SEXUAL TRAFFICKING Breaking the Crisis of Silence

An International Conference

PRESENTED BY

The University of North
Carolina at Chapel Hill

April 7-8, 2006

Radisson Hotel Research Triangle Park, NC
<http://womenscenter.unc.edu/trafficking>
email: cwc@unc.edu

CONFERENCE AIM

This international conference on sexual trafficking, with the aid of international and national experts, aims to continue the fight against commercial sexual exploitation of young women and children by bringing awareness to the human rights violations caused by trafficking, including its mental and physical effects on its victims. In addition, the conference seeks to examine the demand side of the problem and its impact on local and global economics.

CONFERENCE OBJECTIVES

- To educate and share information with participants
- To create and strengthen networks and coalitions
- To identify victim intervention models
- To stimulate research
- To influence policy

TARGET AUDIENCE

National and international professions in the following areas: health, mental health, social work, legal services, substance abuse, students, community members and policy makers addressing both domestic and international sexual trafficking issues.
