.

Coming into the game, Acuna averaged 4.4 shots per game. But he only had two against UNC, as he struggled to find any room to operate.

"He's a very good player, obviously, and you can't take your eye off him for a second or he'll pounce," Coach Carlos Somoano said. "I think our backs defended exceptionally

DTH/LACHLAN MCGRATH

Goalie James Pyle (1) tips a kick away from the goal. The redshirt sophomore had three saves against Virginia Tech on Saturday.

well."

With such a reliable defensive unit, Somoano remains steadfast in his approach regardless of the opponent.

"Our system is our system," he said. "It's not specialized for any one player. But when we're sharp and executing what we're trying to do, it's effective against anybody."

Although North Carolina secured a shutout, the defense was tested throughout the first half as the Virginia Tech midfielders controlled possession and aggressively delivered balls into the box.

Despite the early struggles and Virginia Tech's pressure, UNC's back line never broke.

"The way we defend, we've got 10 clean sheets in 15 games, so it's gonna be tough to score on us," said redshirt senior defender Walker Hume. "If everybody backs each other up, we work as a good unit."

Down a goal with under nine minutes remaining, Acuna finally got behind the UNC defense and had a chance for the equalizer. But while Acuna beat the defense, he couldn't beat goalkeeper James Pyle, who dove to stop the shot.

With the ball on the ground in front of the goal, Virginia Tech forward Nico Quashie sprinted in to try to score off the rebound. But Pyle secured the ball before Quashie could tie the game.

After Pyle got up from the ground, all Quashie could do was offer him a congratulatory handshake.

tory handshake.
Even though there was still time remaining, Quashie's handshake signaled the end of the game. It was as if he knew the Hokies had just squandered their best chance against a stout UNC defense.

@david_adler94 sports@dailytarheel.com

Tar Heels assert dominance in sweep of Boston College

UNC volleyball has won 21 straight against the Eagles.

By Kiley Burns Staff Writer

North Carolina was simply the better team.

The No. 8 UNC volley-ball team (18-2, 10-0 ACC) entered Friday's match with a perfect 20-0 all-time winning streak against Boston College (5-15, 0-10 ACC).

With a sweep of the Eagles, the Tar Heels continued to prove they are a force to be reckoned with in the ACC. And with the win, the Tar Heels tied the best conference start in program history (9-0).

"I think we're just trying to make a point right now and prove to the rest of the ACC that we're significantly better," redshirt senior Taylor Treacy said. "(We are) trying to win in three and win a lot more smoothly, so when we get to the Final Four, the

Elite Eight, etc., we'll be able to execute."

The smooth win came at the hands of the Tar Heels' front line. The unit helped UNC post a hitting percentage of .323 and notch 11.5 blocks to overwhelm the Eagles all night.

Eagles all night.
Redshirt junior Taylor Fricano dominated with seven of the Tar Heels' 11.5
total blocks. Her presence at the net closed off a lot of the Eagles' opportunities.

Eagles' opportunities.

"Fricano just worked really hard closing blocks tonight, so I'm excited to see those kinds of numbers," Coach Joe Sagula said. "I'll take that any time."

But Fricano's blocking only tells half of the story. Treacy's tells half of the story. Treacy's play was the most notable of the night.

"There were times when I couldn't get up, and I had a lot of confidence that it was going back to Taylor (Treacy) over here," Fricano said. "I was like, 'Yeah, that's fine. She's going to get a kill.' We had a lot of confidence in each other tonight."

The redshirt senior totaled a remarkable 15 kills with no errors for a career-high hitting percentage (.652) on Friday. She also contributed to the blocking effort, delivering three of her own.

"We were laughing about (Treacy) needing to improve her hitting percentage — she certainly did that tonight, with no errors," Sagula said.

"She completely dominated tonight. She didn't even play the last eight points. I told her we'll just take her out before she messes up."

her we'll just take her out before she messes up." Treacy's play didn't come out of nowhere. She believes the extra work she puts in during the week has given her a competitive advantage come match time.

"For me, this week just staying after practice and getting reps or coming in before was a huge part of my focus, just to have more clean contact on the ball," Treacy said.

"And it showed in the game, so I'm pretty content with how I performed."

With the Fricano and Treacy takeover at the net, there is no telling where this offense can take the Tar Heels — especially if they are only content with their performance.

sports@dailytarheel.com