Serving UNC students and the University community since 1893

dailytarheel.com Thursday, July 3, 2014 Volume 122, Issue 48

The NCAA, a criminal investigation and one last probe are searching for the root of the problem

HOW DID UNC GET HERE?

Willingham sues UNC for hostile work environment

By Bradley Saacks University Editor

Mary Willingham has filed a lawsuit against UNC, claiming the University created a hostile work environment and infringed on her first amendment rights.

The lawsuit also said UNC violated the North Carolina law that protects state employee whistleblowers from retaliation from employers. Willingham, a former student-athlete learning specialist, resigned at the end of the spring semester after meeting with Chancellor Carol Folt on April 21.

Joel Curran, the vice chancellor for communications and public affairs, said UNC is aware of the lawsuit and provided a statement on behalf of UNC.

"We respect the right of any current or former employee to speak out on important University and national issues," he said. "We believe the facts will demonstrate that Ms. Willingham was treated fairly and appropriately while she was employed at Carolina."

The lawsuit listed many examples to support Willingham's claim that UNC created a hostile work environment, including comments questioning her character made by Executive Vice Chancellor and Provost Jim Dean at a faculty meeting as well as a substantial increase in work without an increase in pay.

While Willingham could not comment on the lawsuit, her lawyer, J. Heydt Philbeck, said his client wants to be reinstated at the University without retaliation.

"She didn't want to leave in the first place," said Philbeck, an attorney with Bailey & Dixon law firm in Raleigh. "She left because of a hostile work environment and the retaliation taken against her.

Philbeck said Willingham's passion for assisting students with their academics is

SEE WILLINGHAM, PAGE 5

DTH FILE PHOTO

DTH FILE PHOTO

DTH FILE PHOTO

STARTED WITH A TWEET

Tweets from former football player Marvin Austin (above) brought the NCAA to campus in

A year later, NCAA sent notice of nine major violations to UNC related to improper benefits from agents and improper academic help from a tutor. The NCAA then imposed a one-year postseason ban and scholarship reductions on the football team in 2012.

BRINGING IN NEW FACES

Several people associated with the scandal have resigned or were fired, including associate head football coach John Blake, head football coach Butch Davis, athletics director Dick Baddour and eventually, Chancellor Holden Thorp.

Bubba Cunningham (above) replaced Baddour, Larry Fedora is the new head football coach and Carol Folt became chancellor last summer.

FOCUS MOVES TO CLASSES

The academic portion of the investigation moved to the AFAM department in 2011. In May 2012, UNC reported department chairman Julius Nyang'oro (above) and department administrator Deborah Crowder set up aberrant or irregularly taught classes made up of 58 percent athletes.

Nyang'oro retired in July 2012 and was charged with getting paid for a summer class he didn't teach.

NOT JUST ACADEMICS

UNC said AFAM was an academic problem, but former student-athlete tutor Mary Willingham (above) told media she believed the athletic department was steering athletes toward fraudulent classes to help them maintain eligibility.

In February 2014, UNC hired attorney Kenneth Wainstein to conduct another review to investigate the connection. Crowder and Nyang'oro are reportedly cooperating.

NCAA reopens investigation in academic-athletic scandal

By Pat James Sports Editor

Four years after a tweet by a former UNC football player incited the whirlwind academic scandal that has continued to plague the University, everything has come full circle. On Monday, the NCAA released a statement announcing its intention to reopen the 2011 investigation into academic misconduct

The NCAA said in a statement that the decision to reopen the investigation was the result of newfound information coming to the attention of the NCAA enforcement staff.

"After determining that additional people with information and others who were previously uncooperative might be willing to speak with the enforcement staff, the NCAA has reopened its investigation," the statement said.

The UNC football program was sanctioned with a one-year postseason ban and scholarship deductions in 2012 after the NCAA discovered evidence of impermissible benefits and academic fraud under former coach

The investigation also sparked several University reviews of the academic scandal, including further investigation into the formerly-named Department of African and Afro-American Studies (AFAM).

In 2012, UNC announced the investigation into the AFAM department, which implicated former department chairman Julius Nyang'oro and former department administrator Deborah Crowder for setting up "paper classes" that rarely or never met and

SEE NCAA, PAGE 5

LUX apartments see move-in delay for some units

LUX at Central Park announced it will not be completely done on time.

By Paige Ladisic Summer Editor

When Elisabeth McFarland signed her lease for the fall semester, she didn't consider she could be living in a hotel for the first few weeks of school.

McFarland, a junior from Chapel Hill, is planning to live in LUX at Central Park, an apartment complex under construction on a 9.13-acre site along Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard.

"My roommate and I have been looking forward to moving in since we signed in November," she said.

But McFarland said she was surprised to find out her move-in could be delayed.

Future residents received an email on Friday from Brandon Isley, general manager of the apartment complex, announcing LUX will not be completely done on time and all residents will not be able to move in before school starts. The move-in date for new LUX residents was Aug. 17.

Isley could not be reached for

Travis Vencel, the vice president of development for Trinitas, LUX's corporate office, said the email was mostly a precaution — he said most units will be done on time and available for move-in on Aug. 17, but some units will not be ready as scheduled.

We expect to move some people in on time, and we expect that some people will be late," Vencel said.

According to the email, residents will be able to move into their apartments within two to three weeks of the beginning of the fall semester. Residents will move into their unit as soon as it is move-in ready.

"We don't have the ability to say which units will be done and which will not," Vencel said.

Causing a delay

"We had a very rainy, wet winter for Chapel Hill," Vencel said. "We don't expect snow in Chapel Hill."

Along with the weather, Vencel cited permitting at the state level and trouble with inspections and mapping as reasons for the delay.

"This is the first time we have delivered late like this," he said. "It does happen. You start a construction project 18 months ago with a schedule showing you finishing exactly on time, but there's always the risk that you're going to run into these things along way."

Paul Holder, a junior from Texas, said moving in Aug. 17 would be easier for him as an out-of-state student, but he doesn't think it will be too much of an inconvenience.

"I feel like they did what they could," Holder said. "I feel like it was an unfortunate situation."

Making do

In the email, residents were given two options: they could stay in a hotel at LUX's expense or terminate their lease and find alternate housing. LUX will provide a shuttle for those staying at the hotels from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. every day, but they will not provide storage for residents' belongings.

"We're going to continue to communicate with our residents as we move forward," Vencel said.

A second email of frequently asked questions also sent to residents by Isley said those who choose to stay with LUX will be given a $150 Visa

SEE LUX APARTMENTS, PAGE 5

Legislators miss fiscal year deadline for passing state budget

Budget negotiations often continue past the deadline.

By Amy Tsai State & National Editor

To celebrate the new fiscal year Tuesday, state legislators had no finalized budget for 2014-15 and little to show for weeks of negotiations.

North Carolina operates on a biennial budget, and policy analysts have said starting a budget's second year without finalized provisions is historically common for the state.

But the state's Republicans, who seized control of both legislative chambers in the 2010 elections, had promised to avoid dragging out budget negotiations like Democrats in years past, said Rob Schofield, a spokesman for the left-leaning N.C. Policy Watch.

They've found out the same things that past leaders have found out, and that's that democracy is tough and complicated stuff," he said.

But there is no threat of a government shutdown. Last week, state budget director Art Pope issued instructions for state agencies to calculate their state funding for July with the 2013-15 budget enacted last year as a starting point.

Historical precedent

Mitch Kokai, a spokesman for the conservative-leaning John Locke Foundation, said budget deliberations almost certainly missed the fiscal year deadline under past Democratic leadership.

"The uncommon thing is to finish the budget in time before July 1," Kokai said. "I think we've gotten a little spoiled by the fact that Republicans have been able to do that in recent years."

He said state agencies and local governments can better plan their individual budgets when the legislature finalizes the state budget by July 1 — otherwise, they may have to guess the levels of state funding.

Proposals about K-12 education, such as what teachers will be paid and how many teachers can be hired, have been particularly divergent during this year's budget deliberations, Schofield said. He said he thinks the failure to reach a budget compromise by July 1, while not a tremendous failure on the Republicans' part, indicates an ideological divide within the party.

Tom Carsey, a UNC-CH political science professor, said in an email budget stalemates under one-party control are not uncommon, and N.C. Republicans have limited experience governing with unified control of the governor's office and legislature.

"Governors have to respond to the state overall, whereas legislators have to pay particu-

SEE BUDGET, PAGE 5

NUMBER OF UNC APPLICANTS 2010-14

Rising UNC application numbers have largely been driven higher by out-of-state applicants. Depending on state budget negotiations, UNC's out-of-state tuition will increase by either 11.7 or 12.3 percent. *Numbers for 2014 are preliminary.

The Daily Tar Heel

www.dailytarheel.com Established 1893 121 years of editorial freedom

PAIGE LADISIC SUMMER EDITOR MANAGING.EDITOR@DAILYTARHEEL.

BRADLEY SAACKS

UNIVERSITY EDITOR UNIVERSITY@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

JONATHAN MOYER CITY EDITOR CITY@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

AMY TSAI STATE & NATIONAL EDITOR

STATE@DAILYTARHEEL.COM MARCELA GUIMARAES ARTS & DIVERSIONS EDITOR

ARTS@DAILYTARHEEL.COM PAT JAMES SPORTS EDITOR

SPORTS@DAILYTARHEEL.COM KENDALL BAGLEY

PHOTO EDITOR PHOTO@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

KATHLEEN HARRINGTON COPY EDITOR COPY@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

TYLER VAHAN DESIGN EDITOR DESIGN@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

CORRECTIONS

- The Daily Tar Heel reports any inaccurate information published as soon as the error is discovered.
- · Editorial corrections will be printed below. Errors committed on the Opinion Page have corrections printed on that page. Corrections also are noted in the online versions of our stories.

TIPS

Contact Summer Editor Paige Ladisic at managing.editor@dailytarheel com with news tips, comments, corrections or suggestions.

Office and Mail Address: 151 E. Rosemary St. Chapel Hill, NC 27514-3539 Paige Ladisic, Summer Editor, 962-4086 Advertising & Business, 962-1163 News, Features, Sports, 962-0245 Distribution, 962-4115

One copy per person; additional copies may be purchased at The Daily Tar Heel for $.25 each. Please report suspicious activity at our distribution racks by e-mailing dth@dailytarheel.com

© 2014 DTH Media Corp. All rights reserved

WEEKLY DOSE

Kentucky Fried Cleanliness

liver Hallam was like any boy, just trying to enjoy a little Kentucky Fried Chicken with his step-mother in Newcastle, England, when the unthinkable happened. Hallam bit into his poultry only to discover a deep-fried, blue hygienic towel that could have been used to clean any number of things. Upon returning to the store hysterically crying, the step-mother, Krystal Henderson, was told to call customer service and was then offered a free meal. As if it weren't obvious enough, she probably does not want that free meal. Her poor kid didn't eat for a week because of a lost appetite, and they have sworn to never return to KFC. Clearly these people had never been to Kentucky. Did they actually expect chicken every time? Amateurs.

NOTED. Warmer climates have caused jellyfish populations to spike in most of the world's coastal ecosystems and seas.

This jellypocalypse could bring Irukandji our way, a type of box jellyfish family that apparently causes horrible pain, cramps, nausea, vomiting and the feeling of existential dread. CAN'T WAIT. QUOTED. "I think they should barbecue them and eat them."

– A San Diego University ecologist's solution to an overabundance of hippos. Colombian drug lord Pablo Escobar owned the numerous exotic animals but has been dead for two decades. Great to know the hippo cartel has kept so busy.

COMMUNITY CALENDAR

Red, White and Blue Party: Enjoy live music, kid-friendly games and activities and food at Southern Season before heading out to see the fireworks. All proceeds from food sales benefit the Share the Food Foundation. Time: 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Carrboro's July 4th Celebration: Don't miss this annual celebration in the heart of downtown Carrboro. The day kicks off with activities at Weaver

Location: 201 S. Estes Drive

Street Market, a parade at 10:50 a.m. and food, games and music on the Town Commons all day. Time: 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Location: 301 W. Main St.

SATURDAY

Horseshoe Tournament: Practice your throw in this year's tournament, and compete for a trophy at Hank Anderson Community Park. Registration is $14 per player and begins at 8:30 a.m. Time: 10 a.m. to 12 p.m.

Location: 302 N.C. Highway 54 W.

An Iced Tea Fourth: Learn the art behind brewing the perfect glass of sweet tea at Southern Season. The event is free to the public

Time: 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Location: 201 S. Estes Drive

To make a calendar submission. email calendar@dailytarheel. com. Please include the date of the event in the subject line, and attach a photo if you wish. Events will be published in the newspaper on either the day or the day before they take place.

CORRECTIONS

In Thursday's front page story "Teacher rights in question," the article mischaracterized K-12 $\,$ career status for N.C. teachers. Teachers are re-evaluated every year, but their contracts do not come up annually before the school board for re-appointment.

In Thursday's pg. 3 story, "Q&A with former UNC basketball player Danny Green," an academic adviser for the men's basketball team was misidentified. The advisor's name is Wayne Walden. In Thursday's pg. 5 story, "Title IX covers transgender students," Hilary Delbridge was misidentified. She is not a member of UNC's Sexual Assault Task Force.

The Daily Tar Heel apologizes for the errors.

- The Daily Tar Heel reports any inaccurate information published as soon as the error is discovered. • Editorial corrections will be printed below. Errors committed on the Opinion Page have corrections printed on that page. Corrections also are noted in the online versions of our stories.
- Contact Summer Editor Paige Ladisic at managing.editor@dailytarheel.com with issues about this policy.

🚮 Like us at facebook.com/dailytarheel

ESPRESSO YOURSELF

eiko Tanaka from Carrboro Coffee Roasters uses the pour-over technique to brew several different coffee roasts. Tanaka was taking part in a special coffee tasting event held Saturday afternoon at the coffee counter in Southern Season.

POLICE LOG

· Someone broke into and entered a vehicle at 301 Old Barn Lane between 5:25 p.m. and 5:50 p.m. on Sunday, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

The person broke a window, causing $50 in damage, and stole a purse containing a camera and other items valued at $451, reports state.

 Someone broke into and entered a vehicle at 100 Library Drive between 4 p.m. and 4:56 p.m. on Sunday, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

The person broke a window, causing $200 in damage, and stole a tote bag valued at $15, reports state.

• Someone broke into and entered a vehicle at 980 Martin Luther King Jr. Blvd. between 3:30 p.m. and 3:53 p.m. on Sunday, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

The person broke a window, causing $200 in damage, and stole a purse, containing a cell phone, money and other items, valued at $500, reports state.

• Someone broke into and entered a vehicle at 980 Martin Luther King Jr. Blvd. between 3:30 p.m. and 4 p.m. on Sunday, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

The person broke a window, causing $200 in damage, and stole a purse, containing a leather calendar, keys and other items, valued at $520, reports state.

 Someone broke into and entered a vehicle at 301 Old Barn Lane between 2:30 p.m. and 5:26 p.m. on Sunday, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

The person broke a window, causing $50 in damage, and stole a GPS, wallet and other items valued at $251, reports state.

Don't let keep you away from the Carolina blue skies!

Come meet a dedicated specialist who will take care of all your Allergy, Asthma & Immunology needs!

David Fitzhugh, M.D.

Evaluating & Treating the following conditions:

Allergic Rhinitis • Asthma • Food Allergies • Eczema Hives/Angioedema • Anaphylaxis • Sinus Problems Bee Sting Allergies • Chronic Cough • Drug Allergies Immunodeficiency · Recurrent Infections

SAVE $155 WITH ZERO DOWN

CHAPEL VIEW

SIGN & GET A $300 GIFT CARD

NOW A PET FRIENDLY COMMUNITY

CHAPEL RIDGE

NOW AN ALL-INCLUSIVE COMMUNITY

ELECTRICITY, CABLE TV, INTERNET, WATER, SEWER & TRASH

RATES AS LOW AS $539

CHAPELHILLSTUDENTHOUSING.COM

NC Proud Partner of UNC Athletics

⊕ & III AN AMER

Professors analyze media coverage of sex trafficking

The two UNC professors won an award for their work.

By Maura Devetski Staff Writer

UNC professors Barbara Friedman and Anne Johnston were recognized for their work on the Irina Project with the Donna Allen Award for Feminist Advocacy by the Commission on the Status of Women.

The purpose of the project, co-directed by School of Journalism and Mass Communication professors Friedman and Johnston, is to analyze the media coverage of sex trafficking and promote the fair and accurate reporting of the issue.

'We came together as researchers with an interest in gender issues," Friedman said.

Friedman said they noticed a trend of criticism in the media coverage of sex trafficking that lacked evidence, which inspired their first study of sex trafficking coverage in the media.

"We are not only talking about (sex trafficking) but linking it to how it is covered in the media," Johnston said.

Friedman and Johnston collaborate with other groups involved in the movement against sex trafficking such as survivors, social workers and law enforcement officials.

The Commission on the Status of Women within Association for Education in Journalism and Mass Communication gives the Donna Allen Award to a woman or group that exemplifies the values of Donna Allen, founder of the Woman's Institute of Freedom of the Press.

Chairwoman for the Commission on the Status of Women Spring Duvall said it was the dedication of its co-directors and the real world application of their research that set the project apart.

"All of the judges commented on (the impressiveness) of the scope of the work that Dr. Johnston and Dr. Friedman are doing," Duvall said. "(They recognized) how passionate and committed they are to the project." (This is a lot of parentheses for one quote.)

Susan King, dean of the School of Journalism and Mass Communication, said the award was an indication of how important the work of scholars is in the journalism school.

"It's an affirmation that the work (of Johnston and Friedman) has real meaning and is a challenge for others," King said.

She said Friedman and Johnston managed to identify an important issue in the country and receiving the recognition is an added bonus.

Friedman and Johnston were recently selected for the Thorp Faculty Engaged Scholars Program, which brings together faculty in the development of engaged scholarship projects, like the Irina Project.

Friedman and Johnston said they would like to develop a standing website that will be based on their research as well as contributions from other sources like journalists and healthcare professions.

"That will help us take the project where we want to go," Johnston said.

> $Contact\ the\ desk\ editor\ at$ university@dailytarheel.com.

Basketball camp provides extraordinary opportunity

DTH/KENDALL BAGLEY

Extraordinary Ventures hosted a basketball camp on Friday for young men and women with autism and other developmental disabilities.

Highlight was scrimmage at Carmichael Arena

By Alexis Barnes Staff Writer

North Carolina women's basketball coach Sylvia Hatchell stood in Carmichael Arena addressing the team prior to its big game — one it had practiced all week for.

But Hatchell was not motivating the 13 members of her UNC squad. Instead, she spoke to the 23 campers participating in the Extraordinary Ventures Spectrum Skills Camp, who were concluding the week-long camp with a scrimmage at Carmichael.

The camp, which started on June 23 and culminated with the scrimmage last Friday, allowed campers with developmental disabilities to spend a week participating in activities such as basketball drills, arts and crafts, field trips and more.

Hatchell surprised the campers after they toured the women's basketball museum in Carmichael, and proceeded to take pictures and sign autographs. She then brought out pennies for the campers to play in and passed out pom-poms for family and friends watching the scrimmage.

"She's my favorite coach in the world," said camper Stephanie Madden.

Campers scrimmaged for about an hour while Hatchell and the campers' family and friends cheered them on.

Counselors were alongside the campers to make sure they were having a safe, enjoyable time. Caroline Hatley, a camp organizer, spoke highly of the counselors.

"They're all volunteers," Hatley said. "The Extraordinary Ventures staff helps us as well. They are members of our team. And the counselors are volunteers from the community - everyone from lawyers to real estate brokers to teachers. And they volunteer their time all week and they are really spectacular people."

After the scrimmage, everyone headed to Extraordinary Ventures for a banquet to celebrate the end of the camp. Each camper received a trophy during the celebration.

Camper Javier Guzman enjoyed his first experience at the camp.

"I'm definitely going to come back," he said.

According to the press release, the camp, which is in its third year, serves as a highlight of the year for the campers. But Hatley said that is also the case for the directors and counselors.

"It feels really amazing to be able to give back to the community," Hatley said. "To work with this group of individuals is inspiring and something that we look forward to all year long."

Jaimi West, a director for the camp, said the camp inspires her and gives her the opportunity to reach out in a new way.

"I teach fifth grade, so just having a different population to work with in the community has been amazing, and it makes you appreciate little small things in life that we all take for granted," West said. "They help me appreciate a lot about life in general."

According to the press release, this year's camp had about 50 percent more campers than last year. Hatley said she hopes it continues to have success in the future.

"Our goal is to grow a little bit every year," Hatley said. "We're a little bit bigger than we were last year and hopefully will be even bigger next year."

> Contact the desk editor at sports@dailytarheel.com.

Education school receives $3 million donation

A former faculty member donated the money from his estate.

By Stephanie Lamm Staff Writer

Battling a tight budget, the UNC School of Education received some much-needed support from a former faculty member.

Donald Tarbet left $3 million of his estate to the School of Education - the largest donation in the school's history.

This gift comes at a time when we haven't been able to give faculty raises of any substance for five or six years now," said Bill McDiarmid, dean of the School of Education. "Having resources to support faculty is more critical than ever.

Tarbet, who died in 1995, left his estate in the hands of his wife of 54 years, Justeen, who died in January 2013. Donald Tarbet began teaching at UNC in 1952 and eventually became director of the Summer School in 1969.

"He wanted to make sure everything the University did supported the growth and development of his students," McDiarmid said.

Tarbet was involved in the creation of several educational programs on UNC-TV and was a passionate advocate of using technology to improve education.

Donald and Justeen Tarbet left $3 million of their estate to the UNC School of Education, the largest donation the school has ever received.

Donald Bowden, Tarbet's nephew and a professor of biochemistry and genomics at Wake Forest, said his uncle's true passion was helping his students find innovative ways to learn outside of the classroom.

"I think that fundamentally, this concept that you should be able to reach people beyond sitting in a classroom is still at the forefront of education research today," said Bowden, who helped administer the estate.

Bowden said he believes his uncle made the donation as a way to give back to the school that was a part of his life for so long. He said the Tarbets specified the fund be used for faculty support and research, and he hopes the school will use the money to do more than just pay the bills. "He would have wanted it to enhance, improve and strengthen the School of Education, and improve its standing on both a local and national level," Bowden said.

McDiarmid said they are still in the process of allocating funds in a way that ensures faculty see the greatest benefit from this gift.

"Faculty feel like the best use of the donation would be to provide graduate student support, support for faculty research projects and those developing new programs within the school," he said.

A large portion of the fund came from the sale of the family's farmland in Tarbet's home state of Missouri.

We are thrilled by this expression of generosity and enduring love that Justeen and Donald had in our School of Education," said Wendy Borman, assistant dean for external relations, in a press release. "This gift will serve as a legacy honoring their devotion to our school."

> Contact the desk editor at university@dailytarheel.com.

Chapel Hill-Carrboro YMCA merges with Triangle branch

The organizations merged after working together for a year.

By Zoe Schaver Senior Writer

New equipment and membership upgrades are on the agenda for the Chapel Hill-Carrboro YMCA, now that the organization has merged with the YMCA of the Triangle.

The two organizations were officially merged Monday after a year's cooperation under a management services agreement and extensive discussion of the impact a merger would have on YMCA members and staff.

Dabney Grinnan, chairwoman of the CHCYMCA's advisory board, said the merger will allow the board to focus on community engagement, long-term planning and fundraising, rather than day-to-day oversight and administrative management.

"We really need a board that can bring in the leaders in our community, the donors, so we can serve the town the way we want to," she said. "(YMCA of the Triangle is) a great organization — they have more resources than we do, more connections than we do and, frankly, more experience than we do."

Grinnan said the CHCYMCA does not expect any job loss as a result of the merger.

Jennifer Nelson, spokeswoman for the Triangle YMCA, said the CHCYMCA will receive a facilities upgrade, and members will be able to upgrade to Triangle Y membership, which includes access to all Triangle branches.

The CHCYMCA serves all of Orange and Chatham counties, though the name suggests the facility serves only Chapel Hill and Carrboro, Grinnan said. She said the merger will help the CHCYMCA accommodate an expected surge in population in Chatham to accompany the new Chatham Park development.

"I just see (the merger) as an incredible win over time for Chatham County," Grinnan said. "The Y is a community center, it's an affordable exercise option, and we don't turn people away."

Though a merger has been in consideration for several years, differences between the two organizations' non-discrimination policies, otherwise known as equal employment opportunity policies, were a significant roadblock.

Chapel Hill and Carrboro residents criticized the Triangle Y's policy because it did not include protections against discrimination based on sexual orientation. According to the new policy, there are now protections in place.

Nelson said the organization's policy was changed last fall, making it a non-issue. The revised policy also includes protection against discrimination based on military service and genetic information.

"Our policies evolve as our community grows and we evolve," she said.

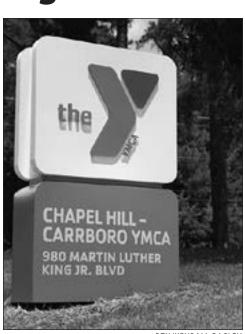

Grinnan said some Chapel Hill and Carrboro residents were concerned the merger would make the CHCYMCA less true to the character of the towns.

We had to explain the process, that while we are now part of Y of the Triangle, every Y is unique to the community it serves," she said. The process of merging included a survey of many members and staff about their vision for the CHCYMCA, Nelson said.

"Together we can do this greater thing."

Contact the desk editor at city@dailytarheel.com.

DTH/KENDALL BAGLEY

The Chapel Hill-Carrboro YMCA will merge with the Triangle branch after much debate.

DIVERECOMM

Your guide to this week's entertainment

Compiled by Marcela Guimaraes, Sarah Vassello and Jonathan Moyer

MEDIASHORTS

Matt Kivel Days of Being Wild

Days of Being Wild is a beautiful oxymoron. Matt Kivel's second album, a combination of mellow, pop-folk tracks, is anything but wild.

Hypnotic and primarily acoustic, the album has a distinct west coast vibe. The vocals are compelling, like a mix of Bon Iver's Justin Vernon and Passion Pit's Michael Angelakos' falsettos.

A simple but masterful chordal composition accentuates the elegance of this album.

"Open Road" is the standout. Picking up the pace a little, Kivel uses the seemingly out of place electric guitar to his advantage, reviving the listener halfway through the album.

While solidly enjoyable, Days of Being Wild does not inspire passion in its listeners.

FROM THE VAULT:

Gattaca

When you live in a world where your parents choose the best parts of their DNA to make you, genes matter a lot. A job interview is nothing more than a blood test and those born without alterations are doomed to menial labor.

So when the genetically unmodified Vincent Freeman (Ethan Hawke) has a dream to go to space, it takes a lot more than years of training. It takes the genes he wasn't born with.

Gattaca is a science fiction film for people who don't like science fiction. Based in the reality of cloned animals and genetically modified organisms, this future is very near to our present.

Through it, Gattaca examines what it will mean to be human and to succeed when success is printed in our blood.

EVENTSHORTS

TOWN FIREWORKS

Time: 7 p.m., Friday Location: Kenan Memorial

Stadium

Cost: FREE

With a fantastic fireworks display and plenty of entertainment for all ages, it's no wonder Chapel Hill was voted as one of America's top ten July Fourth celebrations.

The event will kick off with a watermelon-eating contest, hosted by DSI Comedy. Bull City Syndicate will also be playing live music to appeal to all tastes from danceable jazz classics to Top 40 hits.

PUNK ROCK PARTY

Time: 8:30 p.m., Friday

Location: Chapel Hill Underground

Cost: $6

If you favor a slightly different crowd, this punk-rock party is the perfect event.

Durham record label Death to False Hope Records presents a Fourth of July party that's sure to have your fists in the air.

Notable acts Invaluable, Arliss Nancy and Sad and French will take the stage with locals Almost People and UNC's own country outlaws Campfires and Constellations.

PINHOOK DOO-WOP

Time: 10 p.m., Friday

Location: The Pinhook, Durham

Cost: $5

The Layabout presents its fifth Fourth of July party with an all-night throwdown.

Get to the show early to catch the Durham Bulls Athletic Park fireworks from the Pinhook patio.

Drag Doo-wop cover band Spray & the Jays will be singing doo-wop favorites, while The Charming Youngsters bring down the house with some garage-pop jangle harmonies.

CARRBORO, CHAPEL HILL AND HILLSBOROUGH RESIDENTS WITH WEEKLY CURBSIDE RECYCLING CAN START USING THEIR NEW 95 GALLON BLUE RECYCLING ROLL CART THE WEEK OF JUNE 30!

Start using me THIS WEEK on your recycling

- Roll your cart to the curb by 7:00 a.m. on your recycling day (or put it out the night before)
- Cart should be 3 feet from cars, mailboxes, or other obstruction, with the lid opening toward
- Keep your old bins for household use or recycle them in your new cart through July 2014.
- Only recycling in carts will be collected after June 30.
- Items left on the ground or in another container will not be collected.
- Visit our website, email or call for more information!

Orange County Solid Waste Management (919) 968-2788 recycling@orangecountync.gov www.orangecountync.gov/recycling/

COME ON BABY, LIGHT MY FIRE

DTH/MATT RENN

ylder Fondaw, a summer school resident adviser in McIver Residence Hall, roasts marshmallows at a bonfire he hosted along with other RAs in the Kenan Community on Saturday evening. The bonfire was organized in order for summer residents to get to know each other.

TownHouse

Apartments at Chapel Hill

FALL 2014-2015 ALL UNITS HAVE NEW CABINETS • COUNTERTOPS • APPLIANCES

3 Bedroom:

51200

RENT IS PER MONTH NOT PERSON!

3 Bedroom Apartments Still Available!

Cable/Internet included

High Speed/10 MB internet speed 100 channels & HBO

425 Hillsborough St. • Chapel Hill, NC 27514

WALK to campus!

2014-2015 Signing Leases NOW! Make an Appointment Today!

www.TownHouseUNC.com

PRICING & AVAILABILITY SUBJECT TO CHANGE.

Colonial Arms Welcomes You...

Two Bedroom Townhouse Apartments

- Walk or bike less than a mile to campus
- Hardwood Floors
- Central Air
- Washer/Dryer
- High Speed Internet
- Cable TV

All for $880 per month

612 Hillsborough Street • Chapel Hill, NC

919.593.5100

BUDGET

FROM PAGE 1

lar attention to their districts," he said in the email. "Now, the challenge is to find common ground within the various factions within the GOP to govern."

Election year

Kokai said he thinks the upcoming November elections have factored into budget deliberations — but to what extent, he isn't sure.

"I think if you see the stalemate continue much past the Fourth of July, then the electoral factor will become a much bigger deal," he said. "Thom Tillis will not want to be sticking around in Raleigh, and other legislators who face some competition in the fall will feel the same way."

Many legislators are running unopposed in this year's elections, but those who aren't will want to return home to campaign, Kokai said.

Tillis, a Republican and the current N.C. Speaker of the House of Representatives, is running for U.S. Senate against Democratic incumbent Kay Hagan.

"He needs to get out of town," Schofield said. "The Senate knows that. They can just hold things up and hope that he'll concede to their point of view."

UNC system implications

Charles Perusse, UNCsystem chief operating officer, said legislators finalizing the budget after the new fiscal year has few effects on the system's operations.

"From our standpoint, we're really operating business as usual," he said.

"We don't spend a lot of our appropriations in July so from that standpoint, the timing helps us."

The system is hopeful the final budget will grant it flexibility in adjusting out-ofstate tuition rates originally mandated by the legislature last year, Perusse said.

If the system receives such flexibility, the out-of-state tuition increase at UNC-CH would be 11.7 percent instead of 12.3 percent, a difference of $169 dollars.

Perusse said most system schools bill students for fall semester in mid to late July, but if legislative action results in changing tuition rates, schools can send additional bills in the fall or reduce the Stephen Farmer, UNC-CH vice provost for enrollment and undergraduate admissions, said system schools have initiated their own tuition increases for most of the past decade.

"It would really surprise me to see our proposing anything approaching the increase that was imposed this year," Farmer said.

He said last winter, UNC-CH submitted its own tuition proposal based on competing universities' tuition rates, including a 2.5 percent outof-state tuition increase of about $700.

The University struggled, but succeeded, in funding financial aid to keep up with a 12.3 percent out-of-state tuition increase, he said.

'We believe both in accessibility and excellence."

> Contact the desk editor at state@dailytarheel.com.

LUX APARTMENTS

FROM PAGE 1

gift card and a laundry service will be contracted to pick up and drop off laundry at the Campus Apartments, the property manager for The Warehouse apartments, located at 316 W. Rosemary St., released a statement saying they encourage anyone looking to secure alternative housing to tour The Warehouse.

"The Warehouse has made a swift effort to house as many displaced students from (LUX) as possible," said the statement.

McFarland said she won't be as inconvenienced because she lives in town, but she plans to live in the hotel and is concerned about the shuttle. She said she thinks the hours of the shuttle will restrict a lot of students who are involved on campus.

"I'm most annoyed about the inconvenience of being away from campus," she said.

> Contact the desk editor at city@dailytarheel.com.

Q&A with frontman of Supreme Fiction

UNC alumni rockers Supreme Fiction will be putting out their new extended play (EP), Quivering Things, July 3 with a release show at the Pinhook.

Arts & Diversions Editor Marcela Guimaraes talked to frontman Daniel Lawrence about the new record, the struggles with a changing lineup and how their sound has evolved through the years.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL: Where do you guys draw inspiration

DANIEL LAWRENCE: What we're maybe commenting on or drawing on songs are pretty silly, geeky, pop culture related things. We have two songs on our upcoming EP that reference TV shows. We have pretty esoteric stuff in the lyrics, referring to actual events in history, some 800 years back.

The juxtaposition of childish, fantastical, imaginative elements and having a kind of empathetic adult perspective on those things I think is a big part that drives us.

News

DTH: What inspired you guys to come out with a new EP after three years?

DL: The short answer is that we didn't intend on it taking three years. We actually started working on the EP in late 2012, which feels like a billion years ago right now. But we sort of had a few obstacles along the way. One of them was that one of the things we were interested in exploring was the sound of what was at the time the five of us, making music together and exploring sounds.

On the first record we really mapped everything out. I think I had written a lot of parts and melodies beforehand, so we knew what every instrument was going to do before we did it. But going forward we kind of wanted to see some of what our band's installed musical personality was. That was a cool process, but it also took a lot more time and we also learned what some of the drawbacks are.

In 2013, gradually a couple of members had to leave the band, which was something amicable and the right thing for them at that time, but that was maybe a setback. That was probably the biggest reason why we're just getting to release the new EP now.

DTH: How do you think the band's sound has changed through the years?

DL: It's definitely changed a lot. Logistically speaking, I definitely played a lot more acoustic guitar when we started off. I think our arrangements were kind of more of the stacked vertical arrangements on our first album, where every instrument in the band had a very discrete role, they were all kind of doing the same thing for the entire song. In part because of personnel reasons, we were a four-piece then were a four-piece again then we were a three-piece.

We've adapted and we've grown as players too to where things aren't so linear and so vertical anymore. Instruments explore the harmonic space and step out more. I think that playing has meshed and sort of grown inward together. I think you hear that on this EP in ways that weren't there as much in the album.

DTH: What's next for the band?

DL: We are looking to obviously keep playing shows going forward. We are also finishing up recording on a new album. That's one of the advantages of taking so long to put out our EP is that I guess we did manage to do some other things. So we're finishing up our second record right now at Nightsound Studios in Carrboro. We're really excited to hopefully be putting that out in the fall of 2014, so we only required an end-of-thesemester paper.

NCAA

FROM PAGE 1

Nyang'oro is currently on trial for felony criminal fraud, but Orange County District Attorney Jim Woodall said last week he is considering dropping the charges because of Nyang'oro's cooperation in the investigation being conducted by former federal prosecutor Kenneth Wainstein was hired by the University in February to investigate academic misconduct in the AFAM depart-

When asked if he considered dropping Nyang'oro's charges due to prior knowledge of the NCAA reopening the case, Woodall said he hadn't been in contact with the NCAA.

Deborah Stroman, the director of sport entrepreneurship at UNC and a member of the Faculty Athletics Committee, said the reopening of the investigation and the Wainstein report present opportunities for the University to move on from its muddled past.

'We want to heal — we want to continue to move forward. But also, we want to speak the truth, because many of us weren't here during that time period," Stroman said. "And I think until we get the full truth, we're always going to have something to question."

> Contact the desk editor at sports@dailytarheel.com.

WILLINGHAM

FROM PAGE 1 the main reason she is seeking reinstatement. The lawsuit also calls for compensation for losses and damages, but Philbeck said it is too early to speculate what the amount would be.

John Branch, an attorney at Raleigh's Shanahan law group, said the case is unique for typical workplace lawsuits.

"What is unusual about this lawsuit is that it does not contend that the University decreased Ms. Willingham's pay or otherwise terminated her employment," he said. "Rather, she contends that the University improperly changed her job duties and functions in response to her being outspoken about the academic scandal."

Philbeck gave a straightforward answer for what he is expecting to come from the suit. "My expectation is to bring justice to (Willingham)."

 $Contact\ the\ desk\ editor\ at$ university@dailytarheel.com.

INDIVIDUAL LEASING . PRIVATE BATHROOMS WALK TO CLASS • 24-HR FITNESS CENTER • PET FRIENDLY ROOFTOP SUNDECK & LOUNGE • FREE TANNING 24HR CYBER CAFE & STUDY LOUNGE & SO MUCH MORE!

316 West Rosemary St., Chapel Hill, NC 27516 919.929.8020 • livethewarehouse.com

த்ற

- Spacious f Floor Plans
- Fireplace and Vaulted Ceilings*
- Students First Residence Life Program
- Lounge Pool and Sundeck
- On 4 Bus Lines
- New sports courts and picnic area
- Completing several renovation projects to make SunStone even better this summer!

Select Units

208 CONNER DRIVE | CHAPEL HILL, NC 27514 PHONE 888.897.0560 | WWW.SUNSTONEAPTS.COM

Student Congress allocates small sur

Members divvied up $2,500 to student organizations.

By Jane Wester Senior Writer

With fewer than ten representatives present and just $2,500 to appropriate, Student Congress's July meeting was relaxed.

Speaker Pro Tempore Peter McClelland had to overcome a few obstacles before the meeting could even begin. Deep cleaning on the upper floors of Gardner Hall forced a last-minute relocation to the basement, and until a few late arrivals trickled in, the group seemed unlikely to meet quorum.

With clerical duties complete, McClelland asked Student Body Vice President Kyle Villemain to explain how new rules for night parking will affect students.

"The second, third, fourth years are just paying their ($10.40) fee, and I believe they automatically get their permit," Villemain said. "You have to register your car, and I don't know how, logistically, that's going to happen. I would guess DPS doesn't know how that's going to happen just yet."

Villemain said the executive branch also hopes to

"I would guess DPS doesn't know how that's going to happen just yet."

Kyle Villemain,

Student Body Vice President describing the new on-campus night parking policy streamline the process of applying for and approving hardship parking, which currently involves a student committee of seven that must process about 2,000 pages of paperwork per year.

"It's a very grunt-work task, and students don't get paid for it, so it's hard to recruit the right people," he said. "We're trying to incorporate some administrative support that will take some of that load off the students."

The administrative support would likely involve a DPS representative and a student affairs representative, he said. Since the current committee is codified in the Student Code, the Executive Branch will need Congress's support to make changes.

Villemain said moving the process online would be ideal, but working to do so through ITS will take time.

Finance Committee Chairman Joshua Aristy opened the floor to representatives from student groups requesting money. The lightly populated room applauded after each funding request was approved.

"Do we have enough money to fund the full request for everybody in this room?" asked representative Elise Rosa.

With some quick calculations, Aristy said the total requested sum would indeed be lower than the $2,500 available.

extra money would total about $500, Speaker Pro Tempore Peter McClelland offered a celebratory fist-pump.

When Aristy confirmed the "Surplus!" he said.

Congress allocated the extra money to pay for more of GlobeMed's travel expenses and cords to accompany audio equipment for the comedy troupe False Profits.

Aristy reminded the representatives from student organizations that their treasurers must pass a new treasurer's

The deadline was technically July 1, but Aristy said he would be flexible, since the new test is not yet available.

"The new treasurer's test should be up in mid-July, maybe late July, maybe August. We're working on it."

Contact the desk editor at university@dailytarheel.com.

Voter mobilization targets college students

Orange County often sees low numbers in youth voter turnout.

Hannah Shaw Staff Writer

As the November elections approach, campus and state organizations hope to mobilize the youth vote — an age group with traditionally low turnout in Orange County.

According to data from the Orange County Board of Elections, voters in the 18 to 25 age group had the lowest turnouts in 2008 and 2010, which were about 9 percent and 6 percent of all voters, respectively.

In 2012, Orange County voters aged 18 to 25 had the second lowest turnout, about 18 percent of all voters compared to voters over 65, who were about 16 percent.

The N.C. NAACP, which leads weekly Moral Monday protests at the state legislative building, launched its Moral March to the Polls voter mobilization campaign last

The organization's Moral Freedom Summer program will specifically target youth voters.

"This movement has always been focused on building power in communities all across the state," said the Rev. William Barber, N.C. NAACP president in a press release. "The Moral March to the Polls and Moral Freedom Summer will deepen this work."

Leaders of college campuses' political groups also plan to rally voters for this

November's elections. UNC Young Democrats president Wilson Parker said his organization plans to pass out voter education literature

along with voter registration

cards because of new voting restrictions.

"We think there is a lack of good information, and there is ample misinformation," Parker said. "Our aim is to correct that, and that's starting with providing students with information on when and where to vote."

Peter McClelland, executive director of the N.C. Federation of College Republicans, said he thinks many young voters are disappointed with the politicians they voted for in past elections.

"People that consider themselves millennials are disenchanted now," he said. "A lot of people voted for change in 2008, and the job market is shrinking again."

McClelland said the College Republicans have learned to move ahead and adjust with each new election.

For example, he said social media has become increasingly important.

Take millennials as they are, reach them where they are, pitch the message that will be listened to — not a 30-minute policy speech, but going on social media sites," McClelland said.

Parker said the Young Democrats have learned the value of persistence.

"People that consider themselves millennials are disenchanted now."

Peter McClelland,

N.C. Federation of College Republicans

"We are going to do what we always do, which is make sure students at Carolina are registered to vote," he said. "That's going to mean some students walking around campus with clipboards a lot."

> Contact the desk editor at state@dailytarheel.com.

DTH Classifieds

Line Classified Summer Ad Rates

Private Party (Non-Profit) Commercial (For-Profit) 25 Words$8.00/wk 25 Words$13.00/week Extra words ...25¢/word/wk Extra words ...25¢/word/week

DTH office is open Mon-Fri 9:00am-5:00pm To Place a Line Classified Ad Log onto www.dailytarheel.com/classifieds or Call 919-962-0252 EXTRAS: Box Your Ad: $1/week · Bold Your Ad: $3/week BR = Bedroom · BA = Bath · mo = month · hr = hour · wk = week · W/D = washer/dryer · OBO = or best offer · AC = air conditioning · w/ = with · LR = living room Deadlines

Line Ads: Noon, Tuesday prior to Thursday issue Display Classified Advertising:

3pm, Monday prior to Thursday issue

Announcements

NOTICE TO ALL DTH CUSTOMERS

Deadlines are NOON one business day prior to publication for classified ads. We publish Monday thru Friday when classes are in session. A university holiday is a DTH holiday too (i.e. this affects deadlines). We reserve the right to reject, edit, or reclassify any ad. Acceptance of ad copy or prepayment does not imply agreement to publish an ad. You may stop your ad at any time, but NO REFUNDS or credits for stopped ads will be provided. No advertising for house ing or employment, in accordance with federal law, can state a preference based on sex, race, creed, color, religion, national origin, handicap,

Child Care Wanted

SUMMER BABYSITTER in Pittsboro for 2 boys: 5 years-old, 8 months-old. Sweet, fun wee chaps (and well mannered: "fun" NOT a euphemism for insane). Hours 8am-4pm M-F. July 21 thru August 18. $11/hr. Oldest likes crafts music, games. Youngest likes to put things in his mouth. Good times. Gmail id: dalennie.

BABYSITTER WANTED:

Seeking UNC student to care for 3 year-old boy in Carrboro starting August 11th for the entire school year, 3-4 days/wk, mostly 3-6pm but mornings needed for week of August 11th. Flexible schedule. $10-12/hr. lszpir@nc.rr.com.

SUMMER SITTER, DRIVER: Looking for responsible and reliable person to drive 3 teenagers early and late afternoons. Eventual sitting and supervision for outdoor activities. Flexibility, great driving records required. Starting in June. summer@mcdeoliveira.net.

Announcements

Child Care Wanted

BABYSITTER: Seeking UNC student to care for 7 year-old twin girls in Chapel Hill starting August 11th thru December, Tuesdays and Thursdays. 2:30-6pm. $12/hr. atoafs@yahoo.com.

For Rent

FAIR HOUSING

ALL REAL ESTATE AND RENTAL advertising in this newspaper is subject to the Federal Fair Housing Act of 1968 which makes it illegal to advertise "any preference, limitation, or dis-crimination based on race, color, religion, sex, handicap, familial status, or national origin, or an intention to make any such preference, limitation, or discrimination." This newspaper will not knowingly accept any advertising which is in violation of the law. Our readers are hereby informed that all dwellings advertised in this newspaper are available on an equal opportunity basis in accordance with the law. To complain of discrimination, call the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development housing discrimination hotline: 1-800-669-9777.

WOODCROFT 2BR/2.5BA townhouse with office loft in Oaks at Hope Valley. Quiet, safe. Southwest Dur-ham. W/D and water included. Flexible lease terms 4-12 months. $600-$1,200/mo. Deposit credit check required. 919-819-6332. tinyurl. com/902TeaguePlace.

CONDO RENTAL: Great for roommates! 2BR/2BA in Finley Forest. All appliances in-cluding W/D. Permit parking, bus service to campus, pool and tennis. $900.mo. Deposit required. No utilities. 919-233-4656.

WALK TO CAMPUS. 2BR/1BA. Fully renovated. W/D. Dishwasher. Central AC, heat. Available July or August, $925/mo. Merciarentals.com,

Announcements

The Daily Tar Heel office will be CLOSED July 4th for Independence Day

Deadlines for Thursday, July 10th Issue:

Display Ads & Display Classifieds

Monday, July 7th at 3pm

Line Classifieds -Tuesday, July 8th at 12pm

We will re-open on Monday, July 7th at 9:00am

The UPS Store™ 🗐

For Rent

1BR IN HOME APARTMENT

5 minutes to Southern Village park and ride or UNC. Peaceful wooded lot. Need car. Below market rent in exchange for pet, house sitting. Non-smoking. $675/mo. Includes utilities. Available early August. 919-632-3444.

ROOMMATE WANTED to share awesome 6BR/5BA townhouse. Hardwood floors. Large rooms, bedrooms with wall to wall closet space spacious dining room kitchen with all major appliances. W/D. On 4 free buslines.

Just minutes from campus. Conveniently located near 3 theaters, restaurants, banks, shopping, I-40, etc. Only a few left. $450/mo. per bedroom, Call or email now, 919-933-0983. spbell48@live.com AWESOME 6RR/6RA TOWNHOUSE Perfect for you and your friends. Free parking. Hardwood floors, tile kitchen, dishwash er. W/D included. Largest bedrooms in town, wall to wall closet space, built in shelving, extra storage. 5 free buslines.

Minutes from campus. No smoking, no pets, no drugs. Only 2 left. $450/mo. per bedroom. Call now! 919-933-0983, . spbell48@gmail.com. 3RR IN A FILLLY FURNISHED HOME near UNC. Perfect for graduate students. Modern kitchen, deck. $575/mo. per person. No pets. References required. Begins 8-1-2014. sharlene5meisner@gmail.com.

MCCAULEY STREET 3BR/1BA. Walk to campus. Full kitchen. W/D, parking. Available August 1 thru May 31. $1,700/mo. +utilities. Contact sduval-shave@nc.rr.com or 919-370-9467.

6BR HOUSE, short walk to campus, all hardwood floors, 3BA, large bedrooms with nice closets, laundry, dishwasher, garbage disposal, pets welcome, $2,900/mo. Available August 1st. BB at TELESAGE.com.

AUGUST 1ST. FURNISHED ROOM. Shared bathroom ($550/mo.) in our home near Eastgate. Separate entrance. Utilities, internet, phone, cable included. No smoking or pets.. Lease, deposit required. 919-932-1556, 919-616-5431.

GARAGE APARTMENT. Quiet, wooded neighborhood. Private entrance. Full kitchen. Carpeting. Separate LR, bedroom, bathroom. Many windows. Partly furnished. $785/mo. includes utilities, cable, internet. Available. 919-929-6072.

JUST COMPLETED, VERY LARGE 2BR apartment in private home in Chapel Hill. Walk to Winmore, firestation and Chapel Hill High, Smith, Seawell schools. Very private, quiet, in a beautiful setting. Rent covers everything: Electricity, gas, water, cable, internet. Live in a gorgeous home while enjoying the carefree lifestyle of an apartment, At unbelievable rent: $995/mo. Non-smoking. Sorry, no pets. 919-933-7533

Help Wanted

TRANSLATION INTERN WANTED. NATIVE SPANISH, FRENCH or RUSSIAN required. Must be organized, articulate, resourceful, reliable with Microsoft Office and typing skills. Office 100 feet from campus. Position is part-time, Up to 29 hrs/wk, flexible hours. $10/hr. Resume AND cover letter to avillard@telesage.com

Help Wanted

YEAR ROUND HELP WANTED for front desk at Chapel Hill Country Club. Nights and weekends. $10/hr. Apply in person (103 Lancaster Drive). NATIONALLY RECOGNIZED and locally owned insurance agency seeks part-time admin-istrative assistant. Must possess excellent phone and computer skills. Small business environment, flexible hours with competitive wages. Please email inquiries, resume to a076080@Allstate.com. THE CHAPEL HILL-CARRBORO YMCA is looking for seasonal maintenance, custodial staff. Ability to follow instructions, excellent customer service skills and ability to work independently required. Experience working with small power tools and floor maintenance equipment a plus. Please complete an application at www.chcymca.org or at the Chapel Hill branch and submit to jlaquay@chcymca.org. EOE.

RSRA. KENAN FLAGLER. DURHAM. Seeking ness to become part of a small entrepreneurial team, working in our Durham office. Strongly prefer BSBA from Kenan Flagler. Experience in business world helpful, but excellent academic track record, high level of motivation considered. Salary range $40,000-$50,000 plus generous benefits, bonuses. Requires 2 year length of service agreement. Seeking to fill this position by late July, early August. Email cover letter outlining your work and educational experience, along with a resume: Careers@CarolinaLivery.net.

Summer Jobs

SUMMER LIFEGUARDS

Pool Professionals is currently hiring lifeguards for this summer. Contact us today to secure a spot. Flexible hours and competitive ay. lvanorsouw@poolprofessionals.com. 919-787-7878.

$XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX

HOROSCOPES

If July 3rd is Your Birthday...

celebration. Discipline towards your studies and practices comes easier. Learn best by direct experience through travel, especially after the Scorpio solar eclipse (10/23). Money flows easier after 7/16. Surprises at home get resolved through partnership. Spiritual ntrospection brings insight after Saturn enters Sagittarius (12/23). Express beauty and love.

To get the advantage, check the day's rating: 10 is the easiest day, 0 the most challenging.

Aries (March 21-April 19) Today is a 7 -- Travel at your own risk. Make a good impression with your quiet discipline. Take the time you need. Maintain objectivity. Put your money into home and family. Leave yourself a message. Taurus (April 20-May 20)

Today is a 7 -- Invest in home, family, land and real estate. Prepare a foundation. Strengthen your infrastructure without overspending. Boldly assert your affection. Postpone travel, and work from home. Apply discipline towards a fun

Gemini (May 21-June 20)
Today is a 7 -- Stick to your budget, and only buy what you love. Cinch a great deal. Anticipate disagreement if you spend too much. Handle a job at home you've been putting off. Catch up on reading. reading.

Cancer (June 21-July 22)
Today is a 7 -- Go for substance over symbolism, and simplify your daily routine. Find creative ways to communicate your ideas visually. Consider expenditures, and spend what you budgeted on household improvements. Someone considers you

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22)
Today is a 7 - Keeping your word remains your priority. Reschedule if necessary. Keep others on course. New evidence threatens old assumptions. Save up for a big purchase. It's not a good time to discuss finances.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Today is a 7 -- Listen to the latest about a change you're contemplating. New evidence threatens complacency. Your reputation for good sense grows. Don't over-extend, though. Romance could interfere with a deadline. Imagine a happy

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
Today is a 6 — Take advice from elders.
Draw upon experience. Keep a secret, patiently. Being thrifty takes practice and concentration. Go slow to avoid a possible

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Today is a 7 -- Go out with friends. Consider long-term goals, and ask deep questions. The truth gets revealed. Don't discuss money, or pick up the bill for everyone. Some imported items appear on the list of ingredients.

misunderstanding. Determine the final choice. Provide motivation to the team.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Today is a 7 -- The numbers work out in your favor. Don't fall for a sob story. Try to get your feet back under you. Postpone buying toys. Work more to pay a debt. Challenge authority, if necessary. Make someone smile and think about how many people that will effect.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Today is an 8 -- Postpone a planned expansion. Re-consider an idea or method that isn't working. Discuss possibilities, and dreams. Consider an older person's advice before acting. Refine the presentation. Polish for sparkle. Stay cool.

Aguarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Today is a 7 -- Don't be talked out of your safety zone. Meet with an advisor. A communications breakdown would slow things down. Confirm that instructions are clear A financial shortage could inhibit. Do the work in-house and save.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) Today is a 7 -- Invest in your equipment. Your sweetheart agrees. Minimize risk. Seek stability, and ignore gossip. Talk is cheap. Figure out what you can do without.

(c) 2014 TRIBUNE MEDIA SERVICES, INC. It's easy to place a DTH Classified...

Get expert opinions and collate the infor-

PASSPORT PHOTOS · MOVING SUPPLIES

COLOR/BW PRINTING, NOTARY PUBLIC, AMINATING, BINDING, MAILBOX SERVICES, FAX STAMPS, PACKAGING, INTERNATIONAL SHIPPING! CLOSETO CAMPUS at CARRBORO PLAZA ~ 919.918.7161

> Drug, Alcohol, and Traffic Offenses Law Office of Daniel A. Hatley

dan@hatleylawoffice.com www.hatleylawoffice.com mary St., Ste. 205 919-200-0822 Best Wishes to the Tar Heels in 2013-2014!

Julia W. Burns, MD Psychiatrist & Artist Psychiatrist & Artist ~ 5809 Cascade Dr., Chapel Hill, NC 27514 919-428-8461 • juliaburnsmd.com • BlackAndWhiteReadAllOver.com

WC Community SERVICE DIRECTORY

THE RESUME EXPERTS Invision Resume Services Get Interviews, Internships, & Job Offers...

Call Today & Save $25! 888-813-2320 • info@invisionyourimage.com

All Immigration Matters Brenman Law Firm, PLLC • Visas-us.com

www.dailytarheel.com/classifieds

Lisa Brenman, NC Board Certified Specialist Work Visas . Green Cards . Citizenship Reduced Consult Fee for UNC Faculty & Students • 919-932-4593

Hwy 15-501 South & Smith Level Road (919) 942-6666

One former Tar Heel drafted to NBA

Success in the NBA draft has been a long-standing tradition for the North Carolina men's basketball program. And the Tar Heels continued some of that success last Thursday in the 2014 NBA Draft.

Former UNC guard P.J. Hairston became the 15th Tar Heel to play under coach Roy Williams and be selected in the first round of the draft, while James Michael McAdoo had to wait until after the draft to join his new team.

— Compiled by Pat James

P.J. Hairston Position: Guard Pick #: 26, to Charlotte Hornets via trade

With the No. 26 overall pick, the Miami Heat selected Hairston. He was then traded to the Hornets. Hairston played for the Texas Legends of the NBA Development League last season after a series of off-the-court incidents forced him to be dismissed from the UNC basketball team.

HAIRSTON'S STATS

- Scored 707 points in 71 games in his two seasons at UNC
- Led the Tar Heels in made 3-pointers and scoring in his sophomore season
- Averaged 21.8 points per game in 26 games with the Texas Legends last season
- Became the 46th player in UNC history selected in the first round of the NBA draft

James Michael McAdoo Position: Forward Pick #: Undrafted to Golden State Warriors

As the clock ticked down and the draft came to a close, McAdoo found himself without a team after choosing to forgo his senior year and enter the draft. But following the draft, he agreed to play for the Golden State Warriors' NBA Summer League team in Las Vegas.

MCADOO'S STATS

- Finished his three-year career at UNC with 1,232 points and 640 rebounds in 108 games
- Scored his 1,000th point in last season's game at Virginia, making him the 69th Tar Heel to reach that milestone
- Second-team All-ACC last season
- Led UNC in rebounding last season and was second in scoring

Chapel Hill named most exciting NC place

Movoto Real Estate rated locations on multiple factors.

By Mary Taylor Renfro Staff Writer

It may not come as a surprise to the people who love Chapel Hill for its abundance of restaurants, thriving nightlife, eclectic edge and Carolina blue skies but the town recently earned a distinction that sets it apart from other cities in the state.

The online blog for Movoto Real Estate named Chapel Hill the most exciting place in North Carolina on June 24, placing it at the top of a list of ten cities including Wilmington, Raleigh, Asheville and Charlotte.

According to Movoto's blog, cities in the state with populations of at least 25,000 were evaluated on seven criteria, including nightlife per capita, arts and entertainment per capita, live music venues per capita and percent of young residents ages 18 to factors like active life options per capita, percentage of restaurants that are not fast food and fast food restaurants per capita — the fewer the better.

The blog also evaluated

Chapel Hill has the most young residents out of the top ten cities, with 45 percent of the population falling between the ages of 18 and 34, according to the blog.

It also has the second most music venues and arts and entertainment options — falling only to Asheville in both categories — and the third best nightlife behind Asheville and Wilmington.

Movoto spokesman Nick Johnson said an algorithm was used to gather information about each of the cities from the U.S. Census and business listings, and the rankings were calculated based on that data.

Johnson said he and his colleagues rank many nationwide locations on different sets of criteria. One of the reasons he said they publish the top ten lists is to get people excited about where they are from.

"We're trying to create a conversation, to get people talking about their cities," Johnson said.

Laurie Paolicelli, executive director of the Chapel Hill and Orange County Visitors Bureau, said she was not surprised to see Chapel Hill was named the most exciting place in the state - even though she said it isn't considered an iconic tourist destination.

'We don't have a manufactured, Disneyland-like appeal, we have a real community with real people trying to plant, grow, build, educate, and I think there's just an extreme attraction to that real charm that we have," Paolicelli said.

Sam Kimber, a graduate student at Kenan-Flagler Business School from Charlotte, said he finds Chapel Hill exciting because it provides plenty of things to do.

"It's a small town, but it's near a couple big cities like Durham and Raleigh, so you can do what you want," Kimber said.

"There are a lot of great restaurants, a lot of fun bars and a lot of young people."

Julianne Cyr, a project manager for UNC, said she loves Chapel Hill because of its location.

"You have sort of that small city feel just immediately around you — so many little shops, you know, it's very local-centric," Cyr said. "But just a few minutes away you can see all the greenery you ever dreamed of, and that's my favorite part about Chapel Hill."

Though Paolicelli said tourism in Chapel Hill is already experiencing double-digit growth compared to last year, she believes publicity from Movoto's ranking and others like it will help attract more visitors to the area.

'When you're always getting these awards, people have a real interest in checking you out," Paolicelli said.

'It might not be tomorrow, but suddenly you become more and more on the radar screen. And I think Chapel Hill, Carrboro, Orange County, it's just on people's radar screens. There's a real curiosity about the area, and when people come here they fall in love."

> Contact the desk editor at city@dailytarheel.com.

HOW CHAPEL HILL MEASURES UP IN NC

The blog for Movoto Real Estate used an algorithm to decide the most exciting place in North Carolina based on seven criteria. This is how Chapel Hill ranked in each category out of the 34 towns and cities with a population of 25,000 or more.

MOVOTO REAL ESTATE CATEGORY	CHAPEL HILL'S Rank
MUSIC VENUES	2
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT	2
POPULATION AGES 18-34	3
NIGHTLIFE	3
FAST FOOD	5
NON-FAST FOOD	6
ACTIVE LIFE	7
SOURCE: MOVOTO REAL ESTATE BLOG	DTH/TYLER VAHAN

Students notified of sexual violence module

By Emily Ruffin Staff Writer

Beginning this year, students, faculty and staff will be required to complete an online training program regarding sexual harassment and sexual violence.

The Title IX Awareness and Violence Prevention Student program is a 30-minute module to be completed annually by UNC students.

In an email, Hilary Delbridge, a spokeswoman for UNC's Equal Opportunity Office, said the program is the result of federal policy as well as a responsibility to promote student awareness and safety.

"The University is deeply committed to providing a safe and welcoming environment for students," she said. "We are working to implement the Title IX Awareness and Violence Prevention online educational course as part of this commitment and in compliance with federal guidance and legislation that continues to evolve."

The module is divided into three subtopics: understanding and preventing discrimination, understanding and preventing violence and knowing your resources and remedies.

Desiree Rieckenberg, senior associate dean of students and a member of the sexual assault task force, said it is important for students to know violence and harassment is not tolerated.

She said the program enables students to identify those behaviors, while also providing them with resources and encouraging reporting.

Senior K.J. Moon said the program was very informative.

"I thought it was a really good program, and I learned

The Varsity Theatre 123 E. Franklin Street, Chapel Hill • 967-8665

components of a larger effort," Hilary Delbridge, Equal Opportunity Office Public Communications Specialist

"This course is among many important a lot," Moon said. "It was good to know more about what to do if a friend or yourself is sexually harassed or assaulted." Students can exit the module at any point and pick up where they left off. Delbridge said this resource will be at students' fingertips at any time. "The online format allows for the information in the course to be readily available to students even after they have completed the course," she said.

The Equal Opportunity Office will offer live courses in prevention of sexual violence and discrimination, as well as education on Title IX.

Some students have already received notification of the online module in an email. According to the email notification, students must complete the online program within 30 days of receiving the email and are required to do so annually. The selectivity of the email's recipients has generated some confusion. Senior Allie Darby said she received the email but has not completed the program yet.

"I didn't think it was a big deal since none of my friends got the email," Darby said.

Delbridge said she is confident the course will increase knowledge about the resources available on-campus.

"This course is among many important components of a larger effort at the University to eliminate, prevent, and address the effects of discrimination and harassment on the basis of sex, including sexual violence, stalking, and interpersonal violence."

Contact the desk editor at university@dailytarheel.com.

Level: 1 2 3 4 8 4 5 1 3 9 2 6 2 5 4 7

6 3 4 1 5 8 9 7 2 3 3 4

TRIBUNE

Complete the grid and 3-by-3 box (in bold borders) contains every digit 1 to 9.

	Solution to last week's puzzle
	9	2	1	5	6	4	7	8	3
	5	7	3	2	8	9	4	1	6
	4	6	8	3	7	1	5	2	9
	2	5	9	8	1	3	6	7	4
6	3	1	6	4	5	7	8	9	2
4	7	8	4	6	9	2	1	3	5
	1	4	5	9	3	8	2	6	7
	8	3	2	7	4	6	9	5	1
	6	9	7	1	2	5	3	4	8

Local band comes back

Supreme Fiction lyricist Daniel Lawrence sat down for a Q&A with Diversions. See pg. 5 for story.

Could drop charges

District Attorney Jim Woodall said he might drop Julius Nyang'oro's felony charge. See online for story.

It's Independence Day

Diversions recommends some of the best activities for this year's Fourth of July. See pg. 4 for recommendations.

Record-breaking sum

The School of Education received $3 million, the largest donation in their history. See pg. 3 for story.

BUY A COUCH . FIND A JOB . DITCH YOUR ROOMMATE

www.dailytarheel.com/classifieds we're here for you. all day. every day

SELL YOUR CAR • FIND A SITTER • VOLUNTEER

21 Stable youngster

29 Post- opposite

35 Not a supporter 36 Cow's fly swatter

42 Competitive look

37 Swordplay sword 39 Boy in "A Christmas

26 Dada

30 Up to 31 Signs off on

Carol'

41 Devoured

45 Fraidy-cats

47 Rye buy

22 Sun or moon, to a poet

27 They're played at luaus 28 Wyatt of the Wild West

Los Angeles Times Daily Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS

1 Carve in stone "Nana" novelist Émile 9 Diagnostic aids 14 Scott of "Happy Days"

15 Red-wrapped cheese 16 One of the archangels 17 State secrets? 18 Disreputable guy 19 Capone cohort Frank

20 Agreement in a Massachusetts city? 23 "That's awesome!" 24 Charlemagne's realm:

25 Highland refusal

26 Adobe dwelling in a Colorado city? 32 Wanted poster abbr. 33 Go right or left 34 Do figure-eights, say

38 Likely to mouth off 40 Slap a sale price on 43 Go bonkers 44 Gelatin garnish 46 Attentioncalling type:

Abbr. 60-Down 49 Hanging sculpture in an Alabama

53 1977 Steely Dan album "Scream" director Craven 57 Noise

58 Bovine in a New York 64 Take up a hem, say fide

68 Pasture 69 Baldwin or Guinness 70 Earns with difficulty, with "out"

66 NATO alphabet ender

71 Bakery pastries 72 Thorny bloom 73 Light-tube gas DOWN 1 Recede

2 Bath powder mineral 3 Italian "Toodle-oo!" 4 Rub elbows (with) 5 Moment of attack 6 Sign to take out the trash

7 Praise highly 8 Don of "Cocoon" 9 Roads under rivers 10 Songwriter Clapton

11 Use, as a chair 12 Tri- plus one

(C)2014 Tribune Media Services, Inc. All rights reserved.

13 Lose traction 50 Ger. neighbor

51 Atmospheric pressure

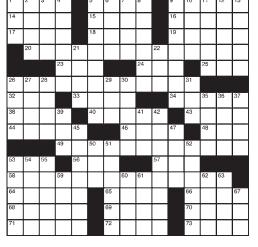

52 Impudent 53 Sternward

54 Roberts of "Pretty Woman" 55 On the trail of 59 Traditional Stetson material 60 With 48-Across, Western neckwear

61 Quelques-_ French 62 Gospel writer

63 Butter look-alike 67 Org. with SEALs

Jonathan Ghysels How to Hate a Life in 10 Days Junior English major from Chapel Email: jghysels@live.unc.edu

FIFA's bite was the cruelest

■ he World Cup provides an acceptable outlet for national pride. Attendants make their preferences known through tonguein-cheek costumes and elaborate face-painting. It is deeply satisfying to watch and has felt surprisingly clean.

Aggression has been predominantly seen from the competing teams, with a fair amount of fouling and injuries accumulating over the past few weeks.

But during the Italy vs. Uruguay match on June 24, passions boiled over, and one player did something beyond the pale.

Luis Suarez, an Uruguayan striker, bit the shoulder of opponent Giorgio Chiellini. Footage of this incident only shows Suarez from behind, placing his head near Chiellini's upper torso. Both men subsequently fell to the ground. Chiellini fell due to the shock of teeth sinking into his shoulder, while Suarez fell to the ground with an expression of immediate regret, placing his hands over his mouth.

In the coming days, Suarez received a four-month ban from soccer, as both a participant and a spectator. This has been his third biting incident.

It's difficult to feel too sorry for Suarez, who has shined in his career, currently playing for Liverpool Football Club. He's received warnings for a string of controversies and in many respects hasn't learned from them. Outside of these moments of unsportsmanship, he is prized as one of the greatest footballers of his generation. Whether Suarez is making a poor decision leading to a horrific event, or leading in his league for goals scored in a season, the man has a passion for the sport.

Across the world, especially evident in the United States, athletes are admired for sheer dedication and by-anymeans attitudes. Luis Suarez's undeniable talent and drive has made Uruguay a grateful nation. While riding the high of being his country's saving grace, Suarez's misstep during the games was largely at his own expense.

To be frank, being bitten is far from the most inhibiting injury a soccer player can endure. The action has violent overtones, but I doubt Chiellini's ability to play football was marred by Suarez's bite. If Suarez truly wanted to handicap the Italian team, he likely wouldn't have chosen to bite one of their players on the shoulder.

It's impossible to defend the action, but the two men have patched up the situation publicly. Suarez should not have been banned from watching his teammates, World Cup or otherwise.

The stadium ban ultimately is an overstep of power from FIFA. A team's star should not to be stopped from watching his teammates. His regret and apology have been clear enough, and the accumulation of biting incidents has been reflected in the ban on playing. Let the man watch the sport he dedicated his life to.

Toronto Mayor Rob Ford

gave a "press conference"

of the press and didn't take questions. He announced his completion of a two-month

rehab stint. Is he giving up

Maybe giving up political ambitions is the 13th step.

his reelection bid? Nah.

Monday — a liberal use of the term, consider-

some members

ing he barred

EDITORIAL CARTOON By Nate Beeler, The Columbus Dispatch

EDITORIAL

Throwing a Hail Mary

The NCAA's renewed investigation of UNC is pointless.

n what was a truly tiresome piece of news, the NCAA announced Monday that it was reopening its investigation into academic irregularities at UNC.

It is highly unlikely that the top brass at the NCAA are interested in a just resolution to UNC's problems. What is much more likely is that they want to win some rare flattering headlines for finally resolving some old business that has served as nothing but a black mark on their entire organization.

This is a time of great turmoil for the embattled organization.

The NCAA is currently awaiting the result of the Ed O'Bannon class-action antitrust lawsuit against the NCAA, which will likely be issued in August. According to some media accounts, the trial did not seem to go well for the college sports

If the plaintiffs in the O'Bannon trial win the case, the NCAA could be forced to make massive structural changes. No matter what decision is handed down, a long process of appeals is likely. But the NCAA has already suffered a great deal of embarrassment from the trial.

The UNC scandal is just another embarrassment for the NCAA, and the organization has even been under fire from Rep. Tony Cardenas, a U.S. Congressman from California, for its handling of the matter.

Cardenas has previously threatened to call for congressional hearings and subpoena NCAA President Mark Emmert if he was not satisfied by their answers to his charges that the organization failed to hold UNC properly accountable for the scandal.

The leaders of the NCAA are sure to want to avoid yet another high profile media event in which the basic structure of their organization is questioned. So the NCAA is pursuing what may seem like an obvious solution to its leadership: piggyback onto the Kenneth Wainstein investigation before imposing some heavy-handed sanctions on the University.

Fundamentally, however, anything the NCAA does to weigh in on this matter is illegitimate. The very structure of the business they designed is what led to UNC's issues in the first place. The NCAA has no moral authority on this issue. Any punishment it imposes on UNC would serve only the NCAA.

It doesn't make sense to punish current UNC athletes for past transgressions, or even to punish administrators or coaches who were at fault. There are probably many more like them all across the country at different schools, and that reality is a beast of the NCAA's own creation. The NCAA could make some better headlines by embracing reform before a court forces them to.

EDITORIAL

Ducking the law

Companies should not use religion to opt out of laws.

n Monday, the United States Supreme Court ruled in Burwell vs. Hobby Lobby that the Affordable Care Act cannot mandate "closely-held businesses" to provide health care coverage for certain kinds of contraceptives for their employees — and that opens up a scary path forprofit companies.

The case involved Hobby Lobby Stores, Inc. and Conestoga Wood Specialties, two companies considered to be "closely held" because five or less people own more than half the stock. The two argued the federal health care act violated their First Amendment right to religious freedom by requiring the companies to cover certain types of contraceptives, including morning-after pills.

The ruling states providing coverage for those contraceptives violates the "sincerely held" religious beliefs of the companies' owners saying if the companies followed the Affordable Care Act's mandates, they would be facilitating abortion, and if they did not opt to follow the mandates, they would pay huge annual penalties of up to $475 million a year.

On paper, the ruling affects a woman's ability to use contraceptives, but the precedent it sets could be much wider-reaching. In her dissenting opinion, Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg insists closelyheld companies now can opt out of any law that violates their religious beliefs.

This is a dangerous step into a dark, unknown place — where a company operated under religious beliefs can restrict a woman's health care coverage for contraceptives and can now decline on religious grounds to offer coverage for anything that violates their beliefs.

This ruling means companies could now argue providing benefits or health care coverage to same-sex spouses violates their religious beliefs, and Ginsburg points out that blood transfusions, vaccinations and antidepressants are also against the beliefs of other religions in the country — these too could go uncovered.

By protecting the religious freedoms of a company, the ruling also restricts a company employee's access to health benefits — as well as forcing them to comply with their company's religious beliefs, which may not be their own.

Who stands to benefit here?

There is a difference between protecting the religious freedom of a person and the religious freedom of a company, even a closely-held company. Our country's economy is not ruled by religious freedom — what purpose do a company's religious beliefs serve in a secular market?

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"The counselors are volunteers from the community — everyone from lawyers to real estate brokers to teachers."

Caroline Hatley, Basketball camp provides extraordinary opportunity

FEATURED ONLINE READER COMMENT

"We continue to educate top notch teachers in our traditional four-year programs just as we have done over the past decades."

Deborah Eaker Rich, on new education majors' 5-year program

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Farewell to a pencil in a paperless world

TO THE EDITOR:

A matinee idol is never as interesting as when he settles into that secondary career as a featured player. No longer the box-office draw for the moneymen, through the years, he has earned a greater reward from his peers and his public.

From researcher to teacher, teacher to director, director to dean and from dean to adviser, over the past 53 consecutive years, Richard Cramer has been both a bit player and the star of the show. But with that time, care and dedication comes that greater reward of respect, and it's been his years in Academic Advising, billed — however unofficially — as "And Dr. Richard Cramer," that have solidified his place among the University's greats.

The only problem is that some people mistake that "And" billing. They see that "And" as an afterthought, an also-ran. Those who are eager to pave paradise and put up a parking lot, as the old song goes, have made a choice for him in the name of progress. After taking on diminished role after diminished role, playing for peanuts and for love of the game, in less keystrokes than it takes to graduate a single student from the University, Cramer was unceremoniously made redundant at the close of business yesterday. From foundation to footnote in 53 years, the door closed on an era.

It seemed like he was always there in that office. There for the tens of thousands of students, on paper and those who knocked on his door, sometimes while he tried to sneak in a quick lunch. There for a million

SPEAK OUT

WRITING GUIDELINES • Please type: Handwritten let-

- ters will not be accepted. • Sign and date: No more than two people should sign
- Students: Include your year, major and phone number.
- Faculty/staff: Include your department and phone number.
- Edit: The DTH edits for space, clarity, accuracy and vulgarity. Limit letters to 250

SUBMISSION

- Drop-off or mail to our office at 151 E. Rosemary Street, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514
- E-mail: opinion@dailytarheel.

dreams dreamt, maybe a little less than a million realized. There for the problem cases, the ones that would take half a day to decipher when no one else would have had the time. There for successes big and little, from sure things to long shots. There for those old-timers with unfinished business, the kind you see from time to time on the news. All of them were important to Cramer. Not just as students on a conveyor belt with degrees at the end of the line. They were people. People with stories. A sociologist by nature and trade, his folksy style and genuine interest in people made time stand still in his office, sometimes to the chagrin of those waiting outside his door. But they too would understand, once they finally gained admittance.

With the quality of his service and time spent at the University, anything less than a statue outside of the building could and should be viewed as a slight.

Cramer walked away from that building a master, the matinee idol with nothing more to prove, but who felt his greatest performances still lie ahead. He was a master at a job he loved, for a University who owed him so much more.

Academic Advising is and will continue to be full of top-drawer stars, a rotating cast of characters banding together to push students into their next act; but today, and now forever after, it will be missing that special magic. That everyouthful mind. That homespun sincerity. That dogged devotion. I could write any number of words here, now, at the end. But really, it's that best-for-last credit, seen only in your mind's eye but still written in a font just a bit bigger than the rest, that should tell you his importance in all of our

And Dr. Richard Cramer.

Shaun Rutherford Admissions and Enrolled Students Specialist The Graduate School

The Daily Tar Heel

Established 1893, 121 years of editorial freedom

PAIGE LADISIC

SUMMER EDITOR MANAGING.EDITOR@DAILYTAR-HEEL.COM

SAM SCHAEFER OPINION EDITOR
OPINION@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

The Daily Tar Heel PROFESSIONAL AND BUSINESS STAFF

Business and Advertising: Kelly Wolff, director/general manager; Wendy Holmes, advertising/marketing director; Lisa Reichle, business

Arts: Marcela Guimaraes. Drew Goins, Jasmine Neely, Lucinda Shen, Zhai Yun Tan, Sarah Vassello

Joey DeVito, Mary Taylor Renfro, Zoe Schaver, Kelsey Weekman Copy: Kathleen Harrington, Elizabeth Applegate, Aaron Cranford, Sarah Crump, Drew Goins, Madison Flager, Alex LaGrand, Taylor Noel, Zoe Schaver, Liz Tablazon, Tori Yegelwel, Jessica

City: Jonathan Moyer, Aren

Besson, Aaron Cranford,

Customer Service: Carolyn Ebeling, representative. Display Advertising: Peyton Beth O'Brien, creative Burgess, Ashley Cirone, Jill Euchner and Victoria Karagiorgis, account execu

EDITORIAL STAFF

Design: Tyler Vahan, Kayla Goforth, Emily Helton, Emma ockwood hoto: Kendall Bagley, Chris Conway, Henry Gargan, Nicole Hussey, Hannah Macie, Jav Peterkin Matt Renn, Halle Sinnott, Shengmei Yin Sports: Pat James, Alexis Barnes, Joey DeVito, Grayson Franz, Danielle Herman, State & National: Amy

Lucinda Shen, Sharon Nunn

University: Bradley Saacks, Maura Devetski, Carolyn Ebeling, Leah Komada, Stephanie Lamm, Emily Ruffin, Christina Stone, Jane

Advertising Production:

Opinion: Sam Schaefer. Henry Gargan

Adviser: Erica Perel

Editorial Production: Stacy Wynn, manager. Printing: Triangle Web Distribution: Stacy Wynn, Nick and Sarah Hammond

The Daily Tar Heel is published by the DTH Media Corp., a nonprofit North Carolina corporation, Monday through Friday, according to the University calendar. Callers with questions about billing or display advertising should call 962-1163 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Classified ads can be reached at 962-0252. Editorial questions should be directed to 962-0245.

OFFICE AND MAIL ADDRESS: 151 E. Rosemary St. Chapel Hill, NC 27514-3539

EDITOR'S NOTE: Columns, cartoons and letters do not necessarily represent the opinions of The Daily Tar Heel or its staff. Editorials reflect the opinions of The Daily Tar Heel editorial board, which is made up of board members, the opinion editor and the summer editor.

QuickHits

The Biebz Album

Beyonce and Jay-Z pulled a bizarre move during their concert June 25, showing a series of "celebrity" mugshots. The last one they showed was Justin Bieber's, at which point Beyonce said, "Even the greatest can fall." The greatest what? Obnoxious Canadian musical superstar? Even Drake's got Bieber beat there.

Badubombing

TV journalist Mario Diaz was trying to report for PIX11 News

Diaz reporting for CNN soon.

tried to kiss Diaz, who refused her advance. This puts him in the same company as Andre 3000, Common and Jay Electronica, who all saw their careers blow up after dumping her. Expect to see

Occupy... again? Occupy Chapel Hill made its return to Peace and Justice Plaza June 26

anarchists again? Crap some more in the alley? But you know what they say about leaderless, messy political movements. The sequel is always much, much better. (Nobody says that.)