The Daily Tar Heel

UNC RESPONDS TO ALLEGATIONS

DTH FILE/PAULA SELIGSON

University self-imposes sanctions and forfeits wins

By Kelly Parsons
Sports Editor

After nearly 15 months of an NCAA investigation into the North Carolina football team, the University has responded to nine allegations the NCAA said were committed by the program.

In the response, the University detailed 18 punitive actions it will self-impose as a result of the violations, including a two-year probation, a $50,000 fine, reduction of scholarships and the vacation of 16 total wins from the 2008 and 2009 seasons.

University officials — who received the NCAA's notice of allegations June 21 — responded to each allegation, as well as answered specific questions that were asked by the NCAA about the violations in the notice.

Though athletic director Dick Baddour couldn't say exactly how many hours were spent on drafting the 111-page document, Baddour stressed the strain the entire process has put on the University during a teleconference on Monday.

SEE RESPONSE, PAGE 5

University response to NCAA allegations

The University and the enforcement staff conducted more than 60 interviews related to the violations in

The response outlines 7 types of corrective actions and 18 penalties as a result of the violations.

16 wins will be vacated from

Allegation No. 4 and the persons involved. the 2008 and 2009 seasons $50,000 self-imposed fine

The University agrees that all information in 8 of 9 of the allegations is substantially correct.

During the 2009-10 academic year and August 2010, Jennifer Wiley provided approximately $3,500 in impermissible extra benefits to football student-athletes.

SOURCE: UNIVERSITY LETTER OF RESPONSE TO NCAA ALLEGATIONS

DTH/LYDIA HARRELL

Tutor's link to players released

By Jonathan Jones

In the University of North Carolina's 111-page response to the NCAA's notice of allegations, previously unreleased details regarding former UNC tutor and mentor Jennifer Wiley and her association with UNC football players were made public.

While the NCAA investigation into agent-related benefits during the summer of 2010 eventually led to the discovery of academic fraud, University officials had been made privy to Wiley's potential inappropriate assistance in April 2010, nearly nine months after UNC did not renew her contract. Additionally, Wiley paid off $1,789 worth of parking tickets just one day before UNC began its attempts to interview her.

John Blanchard, senior associate athletic director for student-athlete services, received an anonymous report in April 2010 that a football player had, among other things, received academic assistance from Wiley, according to the NCAA letter.

After he informed compliance director Amy Herman and senior associate AD Larry Gallo, UNC AD Dick Baddour launched an investigation that had no clear resolution in the response letter.

"We were hampered in that we were working with an anonymous report at that time," Baddour said in a teleconference on Monday. "Actually, the focus of that report had more to do with extra benefits than it did, what you might say, the quality or extent of the academic help, so we were very limited in what we could do. We had denial in terms of what was going on, and we couldn't do anymore with it."

According to the NCAA response letter, the football player was questioned on three occasions, including an interview with former head

SEE WILEY, PAGE 5

AFAM studies to be reviewed

The investigation follows the resignation of the department's chairman.

By Amelia Nitz Staff Writer

The University will form a committee to review academic practices in the African and Afro-American Studies department and the practice of independent study, Chancellor Holden Thorp said in a Faculty Council meeting Friday.

The review comes on the heels of the resignation of the department's chairman, Julius Nyang'oro, earlier this month amid reports of practices favorable to UNC football players.

Thorp said Karen Gil, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, will lead the review committee. "Carolina and all public universities

"Carolina and all public universities have to succeed both at athletics and

Karen Gil, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, will lead the committee to review practices in the African and Afro-American Studies department.

Julius Nyang'oro, former chairman of the African and Afro-American Studies department, resigned earlier this month amid reports of practices favoring UNC football players.

their academic mission," Thorp said.

Bobbi Owen, senior associate dean for undergraduate education who will help select members of the committee, said she doesn't think the review is a direct

SEE AFAM REVIEW, PAGE 5

Glen Lennox could be rezoned

Conservation District status may allow new land use regulations.

By Florence Bryan Assistant City Editor

Glen Lennox moved closer to becoming a Neighborhood Conservation District Monday when the Chapel Hill Town Council agreed to approve final plans for phase one of its rezoning Oct. 26.

The change would add the area to seven existing districts, and would limit development to preserve the neighborhood's character.

But even as Glen Lennox's petition moves toward approval, town officials said conservation districts could be significantly changed in the town's upcoming comprehensive plan review.

Mixed results

In 2003, the Chapel Hill Town

Council created conservation districts when it passed its Land Use Management Ordinance.

Neighborhoods petition to become conservation districts. The distinction lets them adopt a special set of land-use regulations that prevent extensive development.

Council member Donna Bell, who served on the town planning board when the districts were created, said neighborhoods' different housing markets have produced varying results.

"What we found is that in some neighborhoods it has done exactly what we wanted to do and in some neighborhoods it didn't," she said.

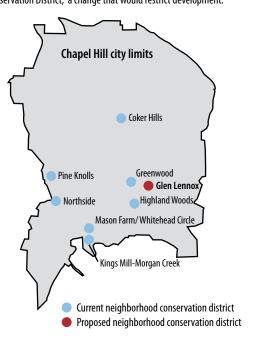

Loryn Clark, Chapel Hill neighborhood and community services manager, said some residents have unrealistic expectations.

"There are limitations to what zoning can do," she said. "You can't use zoning to fight the market." Ruby Sinreich, editor of the

SEE NEIGHBORHOODS, PAGE 5

Neighborhood Conservation Districts

Glen Lennox has petitioned to be Chapel Hill's eighth Neighborhood Conservation District, a change that would restrict development.

SOURCE: HTTP://WWW.TOWNOFCHAPELHILL.ORG DTH/ALEXIS BALINSKI, KEVIN UHRMACHER

The New Pornographers to headline UNC homecoming concert

CUAB is hoping to continue success from last year's Passion Pit concert.

By Katherine Proctor
Assistant Arts Editor

Indie rock group The New Pornographers will headline the Homecoming concert on Oct. 29, the Carolina Union Activities Board announced yesterday.
"Public Service Ann

"Public Service Announcement: the New Pornographers are coming for Homecoming:) more info to come! ..." the CUAB account tweeted Monday afternoon.

The show will be held in Carmichael Arena. It is hosted by CUAB in conjunction with the General Alumni Association.

The two organizations sponsor all Homecoming activities. CUAB has not yet released the names of the supporting acts.

Kinsey Sullivan, music chair for CUAB, said that the organization chose The New Pornographers for their anticipated popularity with students. "The student body's reaction to and interaction with CUAB is always our primary concern," she said.

Sullivan said that because CUAB

Sullivan said that because CUAB receives a third of the student organization fees — part of student activities fees — the organization is accountable to the student body.

SEE THE SHOW

Time: Saturday, Oct. 29, time to be announced.

Location: Carmichael Arena

Info: www.unc.edu/cuab

"We are responsible for providing students with events and opportunities that enhance their Carolina experience," she said.

Cierra Hinton, president of CUAB, said The New Pornographers' performance would continue the trend of lively Homecoming concerts in the wake of last year's headliner, electro-pop group Passion Pit.

"We thought The New Pornographers would be a really fun show riding off Passion Pit, so we thought we'd give it another try," she said.

Since both bands come from the inde-

SEE HOMECOMING, PAGE 5

Inside

УО НО НО

What do pirates, UNC and folk music have in common? Daniel Levi Goans. Page 3.

TREE DOWN

A rotting post oak tree in front of the New West building was cut down to prevent its decay from putting people in danger. Page 9.

LET'S TALK ABOUT SEX

Amber Madison, the daughter of a UNC professor, writes a sex column for Seventeen and was a guest on Ryan Seacrest's radio show. Page 7.

This day in history

Sept. 20, 1979

The University's women's soccer program played and won its first ever game, beating Duke University 12-0.

Today's weather

Weird weather continues H 74, L 64

Wednesday's weather

At least it's consistent H 79, L 67

The Daily Tar Heel

www.dailytarheel.com Established 1893

118 years of editorial freedom

STEVEN NORTON EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

FDITOR@DAILYTARHEFL COM

TARINI PARTI MANAGING EDITOR
MANAGING.EDITOR@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

KELLY McHUGH

VISUAL MANAGING EDITOR

ANDY THOMASON UNIVERSITY EDITOR UNIVERSITY@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

JEANNA SMIALEK

CITY EDITOR CITY@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

ISABELLA COCHRANE

STATE & NATIONAL EDITOR STATE@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

KATELYN TRELA ARTS EDITOR ARTS@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

JOSEPH CHAPMAN DIVERSIONS EDITOR YERSIONS@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

KELLY PARSONS SPORTS EDITOR SPORTS@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

ALLIE RUSSELL PHOTO EDITOR PHOTO@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

EMILY EVANS, GEORGIA CAVANAUGH COPY CO-EDITORS COPY@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

SARAH GLEN

ONLINE EDITOR ONLINE@DAILYTARHEEL.COM ARIANA RODRIGUEZ-GITLER

DESIGN EDITOR DESIGN@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

MEG WRATHER GRAPHICS EDITOR GRAPHICS@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

ZACH EVANS MULTIMEDIA EDITOR MULTIMEDIA@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

Contact Managing Editor Tarini Parti at managing.editor@dailytarheel.com with news tips, comments, corrections or suggestions.

Mail and Office: 151 E. Rosemary St. Chapel Hill, NC 27514 Steven Norton, Editor-in-Chief, 962-4086 Advertising & Business, 962-1163 News, Features, Sports, 962-0245

One copy per person; additional copies may be purchased at The Daily Tar Heel for $.25 each. Please report suspicious activity at our distribution racks by emailing dth@dailytarheel.com

> © 2011 DTH Media Corp. All rights reserved

COMMUNITY CALENDAR

Yoga in the galleries: Participate in a 50-minute gentle yoga session at the Ackland Museum. Beginners are welcome. Yoga mats are provided. The session is free for members and $5 for non-members.

Time: Noon to 1:00 p.m. Location: Ackland Art Museum

Sex in the American Civil War: Listen to Fred W. Kiger talk about

Assistant Editors: Katherine Proctor, arts; Florence Byran, Chelsea Dulaney, Michelle Zayed, city; Chris Harrow,

Abbie Bennett, Hayley Pates, copy; Alyssa Bailey, Carson Blackwelder, design; Allison Hussey, diversions; Colleen McEnaney, multimedia; Mike Rodriguez, online; Jessica Tobin, graph-ics; Dakota Williams, opinion; Bailey

ics, Dakoda Wilmains, Opinido, Balley Seitter, Katie Sweeney, Mary Koenig, photography; Leah Campbell, Brandon Moree, Michael Lananna, sports; Elise Young, Daniel Wiser state & national; Elizabeth Johnson, Claire McNeil, Arts: Britton Aukander, Nichelle Andersen, Carson Fish, Michelle Lewis, Nidhi Singh, Mary Stevens, Deborah Strange, Jenna Stout, Grace Tatter, Kristina Weeks, Alexandra Edwards, Breeze Riley, Faith McElroy,

John Sherman, Kathryn Muller, Sarah Haderbache, Shweta Mishra, Walker

City: Katie Atmonavage, Blair Brown, Meredith Burns, Rachel Butt, Maggie Cagney, Sarah Catherine Clover, Kelly Crupi, Victoria Esguerra, Chessa

Kelly Crupi, Victoria Esguerra, Chessa DeCain, Brian Fanney, Conor Furlong, Cheney Gardner, Zach Gaver, Matthe Hasselberg, Jeff Kagan, Alison Lee, Caroline Leland, Tyson Leonhardt, Sarah Mansur, Pete Mills, Almir

Omerspahic, Cassandra Perkins, Helin Park , Jordan Prince, Lenzie Purcel, Katie Reilly, Ethan Robertson, Ana

Arts: Britton Alexander, Nick

soldiers and sex during our nation's Civil War. The cost is $25 for GAA members, $30 for non-members. Register at http://www.alumni.unc. Time: 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m.

Location: George Watts Hill

Alumni Center African Diaspora lecture and film: Attend a lecture by artist-filmmaker

Zina Saro-Wiwa and view her documentary film, "This Is My Africa." Time: 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. Location: Sonja Haynes Stone

WEDNESDAY

Majors expo: Representatives from more than 50 departments will be available to discuss possible majors. Time: 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

Location: Frank Porter Graham

To make a calendar submission. email calendar@dailytarheel.com. Please include the date of the event in the subject line, and attach a photo if you wish. Events will be published in the newspaper on either the day or the day before they take place.

Advertising Production: Penny

The Daily Tar Heel PROFESSIONAL AND BUSINESS STAFF

Business and Advertising: Kevin Schwartz, director/general manager; Megan McGinity, advertising direc-tor; Lisa Reichle, business manager; Meaghan Steingraber, advertising manager; Katie Steen, digital advertis

Customer Service: Matthew McGibney, Tricia Seitzer, Courtney Smiley and Danielle Stephenson, representatives

Jennifer Surane, Grace Tatter, Kathryn Trogdon, Nathan Vail, Caroline Watkins,

Holly West Copy: Kristen Ballard, Robert Coleman, Kevin Collins, Max Miceli, Catherine King, Tricia Cleppe, Kelsey Erdossy, Melissa Flandreau, Jeremy Wile, Madison Cumbee, Katie King, Katheryn

WcKee, Kaelyn Malkoski, Michael Welker, Meredith Jones, Caroline Land, Andrew Yablon, Vanessa Voight, Chesley Kalnen, Laurie Beth Harris, Jo Nixon, Katie Keel, Teisha McRae, Kevin Urmacher, Allison Turner, Kevin

Phinney, Kevin Shaffer, Jennifer Jackson

Prininey, Revin Shaffer, Jennifer Jackso Design: Olivia Bagley, Kendra Benner, Rachelle Branca, Maegan Clawges, Sarah Delk, Susie Mann, Aaron Moore, Jessica New, Cece Pascual, Mary Stevens, Jeff Sullivan, Charlotte Taylor,

Diversions: Lam Chau, Lyle Kendrick, Rocco Giamatteo, Mark Niegelsky, Elizabeth Byrum, Linnie Greene, Tyler Confoy, Anna Schroeder, Kelly Poe

Balinese, Lydia Harrell, Kelly Poe, Tessa Rodes, Ryan Kurtzman, Cameron Lewis, Avery Thompson, Kevin Uhrmacher Multimedia: Risi Ademola, Melissa

Online: Isabella Bartolucci, Madeline Christoph, Nancy Copeland, Michael Leibel, Megan McCluskey, Ngoc Nguyen, Caroline Pate, Elisabeta Pindic,

Jalena Threatt, Courtney Tye, Kirk

Graphics: Luke Holman, Alexis

Borden, Diego Camposeco, Delia D'Ambra, Eric Pait, Marria Rahim

Davidson, Sallie King, Bailee Lockamy, Nick Ludlow, Zach Martin, Crutcher Nash, Sarah Peck, Maya Sharodi, Caroline Smith, Jamie Stanley, Kerry Steingraber and Maggie Thayer, account

EDITORIAL STAFF

Annelee Rigdon, George Verity

Opinion: Tariq Luthun, Ian Lee, Maggie

Iner, Dakota Williams, Will Doran

Zellier, Dakota Williams, Will Doran, Callie Bost, Robert Fleming, editorial board; Holly Beilen, Patricia Laya, Will Doran, Mark Laichena, Andrew Harrell, Mark Abadi, Perry Tsai, Andrew Moon, Vera Parra, Benjamin Elkind, columnists

Vera rara, Berjainii Einili, Coulininss Photo: Nivi Umasankar, Logan Savage, Jade Poteat, Stephen Mitchell, Josh Clinard, Melissa Key, Jessica Gaylord, Helen Woolard, Eliza Williams, Elizabeth Mendoza, Paula Seligson, Militan Hanga Lericia

Wilson Herlong, Jessie Lowe, Erica

Wilson Herlong, Jessie Lowe, Erica Heller, Melissa Bendixen, Karla Towle, Kaylon Kirk, Julia Wall, Chris Conway, Anna DiMartino, Lori Wang, Kelsey Hammer, Liz Rodell, Spencer Herlong, Chloe Stephenson, Maggie Barber, Kaitlyn Kelly, Silvana Goberdhan-

Vigle, Chelsey Allder, Morgan McCloy, Cristina Barletta, Katherine Drye, Brookelyn Riley, Jeff Sullivan Sports: Jonathan Jones, Mark

Thompson, senior writers; David Adler, Matt Cox, Ryan Davis, Zach Hamilton,

Ionathan LaMantia, Ionathan LaRow

Jonathan LaMantta, Jonathan LaHowe Kevin Minogue, Chris Moore, Brooke Pryor, Marilyn Payne, Ben Stewart, Henry Gargan, Robbie Harms, Andrew Romaine, Madelynn Campbell, James Pike, Matthew Laurino, Andy Pitts

State & National: Jen Serdetchnaia.

Persons, manager; Beth O'Brien, digital ad production manager; Garrett Herzfeld and Paige Warmus, assistants.

Little, Miranda Murray, Jasmine Chen, Corinne White, Gayatri Surendranathan, Memet Walker, Erika Keil, Jenna Jordan, Lucinda Shen, Claire Williams, Amanda Albright, Charles Patton, Josh Zeldin University: Elizabeth Ayers, Alecia Smith, Josie Hollingsworth, Katie Gutt, Alexa Colasurdo, Elizabeth Ayers, Robert Parker, Katharine McÁnarnev Olivia Frere, Grace Harvey, Kelly Williamson, Jamie Gnazzo, John Rusnak, Maggie Conner, Jordan Moses, Lauren Piemont, Margaret Caison, Katie Ouine, Alexandra Gladu, Hailev Vest, Sarah Niss, Emily Overcash, Amber Zee Sarah Niss, Emily Overcash, Amber Zee Sarah Brown, Megan Cassella, Riley Davis, Ed Pickup, Ben Salkeld, Jordan Carmichael, Nicole Kraemer, Kate Grise Caley Scheppegrell, Leda Strong, Neal Smith, Jonathan Atkinson, Lucie Reaf Jilliti, Jordalian Richilago, Locie Ronfaut, Yueqin Chen, Liz Crampton, Ryan O'Rorke, Abbygale Reynolds, Meredith Hamrick, Devyn McDonald, Wendy Lu, Grace Raynor, Colleen Ni, Dana Blohm, Caitlin McCabe, Katia Martinez, Alex Hammer, Melvin

Martinez, Alex Adminer, Mervin Backman, Katie Knepp, Becky Bush, Amelia Nitz, Sarayu Kumar, Christina Austin, Melissa Abbey, Nicole Comparato, Paula Seligson, Chelsea Bailey, Maria Gontaruk Newsroom adviser: Erica Perel Editorial Production: Stacy Wynn manager Printing: Triangle Web Printing Co.

Estes Gould, Jessica Seaman, Madeline Will, Kelly Blessing, Vinayak Balasubramanian, Matt Steyl, Katie Barbee, Brendan Cooley, Stirling The Daily Tar Heel is published by the DTH Media Corp., a nonprofit North Carolina corporation, Monday through Friday, according to the University calendar. Callers with questions about billing or display advertising should call 962-1163 bet ween 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Classified ads can be reached at 962-0252. Editorial guestions should be directed to 962-0245.

OFFICE: 151 E. Rosemary St. U.S. MAIL ADDRESS: P.O. Box 3257,

Chapel Hill, NC 27515-3257

Education, School of Nursing, School of Philosophy Psychology

Social Work, School of Public Policy

Study Abroad

Summer School

Women's Studies

Writing Center, The

for most up-to-date list..

English and Comparative Literature Entrepreneurship, Minor in Exercise and Sport Science

Health Policy and Management

Germanic & Slavic Languages & Literatures

Public Health, Gillings School of Global

Statistics and Operations Research

Undergraduate Research, Office for

*As of 9/14/11. Visit alumni.unc.edu/mexpo

Information Science, Bachelor of Science in (BSIS)

Master of Accounting Program, Kenan-Flagler Business School

CLARIFICATIONS

Monday's campus brief "New computerized LifeTime Library will be used by UNC" stated that freshmen in the School of Information and Library Science will be the first to have access to the new program. It will be available to all of the school's incoming students. The Daily Tar Heel apologizes for any confusion.

- The Daily Tar Heel reports any inaccurate information published as soon as the error is discovered. Editorial corrections will be printed on this page. Errors committed on the Opinion Page have corrections printed on
- that page. Corrections also are noted in the online versions of our stories.
- Contact Managing Editor Tarini Parti at managing.editor@dailytarheel.com with issues about this policy.

DAs and dominatrices

From staff and wire reports

imes are tough in this economy, and taking on second or third jobs to make ends meet is a perfectly acceptable practice these days. Unless, apparently, your first job is being a prosecutor and your second job is whipping people

New York prosecutor Alisha Smith, 36, learned that the hard way after she was suspended from her job Monday. The suspension comes because of a rule stipulating that employees must seek permission before engaging in any pursuit that could be worth more than $1,000. Looks like someone needs a spanking.

NOTED. Here in North Carolina, we like to celebrate birthdays by acting like a sorority girl who forgot her morals. In Florida, they like to drive lawnmowers and howl.

That's what Merrilee Schwarz, 51, did on Wednesday before being arrested. Malzel tov.

QUOTED. "There's nothing wrong with a loving, committed relationship between an old man and a hot young woman ... I see many of you agree."

- Steve Levitan, showrunner for "Modern Family," addressing the crowd at the 2011 Emmy Awards.

POLICE LOG

 An employer closed his or her business and left the country with payroll at 255 S. Elliott Road, according to Chapel Hill police Someone reported the incident to police at 3:48 p.m. Friday, reports state.

- Someone knocked on a door and requested money for gas between 7:30 a.m. and 7:47 a.m. Friday at 200 Chesapeake Way, according to Chapel Hill police
- Someone spray painted a vehicle and the police substation building between 5 p.m. Friday and 10:37 a.m. Sunday at 501 Sykes St., according to Chapel Hill police reports.

The damage to the police substation totaled $100, reports

According to reports, damage to the vandalized car, a white 2003 Chevy Trailblazer, totaled $500.

• Someone reported a suspicious condition at 6:54 p.m. Friday at 1800 E. Franklin St., according to Chapel Hill police reports.

Someone may have put bleach into the victim's Coke, reports

- Someone broke into Tarheel Telecom between 7:30 p.m. Friday and 10:40 a.m. Saturday at 109 N. Graham St., according to Chapel Hill police reports.
- The suspect pried open the door and stole $4 in cash, reports state.
- Someone broke into and entered a vehicle between midnight and 2 p.m. on Sunday, according to Chapel Hill police reports. An unknown suspect entered tol from the glove box, police reports state.

the car and took a 9mm pis-

The pistol was valued at $300, reports state.

It was taken from a 2008 black Nissan Altima, according Participating majors* Academic Advising Program Allied Health Sciences American Studies Asian Studies Business Program, Kenan-Flagler Undergraduate Career Services, University Clinical Laboratory Science Communication Studies Continuing Education, Friday Center for Dramatic Art Ecology and Environment, Curriculum for

Not sure which major you want to pursue? Not sure what to do with your major once you graduate?

Get your answers. Find your spark. Wednesday, Sept. 21 at Great Hall / 10 a.m. – 2 p.m.

- Open to all students, all years
- Free drinks and snacks
- Drawing for prizes (GAA members only)

For more information, visit alumni.unc.edu/mexpo

STUDENT MEMBERSHIP PROGRAM

GENERAL ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

BRIEF

CAMPUS BRIEFS

Student Congress groups to meet tonight to deliberate

Three committees of Student Congress will meet tonight to discuss a variety of issues.

The finance committee will discuss a bill to clarify the treasurer certification process. It will also vote on funding requests from several student organizations.

The groups include College Republicans, Campus Blueprint, Bounce Magazine and the Black Student Movement, among others.

The oversight committee will vote on the approval of the Graduate and Professional Student Federation's appointments to the renewable energy special project committee.

It will also review a set of student fees.

The rules and judiciary committee will revisit efforts to reform Titles I and IV of the Student Code.

Study could help scientists understand immune system

Researchers at UNC have found a key component of cells that could help treat diseases such as type I diabetes, arthritis and lupus.

The study looked at the composition of cells known as Tregs, which can stop cells in the body from attacking other healthy cells. The results of the study could help scientists better understand how the immune system works.

Findings from the study were published last week in the online journal Immunity. Researchers used mice to test for cell abnormalities and mutations.

The National Institutes of Health, the Lupus Research Institute and the University Cancer Research Fund provided money for the research. The study was co-authored by Yungi Wang and Dr. Maureen Su.

Researchers complete huge study on brain disorders

Genetics professor Dr. Patrick Sullivan was a principal investigator on a team of more than 250 researchers that discovered a link between a person's genetics and his or her risk of schizophrenia and bipolar disorder.

The researchers, who came from more than 20 different countries, studied the DNA composition of more than 50,000 adults. They found common DNA links between schizophrenia and bipolar disorder.

Sullivan said this is by far the largest study of its kind. He is a member of the UNC Lineberger Comprehensive Cancer Center and the Carolina Center for Genome Sciences.

Approximately one percent of the world's population suffers from both of these diseases. People with histories of schizophrenia and bipolar disorder in their family are at a much higher risk of developing the debilitating

Research was funded with money from European, U.S. and Australian sources.

N.C. State group sponsors student idea competition

The Institute for Emerging Issues, a public policy organization at N.C. State University, is hosting the Emerging Issues Prize for Innovation for the second year.

The student competition hopes to spur thoughts about North Carolina's most pressing issues.

This year's Emerging Issues Prize challenges students to devise an innovative idea that will help North Carolina's high school graduation rate.

Students are encouraged to work in teams to create an application.

Student finalist teams will receive $1,000, and the winning team will receive $5,000 to put their idea in motion.

The winning team is chosen by a public vote.

Last year's winning team was composed of UNC students.

UNC study shows impact of programs on young drivers

The Gillings School of Public Health published a study that shows the impact of graduated driver's licensing programs on teenage drivers.

The research shows these programs lower the rate of fatal crashes among 16-year-old drivers by 26 percent.

But, researchers claim the same programs are associated with a 12 percent increase in the number of fatal accidents among 18-year-olds.

- From staff and wire reports

Amtrak funds could be slashed

New proposal would prohibit the trains from using federal funds.

By Matt Steyl Staff Writer

Students who take the train home to Charlotte might have to find an alternate mode of transportation if a proposed budget plan is passed by Congress.

The federal transportation budget, proposed by congressional Republicans, would cut funding to Amtrak and prevent it from using federal funds to operate state-supported railroad lines, such as the Piedmont line from Raleigh to Charlotte.

The proposal would force 15 states to decide whether to keep local Amtrak lines up and run-

Rep. Bill McGee, R-Forsyth, said he doesn't think there will be enough state funding to cover the proposed Amtrak cuts. "We are already in shortfall, money in the (Department of Transportation)," he said. McGee said state trains will be more in demand as the price of fuel rises, meaning less federal and we would love to have more for the state. Steve Kulm, a spokesman for Amtrak, said the proposal cuts Amtrak's operating funds by funding could cause problems more than $350 million.

"We think it's a shortsighted policy," Kulm said. "America needs more passenger rail, not

Patrick Simmons, director of the rail division of the N.C. Department of Transportation, said the funding cut would impact Amtrak's record-breaking number of passengers.

Passengers for the Piedmont line have increased 50 percent compared to last year, he said.

"North Carolina's trains do very well in returning revenues to support the service," he said. "Passengers in North Carolina pay about 79 to 80 percent of the total cost of the operation."

But Simmons said the annual

"It's a shortsighted policy. America needs more passenger rail, not less."

Steve Kulm, Amtrak spokesman contract with Amtrak covers the rest of the costs of operation.

"There's no transportation system, whether it's railroads, or highways, or transit, or aviation, that funds itself," he said.

Scott Saylor, president of the N.C. Railroad Company, said the state might not be able to afford the operating costs of trains if the budget plan is approved.

"We could have the infrastructure but not the trains," he said.

The company, whose stock is owned by the state, hosted a Progress in Motion Forum last week to discuss the future of railroads, Saylor said.

Some students who rely on the train to travel to Charlotte might struggle to find transportation.

Roli Tyagi, a UNC sophomore, said she would have to rely more often on friends with cars.

"It would be really inconvenient," she said.

"I use the train as a backup when I can't find a ride or if it's last minute."

Contact the State & National Editor at state@dailytarheel.com.

MUSIC OF COMMUNITY

Daniel Levi Goans, a 2009 UNC graduate, released his folk album "BrotherStranger" in his native Greensboro on Saturday.

Founder of UNC Pirate Club releases folk album

By Grace Tatter Staff Writer

English majors often use books in their careers — but not as musical instruments.

Daniel Levi Goans, who graduated from UNC in 2009 with an English degree, does just that on his album "BrotherStranger," which was released Saturday in Greensboro.

Goans — who is from Greensboro said he is strongly influenced by his North Carolina roots.

"Folk music is a music of stories," he said. "It connects people and it's a much more community-based genre."

Goans recorded the album in an old library in Royal Oak, Md., on the Chesapeake Bay during his nine months at Trinity Forum Academy.

The academy hosts a postgraduate fellowship that allows 12 artists each year to hone their craft in a community setting. He said he spent about two years crafting and writing the album that was recorded there.

Goans said that although his sound is distinctly North Carolinian, he was inspired by his surroundings, and used the spines of the books in the library as percussion.

"BrotherStranger" is Goans' second solo album, but he said it is the first one to be widely marketed.

His first, "Choice Cannonball," was released in September 2009.

Earlier this month, he released a 40-minute single, recorded in Greensboro with other local musicians as a precursor to the album release.

As an undergraduate at UNC, Goans played in The War, a rock band that started when its members were UNC students.

Scott Cash, a member of The War and 2005 UNC graduate, said Goans immediately impressed him and fellow band member Ken Pittman.

Goans first played with the band as a freshman when they needed a keyboard player in a pinch. He learned 15 songs in about two hours,

While the band toured around the U.S. and recorded in Nashville, Tenn., Goans said he completed his final semesters at UNC through correspondence courses. Though The War was a rock band, Goans said he classifies his solo music as

Cash said that Goans' transition from rock music to folk is not surprising. "He's got a great ear for rock music, but he's always been into James Taylor and Paul Simon," he said.

Although Goans recorded his album in almost complete isolation, 12 musicians performed with him at the CD's release party on Saturday, recreating the tracks'

BUY THE ALBUM

Info: Visit daniellevigoans.com to listen to and purchase the album, "BrotherStranger."

Greensboro musician Edward Kerr played guitar at the show. He said the live performances of the album demonstrate Goans' passion for community in music.

"Getting that many people in one room together, making sounds that we all love, is going to be really exciting," Kerr said before Saturday's performance.

The release party was held at The Blind Tiger Neighborhood Bar, a Greensboro

During his time as a student in Chapel Hill, Goans' interest in building community was not limited to music.

As a freshman, he started the Pirate Club at UNC.

Despite its lack of purpose, the club garnered more than 600 members in a matter of weeks, he said.

The club created "Shiver Me Timbers" T-shirts that at least 200 people purchased.

"I've always loved community, so that's why I'm drawn to writing and music and the Pirate Club," he said.

> $Contact\ the\ Arts\ Editor$ at arts@dailytarheel.com.

Carolina Creates sketches ambitious aims

Innovate@Carolina offshoot will sponsor concerts, performance.

By Nick Andersen Senior Writer

With a broad vision and a even broader heft, a permanent version of the Chancellor's Student Innovation Team was officially launched Monday, angling to foster a more creative and innovative campus.

And while completion of the group's goals — which include a TEDx conference, spontaneous music performances in public spaces and a student literary competition, among other initiatives — is telescoped out for years to come, group leaders are optimistic about their chances of success.

'Now's the time for us to take action," committee chairman Hudson Vincent, a junior, told a large gathering of students involved with the project. "We can do great things on campus right now." The group, dubbed Carolina Creates, is an offshoot of Chancellor Holden Thorp's extensive Innovate@Carolina fund raising campaign. It builds upon the efforts of other arts policy initiatives, including former student body president Hogan Medlin's Arts Innovation Steering Committee.

Members of that committee, which largely failed to capitalize on its policy projects due to fund raising difficulties, have been intimately involved in Carolina Creates.

The group's vice chairman is senior Ian Lee, who was student body secretary in the Medlin administration. Lee is also a current member of The Daily Tar Heel's editorial board.

The new group appears to creativity. Sub-committees have take a expanded definition of

"We're trying to get student music out of Hill Hall and into the Pit or the Daily Grind."

Carolina Creates vice chairman

lan Lee,

already worked to sponsor student musician performances in the Pit and other public spaces, and others are in talks to help display student visual art in campus buildings.

"We're trying to get student music out of Hill Hall and into the Pit or the Daily Grind or Graham Memorial," Lee said.

Monday's meeting also marked the first public presentation of a planned campus TEDx Conference.

The conference, an official affiliate of the international nonprofit organization TED, will bring a roster of speakers to the University in January. The conference will focus on the theme of Global Initiatives, but the lineup is still largely tentative.

Junior Rachel Myrick, who is spearheading the TEDx effort, would only confirm that current entrepreneur in residence Dennis Whittle will give a talk at the event.

Whittle is a UNC alumnus and the co-founder of social fund raising organization GlobalGiving.

'We're aiming to make this an annual event," Myrick said. Members admitted that the group's association with one of the chancellor's biggest policy pushes has helped it overcome administrative and financial hurdles, but Vincent stressed the role of the average student in the group's ultimate plan. "This is all about what students as students can do to make our university better," he said.

> $Contact\ the\ Arts\ Editor$ at arts@dailytarheel.com.

Perry finds fans at UNC

A new student group supports the GOP presidential candidate.

By Corinne White Staff Writer

A new student-led support group is rallying behind conservative presidential candidate Rick Perry.

N.C. Students for Rick Perry is a chapter of a national organization, whose members say Perry, a Republican presidential candidate and Texas governor, would be a "fiscally responsible" president. His emphasis on job creation has also won students over.

"We're fired up. We're pumped up," said UNC student Brendan Madigan, who leads the N.C. chapter of the group.

Madigan said the organization has been garnering support by spreading the word through College Republican groups and its Facebook page.

"Rick Perry has created environment with less regulation to allow businesses to flourish,"

Jason Roberts, a political science professor at UNC, said Perry appeals more to the conservative base of the GOP, which might help him more in a primary than a general election.

"Perry has taken the GOP field by storm," Roberts said. "He is plain spoken and is very effective on the stump."

Daniel Walker, vice chairman of N.C. Students for Rick Perry, attends Guilford Technical Community College, where several of his fellow classmates have also joined the group.

Walker said he's been speaking at different political group meetings on campus to publicize the organization's efforts. (Perry's) a conservative man, and as a conservative man, it's nice to have someone who stays firm on the issues and doesn't waver from that," he said. But Nathan Westmoreland, president of the UNC Young Democrats, said Perry is a "scary" candidate. "He wants to cut things like the (U.S.) Departments of Education and Health and Human Services and repeal Obamacare, which helped hundreds of thousands of people in (Texas) that need health insurance," Westmoreland said. The Young Democrats are already gathering campus support for President Barack Obama's reelection campaign. The group recently ran a voter registration campaign but is currently focused on local races.

Greg Steele, chairman of UNC College Republicans, said his organization has not endorsed a presidential candidate but is happy to see the active participation in Perry's campaign.

Other Republican candidates are also seeing some campus support, but there has not been an organized effort yet. UNC College Libertarians member Kevin Martin said some of the organization's members plan to campaign for Ron Paul. "I think he is the most likely to promote our individual liberties sible fiscal policy," Martin said. Contact the State & National Editor at state@dailytarheel.com.

while also maintaining respon-

Tuesday, September 20, 2011 The Daily Tax Heel

Our campus just isn't the same without you. Thanks for a great summer and best wishes for an awesome year!

Your friends at Capital One.

To: Kristin Teager UNC Chapel Hill, NC

Our interns are integrated as full-time associates into our most important businesses to solve meaningful problems. Learn more about internships at Capital One®. Visit our website: www.capitalone.com/careers.

Ad was developed by 2011 Intern Dushyant "Fox" Narayan © 2011 Capital One. All rights reserved.

FROM PAGE 1

"This consumes us," he said. "It's what we do. It's what we have been doing for the last year."

The University said in the response that it agrees with most of the information in eight of the nine allegations, but it contested parts of the ninth allegation.

The refuted allegation includes a claim that the University failed to adequately monitor social networking.

"Allegation No. 9 (b) is unprecedented," the response states. "No NCAA member institution has ever been found to have violated NCAA legislation due to an alleged failure to monitor 'social networking activity' of studentathletes.

Baddour said he feels the University took responsibility for the violations it committed but added that defending itself on that specific issue was neces-

"We debated just to accept that, but we just decided that we had done what was expected of us, what could have been expected of us, and just didn't feel like we could give in on that point," Baddour said.

Baddour said that University officials, with the help of legal counsel, crafted the self-imposed sanctions by looking at past NCAA investigations at other institutions.

In addition to the consequences, the response also outlines corrective actions the University plans to incorporate. The actions, which include rules about the relationships between and communication methods used by student-athletes and tutors, are separated into seven different categories.

And while the sanctions outlined by UNC in its response will likely affect the University for several years, UNC might not be in the clear just yet.

News

Baddour and Thorp will go before the NCAA Committee on Infractions in a hearing on Oct. 28, during which further consequences to the UNC football program could be levied — including a potential postseason ban.

Baddour did not say whether former head football coach Butch Davis will be present at the hearing, but said interim head coach Everett Withers will be attending.

"Everett understands," Baddour said. "He is supportive of the University's process, and his total focus is how does he help move this football program forward and how do we put all of this behind us."

> Contact the Sports Editor at sports@dailytarheel.com.

WILEY

FROM PAGE 1

coach Butch Davis. Wiley had previously worked with Davis' son as his tutor. On all three occasions, the player denied any wrongdoing and the case was apparently dropped.

Both Blanchard and Gallo declined comment and forwarded all questions to Baddour.

The response states UNC has abandoned the academic mentor program, imposed additional constraints to student athletes and their tutors or learning assistants, increased the budget to hire and retain tutors and to expand rules education for tutors, among other corrective actions.

It wasn't until investigators conducted interviews and read players' emails that they discovered the academic fraud. The fraud dated back as far as April 2008 and occurred on multiple occasions until Wiley's contract wasn't renewed in July 2009 the same month she provided improper assistance to former UNC player Michael McAdoo on his heavily plagiarized Swahili

According to the letter, on Aug. 20, just one day before UNC officials attempted to contact Wiley and her counsel, she paid $1,789 worth of outstanding parking tickets for a football player. For five days UNC officials attempted to contact Wiley before holding an Aug. 26 press conference to announce they were now investigating potential academic fraud.

Despite the large, one-time payment being made by credit card just one day before UNC attempted to call her, University officials say they did not know about the parking tickets until November 2010.

"The University learned this information during a separate review of parking citations received by football student athletes in response to media requests for records under the North Carolina Public Records Act," the response states.

Those records, for which The Daily Tar Heel and other media outlets sued, showed UNC football players racked up 395 tickets totaling more than $13,000 in a three-and-a-half year span.

One of the additional monitoring measures UNC has now imposed is a biweekly report of student-athlete parking citations from UNC's Department of Public

> Contact the Sports Editor at sports@dailytarheel.com.

BABY-SITTING BUDDY

DTH/SILVANA GOBERDHAN-VIGLE

reschooler Ryah Layne, 3, gets an early start on UNC traditions as she drinks from the Old Well. She accompanied her baby sitter, senior communications major Sarah Lilly, to class on Monday. She was well-behaved all day and prepared for class with her "Little Mermaid" backpack.

HOMECOMING

FROM PAGE 1

pendent music community, they have similar fan bases.

Last year's Passion Pit concert sold out. More than 2,000 tickets were sold on the first day. Though the energy and audience for this year's show will be similar, Hinton said that she does not expect it to be exactly the same.

"They're kind of a weird band, and their type of music is very different," she said.

"Watching Twitter and at arts@dailytarheel.com.

AFAM REVIEW

FROM PAGE 1

result of Nyang'oro's resignation. She added that the committee will be formed by Sept. 27.

Owen said the department's issues and those surrounding independent study are unrelated. "It's an issue that the faculty looks at periodically," Owen said. She said independent study is discussed about every 10 years. "Currently, only 12 hours of independent study course credit can count toward the total credit hours a student needs to graduate," Owen said. She said the University encourages students to participate in service-based learning, internships or research that can qualify as independent study credit.

But the practice begs the question of whether the University should raise the credit hour limit for these courses, Owen said.

Raising the limit on independent study hours could be discussed again in the committee's progressive blog Orange Politics, said the intentions of more affluent neighborhoods, such as Greenwood, often differ from those of historically low-income neighborhoods, such as Northside and Pine Knolls.

NEIGHBORHOODS FROM PAGE 1

"When you look at Northside and Pine Knolls, they're trying to prevent gentrification ... Whereas the other neighborhoods, they are also concerned about 'McMansions," she said.

Sinreich, who helped form the Northside conservation district, said the plans were designed to prevent change to the character of the neighborhood but can prevent the areas from developing at all.

Bell added that the zoning requirements often prevent duplexes and other affordable, high-density housing construction in an effort to keep students away, but the result can hurt lowincome families.

A new plan

George Cianciolo, co-chairman of the group working to draft a new comprehensive plan, said the new plan will likely address the successes and failures of conservation districts.

"I think they'll be on the table," he said. "The comprehensive planning process will look at whether we've achieved what we've wanted with them."

He said they need to consider whether conservation district requirements will allow Chapel Hill to reach development goals.

Bell agreed that zoning ordinances will be part of the process.

"We change them as we learn about new and better ways of doing things," she said. "We are not married to our neighborhood conservation districts.

> City Editor Jeanna Smialek contributed reporting.

Contact the City Editor at city@dailytarheel.com.

review, she said.

But a proposal to raise the limit was shot down the last time it was discussed by faculty members, Owen said.

Dee Reid, director of communications for the College of Arts and Sciences, said Gil declined to comment in order to preserve the integrity of the committee's discussion.

Nyang'oro resigned following the (Raleigh) News & Observer's report that he had hired a sports agent to teach a summer class without informing Gil.

It was also discovered this summer that former defensive end universities have to succeed both at athletics and their academic mission."

UNC chancellor

Michael McAdoo had plagiarized a paper for Nyang'oro's class, and the offense had gone undetected by Nyang'oro as well as UNC's honor system.

Huber was appointed to interim "Carolina and all public A task force led by Jan Boxill,

Chairwoman of the political science department Evelyne chairwoman of the department. This review is not the only one sparked in part by McAdoo's plagiarized paper.

Holden Thorp, chairwoman of the faculty, is slated to begin examining the student-led honor system.

The honor system originally found McAdoo only to be guilty of receiving help with the works cited page for the paper that was later found to be largely plagiarized.

Contact the University Editor at university@dailytarheel.com.

"They're kind of a weird band, and their type of music is very different."

Cierra Hinton, President of CUAB

CUAB hopes to attract not just students but members of the greater Chapel Hill area, Hinton

Facebook, people seem to be really excited about it," she said. "We're hoping the surrounding community will be as well."

Contact the Arts Editor

What can a quarter do?

Get a gum ball out of a machine. Buy time on a parking meter. Support economic development & education.

On Tuesday, November 8th

All registered voters in Orange County will have the opportunity to vote the 1/4¢ sales and use tax.

EVERY $100 SPENT

by Orange County residents and visitors will generate 25¢ for economic development and education in our area.

This sales tax would not apply to groceries, gasoline, and prescription medicines.

How will these earnings be allocated? If approved, these revenues will be distributed equally in Orange County.

50% OF THE FUNDING will go to jobs and Economic Development 50% OF THE FUNDING will go to County and City Schools

For more information, go to the Orange County website, www.orangecountync.gov/salestax

PAID FOR BY ORANGE COUNTY GOVERNMENT

Don't Forget To November 8th

Downtown Chapel Hill • 106 W. Franklin St. (Next to He's Not Here) Mon-Thurs 11:30am-11:30pm • Fri-Sat 11:30am-Midnight • Sun 12pm-11:30pm 942-PUMP • www.yogurtpump.com

Are You Ready to Quit Smoking?

The Duke Center for Nicotine and Smoking Cessation Research is looking for right-handed cigarette smokers to participate in a research study. Qualified participants will be scheduled for a physical screening and 10 study visits.

Compensation up to $510

For more information & to find out if you qualify,

Call today 1-888-525-DUKE Email: smoking@duke.edu www.dukesmoking.com

(Pro00028331)

Town tree canopy efforts praised

Staff Writer

Chapel Hill's newly revised tree canopy standards have brought the town more than shade.

Earlier this month, the N.C. Forest Service gave Chapel Hill the "Outstanding Project Merit Award" for revising its 20-yearold tree protection ordinance.

The Urban Forestry Awards Program recognizes communities, organizations and individuals for protecting and enhancing city forests, according to its website.

Jennifer Rall, urban forestry program assistant, said parts of Chapel Hill's revised ordinance for foliage protection stood out to Discussions for the revised ordinance began in 2007, the Chapel Hill Town Council enacted it in December 2010 and it went into effect this March.

The new ordinance requires developments to fulfill a minimum proportion of canopy cover-

Rall, administrator of the awards program and one of four judges, said the ordinance requires a follow-up a year after enactment, setting it apart.

"It's important that someone goes back to check if the ordinance is doing what it's supposed to do," she said. Rall said while she welcomes urbanization, she doesn't approve of the way trees are afterthoughts in many large developments. "A tree should be considered as a piece of infrastructure just

Emily Cameron, a landscape architect for the town's Public Works department, said another like sidewalks and buildings," Rall

DTH/MAGGIE BARBER

This tree is one of many that stand within the tree-protection areas of McCorkle Place and the quad.

winning factor was the three-year ordinance revision process, which allowed for direct public input.

Arborists, civil engineers and neighborhood groups were asked to be involved in information sessions and the public hearing.

Chapel Hill has a long history of protecting trees, Cameron

In 1990, the town was one of the first communities in North Carolina to adopt a tree-protection ordinance.

Chapel Hill has been recognized 12 times as a Tree City USA. To become one, a city must meet four criteria set by the Arbor Day Foundation. The town's tree protection ordinance doesn't apply to the University's campus.

But Tom Bythell, the University forest manager, said the work by campus tree crews is comparable

BUY A COUCH . FIND A JOB . DITCH YOUR ROOMMATE

www.dailytarheel.com/classifieds

we're here for you. all day. every day

SELL YOUR CAR . FIND A SITTER . VOLUNTEER to the town's.

The University has a long commitment to the protection of the urban forest, he said.

Bythell said there's been a University arborist since the early

"Trees are extremely important from an energy-saving perspective," Bythell said. If the campus were clear of trees, it could be 10 to 15 degrees warmer, he said. Cameron also said tree shade can enhance property value.

"In the summertime, everyone welcomes the shade on the street,"

The Town of Garner's White Deer Park won the Outstanding Project Grand Award from the

> Contact the City Editor at city@dailytarheel.com.

Tax for transit stalled to help tax for schools

By Meredith Burns Staff Writer

Plans for a regional light rail connecting Orange and Durham counties have been put on hold

The Orange County Board of Commissioners has postponed putting a half-cent sales tax increase on the ballot Nov. 8, which was proposed to finance the light rail.

Commissioner Barry Jacobs said another increase — a quarter-cent sales tax that would create revenue for local schools and economic growth — took priority over the half-cent sales tax.

'We are focused on passing the quarter-cent first," Jacobs said.

The board, unwilling to overwhelm voters with multiple tax increases, will discuss putting the half-cent increase on the ballot next year, Jacobs said.

Orange County commissioners are also waiting to see how a similar half-cent tax will fare in Durham County elections.

Orange County Board of Commissioners discussed a regional and local transportation plan between Orange and Durham counties in April.

A proposed light rail — an urban railway that uses trolley cars — was one component.

But County Manager Frank Clifton said Orange County will not move forward with plans for a light rail until Durham County approves its portion of the light rail's funding.

Durham's half-cent tax would generate funding for light rail construction by 2024.

Without Durham County's approval of the light rail, Orange County's plan lacks feasibility," Clifton said.

Commissioner Earl McKee said he questions the light rail's practicality in Orange County.

We do not have the dense urban areas to create a sustainable demand for light rail," he

But Jacobs said the light rail would connect residents to centers of commerce in the Triangle. But he said the board has

"We are focused on passing the quartercent first."

Barry Jacobs, Orange County commissioner

other plans to improve public transportation in Orange County, including new and expanded bus

While these plans have flexible funding options, the board isn't considering any other funding option for the light rail.

"If we want to do the light rail component, there is no way we can do it without the halfcent sales tax increase," said Commissioner Chairwoman Bernadette Pelissier.

She said the transit plan is still

"It's a work in progress," Jacobs said. "We are not ready to make a proposal to the voters."

> Contact the City Editor at city@dailytarheel.com.

lybrid classes to change

By Gayatri Surendranathan

Freshmen at select Chapel Hill-Carrboro City high schools are facing schedule changes only three weeks into the school year.

The changes will occur within the next couple of days and come as a result of miscommunication between the school board and the schools' administrations on how to implement honors courses, officials said.

Both Carrboro High School and East Chapel Hill High School offer "hybrid classes" — a format in which both standard and honors level students are taught in the same classroom by the same Carrboro High School implemented the system in the 2010-2011 school year, placing freshmen in "hybrid" English and world history classes, said Principal Colin Batten.

"We wanted to resolve scheduling conflicts and provide a common experience for all freshmen,"

East Chapel Hill High School followed suit this year, introducing a hybrid freshman biology

When parents of East Chapel Hill High School students complained, the system looked into the issue at all high schools and found that Carrboro High School had been offering the classes as well.

This conflicted with a February 2010 school board decision, said Stephanie Knott, spokeswoman for Chapel Hill Carrboro City Schools.

When we discussed adding more honors classes for freshmen over a year ago, the hybrid model was mentioned," said Annetta Streater, a school board member. "We dismissed it due to concerns that teachers wouldn't be able to split instruction between two levels at once."

But the stipulation is not explicitly stated in the resolution, Streater said.

Principals of both schools have been contacted and are currently working to fix the issue, she said.

Batten said he believed hybrid classes were allowed under the school board's provisions and had not received any complaints about the program last year. "I liked that it provided all students an opportunity to experience honors-level work," he said. "We were looking forward to seeing how our tenth graders performed."

The school will redistribute the classes between two new teachers. Streater said she worries for students who will have schedule "Hopefully it won't make the transition to high school any tougher than it has to be," she

> Contact the City Editor at City@dailytarheel.com.

CHOOSE HOUSTON LAW

THEY TOOK IT TO THE SUPREME COURT AND WON!

Our students shepherded a case through the lower courts and on to the nation's highest, stunning the immigration world with a unanimous decision. Hands-on training is a large part of what we do at the University of Houston Law Center. But it's just part of what we offer. The Law Center combines the best of all worlds:

- Excellence in education with multiple "Top Ten" specialty programs
- Reasonable tuition and fees
- A campus recognized as one of the most diverse in the United States

We are a Tier One law school in a Tier One university. In addition, our home is Houston: the nation's fourth largest city with a robust legal employment market and an affordable cost of living to make the most of your budget. There's a lot to like about our school. Find out more at www.law.uh.edu.

UNIVERSITY of HOUSTON LAW CENTER

Film Screening and Q&A with the filmmaker

September 20, 5:30 pm Union Auditorium

For more information, contact Devin Russell. dprussel@email.unc.edu

Presented by Carolina Union Activities Board Latinas Promoviendo Comunidad/ Lambda Pi Chi Sorority, Inc.

Theta Nu Xi Multicultural Sorority, Inc.

Critical Speaker Series UNC Dept. of English and Comparative Literature

Michael Warner

(Yale University)

"An Evangelical Public Sphere" Thursday, Sept. 22, 3:30pm Toy Lounge, Dey Hall

Meet-and-greet with Michael Warner September 23, 11am-12pm Donovan Lounge (Greenlaw Hall)

Roundtable discussion: "Public Spheres and Public Spaces" September 23, 3:30-5pm Donovan Lounge (Greenlaw Hall)

All Events Free and Open to the public

For more information: contact David Baker Professor of English Department of English and Comparative Literature CB# 3520 Unviversity of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Chapel Hill, NC 27599-3520 USA 919-962-4059 • davidbak@email.unc.edu

Panhellenic Council finds minor violations

By Ryan O'Rorke Staff Writer

One and a half weeks after sororities extended bids to new members, the Panhellenic Council is addressing a litany of small recruitment violations.

Lorna Knick, vice president of standards for the council, said the violations are relatively common, and that no serious violations were reported.

Included in these violations are exceeded time periods for recruitment rounds, impermissible gifts to potential new members and the use of restricted words in skits.

Gifts can be anything from a cup to a napkin that potential new members carry out of the house during recruitment.

Among the words prohibited in songs, chants or skits are "girl" and "rushee."

While these infractions are not out of the ordinary, Knick said they must be reported and dealt with formally.

"Every chapter with infractions will go through the mediation process and get results from there," she said.

Panhellenic Council members said they wanted to maintain a heightened presence at chapter houses during recruitment

"We wanted to be available to the chapters and to be aware of any infractions that take place," said Katie Chubb, vice president of recruitment for the council, in an email.

Women celebrate their bids in the Arboretum last year. The Panhellenic Council is now addressing violations that occurred during rush this year.

Chubb said none of the recruitment infractions will affect next year's recruitment.

Lindsey Stephens, president of the Panhellenic Council, said the system's ability to adjust to significant changes in the process has been particularly impressive.

This year, sororities dealt with new policies from the Panhellenic Council, such as the requirement for all potential new members to wear identical shirts during the first round of recruitment.

Stephens said the policy is an attempt to move toward a "no-frills recruitment," which would make the rush period less demanding for sororities.

A new upperclassmen quota prompted nearly double the amount of non-freshmen to rush this fall compared to last year, said Jermisha Dodson, interim coordinator of fraternity and sorority life.

Dodson said there is room for expansion in upperclassmen membership but potential new members responded positively in the effort's first year.

Contact the University Editor at university@dailytarheel.com

NC native becomes 'sexpert'

Amber Madison has written 3 books about relationships and sex.

By Victoria Esguerra

Amber Madison wants to talk

That desire prompted her to write three books on the topic, helped her to become a sex columnist for Seventeen Magazine and last week, landed her a guest spot on Ryan Seacrest's radio

But Madison's belief that people should talk openly about relationships didn't start in New York, where she lives —but in Orange County.

Madison, a N.C. native, grew up in Orange County and attended Orange County High School.

She said her local roots exposed her to people who differ from those she has known in big cities, helping her to realize that relationship issues are universal.

"Chapel Hill is very different from Boston and New York," she said. "Relationships are part of human experience. It's a universal thing, and it doesn't matter what race you are or where you're Jane Madison, a professor in the UNC Department of Psychiatry and Amber Madison's mother, said she supports her daughter's sometimes controversial career choice.

"I think it's really creative," she said. "She took what she loved, which is writing, and a topic she is good at talking about, relation-ships, and is making a living off After high school, Amber Madison moved to Massachusetts to attend Tufts University, where she wrote a school newspaper sex column titled "Between the Sheets.

"Sex needed to be talked about more," she said. "People had questions about sex, their bodies and relationships."

Madison said although her column was sometimes controversial, she still had support.

"For the most part, I was supported by the students and faculty," she said.

Amber Madison, an Orange County native, recently appeared on the Ryan Seacrest radio show to share sex and relationship advice.

in 2005 and moved to New York City in 2008.

In May 2011 she started writing as Seventeen's "sexpert."

She recently released an iPhone application, "A-hole Tester," which she discussed on Seacrest's show last week.

The app uses Madison's research to determine the probability that the user's partner is a jerk, she said.

Madison has also written three books, including "Hooking Up" and "Talking Sex with Your Kids." Madison is now working on promoting her new book "Are All Guys Assholes?" that will be released Sept. 29.

"There are women who are attracted to so-called jerks, and there are men who act like jerks because that's what they think women want," she said.

Madison said after conducting extensive research, she concluded in her book that men care about

She said she visited 10 major metropolitan cities and interviewed more than 1,000 random men about their views on dating.

"I'd walk into bars, fast food restaurants, and ask guys to answer questions," she said.

"I asked what (their) primary interest with women is and actually 73 percent of the men said to have a serious relationship." Madison is also a lecturer on sex and relationships for Jodi Solomon Speakers. Jodi Solomon, president of the organization, said Madison has a unique style of lecturing. "She does not preach; she educates," she said. Madison said her goal for the lectures is to teach students to be proud of their decisions. "It's about learning how to make sexual decisions you can agree with the next day."

Contact the City Editor

Online MBA program a success

By Grace Raynor Staff Writer

Kenan-Flagler Business School administrators say a new program, which allows students to earn their Masters of Business Administration degrees without setting foot on campus, is running smoothly. The school is one of the first major business schools in the country to offer an online program for MBAs, said Douglas Shackelford, associate dean of MBA@UNC, the new program. He added that despite some concerns, the program has been successful so far.

"I think it's exceeded all expectations," he said. "Across the board, things have gone better than could have reasonably been expected.

But online degree programs are nothing new to UNC, with the School of Journalism and Mass Communication and the Gillings School of Global Public Health already boasting online options.

The online curriculum offered by MBA@UNC loses little in the move from the residential model, Shackelford said.

"It's a real class, except it would be like having a seminar with 10 to 15 students sitting around the table," he said.

Class discussions are conducted online, some by video. "Call it the Brady Bunch," Shackelford said. "Everyone's face is on the screen."

Students raise their hands by clicking a button, discuss material and review problems together. The journalism school launched an online program this year for 20 incoming students to earn Masters of Arts in Technology and Communication degrees, the first online degree in journalism offered in the UNC system. The fundamental difference between the business and journalism programs is their development, said Louise Spieler, associate dean for professional education and strategic initiatives.

"The key difference is we developed the program completely inhouse, and of course, the online MBA program is working with

"Across the board, things have gone better than could have reasonably been expected."

Douglas Shackelford, Associate dean of MBA@UNC

another company to develop their program," Spieler said.

The business school partnered with the company 2tor to develop MBA@UNC. Spieler said it was more cost-efficient for the journalism school to develop the program on its own.

Smaller class sizes allow students in the journalism school's online program to receive attention, Spieler said. "We're meant to be a small critique program that's meant to be very much like what we're doing with our residential program here on campus," Spieler said.

Though the business and iournalism online curriculum programs are just launching, the school of public health was one of the first schools at the University to develop online curricula, said

Barbara Rimer, dean of the school. Rimer said the school's online degree in health policy and management and several certificate programs cater primarily to pro-

"We are enabling them to get an education while they are working."

 $Contact \ the \ University \ Editor$ at university@dailytarheel.com.

big.cheap.late.great menu sampling: old school veggie burrito.....3.09 veggie burrito deluxe..... chicken burrito..... quesadilla..... chicken guesadilla.....4.62 (taxes included)

960-3955 open super late night until 4am always fresh, juicy, big and healthy where are we?

chapel hill: right across the street from the varsity theatre at 128 franklin street [at the end of the hall].

durham: on 9th street and perry street [across from brueggers]. 286-1875.

nyc: east village, 3rd ave at 13th near nyu

HEALTHY FOOD ATE 'TIL 4AM

The Daily Tar Heel

Pell grant program questioned

By Gayatri Surendranathan Staff Writer

Low graduation rates among Pell grant recipients at community colleges are leading some administrators to think the system needs to be reformed.

While the Pell grant increases accessibility of higher education to low-income students, many schools are combating retention problems and fraud.

The U.S. Department of Education provides Pell grants to college students based on their family's income, their enrollment status and their college's cost of attendance. But Richard Vedder, director of the Center for College Affordability and Productivity, conducted personal research, which found that 40 percent of Pell grant recipients are graduating within six years. Vedder's sample consisted of 750 U.S. schools.

"A lot of kids are getting Pell dollars and not graduating," he said. "Does the goal of giving everyone a chance trump the goal of keeping costs down in today's economy?"

Vedder said graduation rates are lowest in three types of schools - some private institutions, non-selective schools and community colleges.

"All three cater to low-income students whose prospects of success are low," he said.

About 11 percent of Pell grant recipients who enrolled in the N.C. community college system in fall 2009 graduated or were still enrolled a year later, said Megen Hoenk, spokeswoman for the N.C. Community College System.

But she said community colleges cater to a different set of students than universities.

"Success could mean obtaining some sort of credential or associate's degree, or it could mean transferring to a four-year university," she said.

Hoenk also said the system is

"If people don't use the funds responsibly, they jeopardize what the government is doing."

Susan Nobles,

Vice president of institutional advancement at Pitt Community College looking to improve its methods of tracking graduation rates.

Pitt Community College does not have any specific data about graduation rates for its Pell recipients, said Susan Nobles, vice president of institutional advancement at the college.

She said the school canceled 46 Pell awards for students who did not show up for class.

"This way, there is no chance they would inappropriately take advantage of the sums," she said.

Nobles said she must be diligent in monitoring Pell recipients since the average Pitt student is 26 years old and often has other financial responsibilities.

"If people don't use the funds responsibly, they jeopardize what the government is doing," she said.

Vedder said large public schools, like UNC, have high Pell recipient graduation rates because they are traditionally more selective.

About 65 percent of Pell recipients who enrolled at UNC in 2004 graduated within four years, as opposed to about 78 percent of non-Pell recipients, according to a study by the University's Office of Institutional Research and Shirley Ort, associate provost and director of scholarships and student aid at UNC, said she attributes this discrepancy to the background of Pell recipients.

"Pell students come from lowincome families and are often first-generation college students,"

Contact the State & National Editor at state@dailytarheel.com.

Obama targets jobless youth

By Daniel Wiser Assistant State & National Editor

News

President Barack Obama's proposed American Jobs Act will invest $5 billion in job programs for low-income youth, the chairwoman of the Democratic National Committee said in a conference call with student reporters

Monday.

U.S. Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz, D-Fla. and chairwoman of the committee, held the conference call to discuss the impacts of the $447 billion proposal on youths struggling to find jobs in a tough economic climate.

Schultz said the act's "pathways back to work fund" will provide states with federal funding for both summer job programs next year and year-round jobs for lowincome youth.

The act will also cut payroll taxes for small businesses in half to encourage employers to hire more youth, she said.

Other measures include a $6,600 tax credit for businesses that hire unemployed veterans returning from Iraq and Afghanistan, many of whom are under the age of 30.

Schultz said Republican members of Congress should support the proposal as bipartisan legislation.

"It brings Democratic and Republican ideas together," she said. "There is no excuse for Congress not to pass it right

Kalpen Modi, a former White House staffer, also talked about the policies Obama has supported in his first term affecting youth.

Obama's signature health care reform law, the Affordable Care Act, allowed young adults to stay on their parents' health insurance plans until age 26, he said. The law also created a special insurance plan for adults 20 and older with preexisting conditions.

But Greg Steele, chairman of UNC College Republicans, said Obama's policies — whether it's health care reform or economic proposals — have done little to alleviate the unemployment woes

Steele said the unemployment rate likely won't dip below 6 percent until 2017, not in time for many students who will graduate in the next few years. The current national unemployment rate is 9.1

Obama's proposal could mirror the 2009 American Recovery and

DTH/ALLISON RUSSELL

President Obama speaks about the American Jobs Act in Reynolds Coliseum on N.C. State University's campus Wednesday afternoon.

Reinvestment Act — also known as the stimulus plan — in its failure to keep unemployment rates low, he said. "I do fear that it could become a stimulus, where it is a short-term solution that won't really lead to a lot of long-term answers for a lot of people," he said.

Contact the State & National

Editor at state@dailytarheel.com.

Peace College protestors switch tactics

By Miranda Murray Staff Writer

After almost two months of demonstrations, protesters at Peace College have shifted their focus to legal channels as administrators say they will push forward with plans to restructure the college.

A group of Peace College alumnae said they are consulting legal counsel in order to keep the school's traditions intact.

Alumnae and students gathered in protest following a July announcement that administrators would institute several changes at the college - including altering the college's name to William Peace University and admitting men to the traditionally female institution.

Protesters created a petition to remove Debra Townsley, who began serving as president of the college last August, due to the drastic changes instated under her administration they claim weren't transparent.

'We're trying to work and just basically share information that we know was not shared before people made a very important vote," said Meredith McLean, treasurer of the fund and an alumna of Peace.

Daily protests outside the campus have stopped and alumunae have shifted their focus to a nonprofit fund for legal expenses.

McLean said group members are keeping their strategy under wraps, but they have no plan to sue.

"We are using the fund to pay legal expenses, but it's not a legal defense fund.'

Todd Robinson, chairman of the Peace College Board of Trustees, wrote in an email that board members have no reservations about the protesters' communication with attorneys. "We do not believe that there is anything actionable that will come from this," he said.

"The message from the school is 'Get over it, we aren't changing."

E.B. Watson,

Alumna of Peace College

Protesters also expressed unhappiness with the perceived lack of transparency from the current administration.

"We feel like we have no reason to believe anything they say," said E.B. Watson, an alumna of Peace and a protester.

The message from the school is 'Get over it, we aren't changing," she said.

R. Donavon Munford, Jr., a board member, said changes to the college had unanimous approval.

"We are very comfortable with the decisions we made," he said.

But McLean said administrators did not provide the board with all the information available before they decided on the changes.

Protesters said they sent each board member a detailed letter earlier this month with documents many of the members had not seen, including petitions and letters of disapproval from past presidents and professors. They have yet to receive a full response from the board, McLean said.

Contact the State & National Editor at state@dailytarheel.com.

EASY...

That is how finding a place to live will feel. The perfect pad conveniently located is waiting for you.

got housing?

www.heelshousing.com

Old tree removed, observed on campus

By Hailey Vest Staff Writer

University employees removed a nearly 200-year-old tree from North Campus on Monday.

The rotting post oak tree in front of New West Hall was cut down last week in hopes of preventing its decay from putting people in danger, said University Forest Manager Tom Bythell.

Bythell said the ultimate reason for the tree's death is unknown, but ambrosia beetles and rotting roots contributed to its decline.

"We did several borer treatments this past spring — the treatments were unsuccessful," he said.

The tree was planted around the time New West Hall was completed — between 160 and 180 years ago, Bythell said.

"Rotting in the center has made it difficult to determine the exact age, but it is likely that the tree was planted at the same time as New West, which was pretty common back then," Bythell said.

"Trees add to the natural beauty of the campus. They are basically landmarks."

Jennifer Powell, UNC sophomore

The removal of the tree was completed by University employees at no extra cost to the school, Bythell said.

Students expressed dismay at the demise of a campus landmark, as well as love for the University's

"The trees add to the natural beauty of the campus," sophomore Jennifer Powell said. "They are basically landmarks for our Freshman Addison Honeycutt said UNC's natural environment attracted him to enroll.

"I am from Asheville, which is a very eco-friendly city, so being here with all the trees reminds me of my hometown," Honeycutt said. The University plans to re-plant a tree in the spot where the post oak was removed, Bythell said.

"Ideally, I would like to plant a post oak, but if that is not possible, something similar, such as a white oak, will be planted," Bythell said.

Junior Erica Afanador said cutting down trees on campus takes away from the University's natural beauty.

"Sitting in the quad after classes is one of my favorite things to do because there's always such a nice environment," Afanador said.

The N.C. Botanical Garden currently has the trunk from the post oak and the Office of University Development will preserve the remaining wood.

Bythell said the University has plans to remove a willow oak tree from the same area of campus over fall break.

Contact the University Editor at university@dailytarheel.com.

A 200-year-old tree on Cameron Avenue across from Memorial Hall was sawed down Thursday morning.

Be the one playing hard ball

If you're the kind of person who expects to take lead roles, advise senior people, and make a difference far beyond your cubicle walls, you're a Deloitte kind of person. We offer what leaders like you need to thrive — from the everyday rush of working on complex, meaningful projects to our apprentice-like environment that helps you advance quickly.

To find out more information, visit www.deloitte.com/us/careers

Official Professional Services Sponsor

Professional Services means audit, tax, consulting and financial advisory services

All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, or any other basis protected by federal, state or local la

As used in this document, "Deloitte" means Deloitte LLP and its subsidiaries. Please see www.deloitte.com/us/about for a detailed description of the legal structure of Deloitte LLP and its subsidiaries. Certain services may not be available to attest clients under the rules and regulations of public accounting.

Copyright © 2011 Deloitte Development LLC. All rights reserved. Member of Deloitte Touche Tohmatsu Limited 36 USC 220506

Deloitte.

On the wire: national and world news

Know more on today's stories: dailytarheel.com/nationworld

>>> Obama pitches $3 trillion deficit-reduction strategy

WASHINGTON (MCT) -President Obama on Monday made an aggressive pitch for his $3 trillion deficit-reduction strategy, promising to veto any proposal that fails to raise revenues by asking wealthy Americans to "pay their fair share."

Obama said his plan would seek $1 in new revenues for every $2 in cuts. At its core is a plan to raise $1.5 trillion in new revenues through an overhaul of the tax code.

Speaking in urgent tones from the Rose Garden at the White House, Obama rejected Republican arguments that his proposals amount to "class warfare," saying it comes down to "math."

"It comes down to this: We have to prioritize," he said. "Both parties agree that we need to reduce the deficit by the same amount, by $4 trillion. ... Either we ask the wealthiest Americans to pay their fair share in taxes or we're going to have to ask seniors to pay more for Medicare. We can't afford to do both.'

On Monday, Republicans swiftly responded to the president's proposal with opposition.

"Pitting one group of Americans against another is not leadership," House Speaker John Boehner added.

US violent crime in 2010 decreases from previous year

LOS ANGELES (MCT) -Violent crime in 2010 dropped 6 percent from the year before, the FBI reported Monday, the fourth consecutive year of such declines.

The government's annual report, called "Crime in the United States," is based on data from more than 18,000 city, county, university and college, state, tribal and federal law enforcement agencies from around the nation and presents the most complete picture of what residents do to other residents in the way of crime.

"Safe communities are the foundation of our nation's prosperity and I have made it a priority of this Department of Justice to protect the American public by aggressively fighting violent crime," Attorney General Eric H. Holder Jr. said in a statement.

"We've targeted gang leadership in communities from Florida to New York, and from Tennessee to North Carolina. We've renewed our commitment to fighting organized crime, whether it is traditional La Cosa Nostra or Mexican drug cartels," Holder said.

Help Wanted

The top crimes were drug abuse violations, at 1.6 million, followed by driving while intoxicated at 1.4 million, the FBI said.

About 10.3 million crimes were reported in 2010, according to the FBI.

Revolts in Yemen continue, killing and wounding dozens

SANAA, Yemen (MCT) — The wounded and the dead were carried through alleys beneath the gaze of rooftop snipers in Yemen's capital Monday as men with rifles guarded their homes and protesters clashed with security forces amid explosions and spirals of smoke.

There seemed no safe place in the barricaded ancient city of Sanaa, which has become a cauldron of revolt for tribesmen, demonstrators and defected soldiers battling forces loyal to President Ali Abdullah Saleh.

At least 25 people were killed and dozens wounded when government soldiers fired on protesters for the second day in the capital. Twenty-six people died Sunday, shattering a stalemate between opposition and pro-Saleh forces. Saleh, who has ruled Yemen for 33 years, has refused to yield after months of protests inspired by the revolts in Tunisia and Egypt.

Rescuers struggle to reach Indian earthquake victims

IMPHAL, India (MCT) -Rain, landslides and severed communications continued to hamper rescue efforts late Monday after a large earthquake struck Sunday in northeastern India, Nepal and Tibet, killing at least 50 people.

The epicenter of the magnitude 6.8 earthquake temblor was in India's northeastern Sikkim state near the Nepal border. With most of Sikkim connected to the rest of India by a single, badly damaged national highway, a higher death toll is expected once emergency workers reach isolated communities.

By late Monday, food and doctors were being airlifted into the area, although these operations were also hampered by poor weather, said R.K. Singh, India's home secretary. In one case, officials reported 16 landslides in a single six-mile stretch of road.

P.M. Rai, a lawmaker from Sikkim, said early tallies suggested at least 150 people were in area hospitals, including a significant number suffering from trauma.

>>> President Obama speaks about his proposed $3 trillion federal deficit reduction plan at the White House on Monday in Washington, DC.

DTH Classifieds

Line Classified Ad Rates

Private Party (Non-Profit) Commercial (For-Profit) 25 Words...... $18.00/week 25 Words $40.00/week Extra words...25¢/word/day Extra words...25¢/word/day

EXTRAS: Box Your Ad: $1/day · Bold Your Ad: $3/day

DTH office is open Mon-Fri 8:30am-5:00pm

To Place a Line Classified Ad Log onto www.dailytarheel.com/classifieds or Call 919-962-0252

 $BR = Bedroom \cdot BA = Bath \cdot mo = month \cdot hr = hour \cdot wk = week \cdot W/D = washer/dryer \cdot OBO = or best offer \cdot AC = air conditioning \cdot w/ = with \cdot LR = living room$

Help Wanted

Deadlines

Line Ads: Noon, one business day prior to publication Display Classified Advertising:

3pm, two business days prior to publication

Announcements

NOTICE TO ALL DTH CUSTOMERS Deadlines are NOON one business day prior to publication for classified ads. We publish Monday thru Friday when classes are in session. A university holiday is a DTH holiday too (i.e. this affects deadlines). We reserve the right to reject, edit, or reclassify any ad. Acceptance of ad conv or reprayment does not ceptance of ad copy or prepayment does not imply agreement to publish an ad. You may stop your ad at any time, but NO REFUNDS or credits for stopped ads will be provided. No advertising for housing or employment, in ac-cordance with federal law, can state a preference based on sex, race, creed, color, religion

Child Care Wanted

AM CHILD CARE: Farly morning mother's helper needed. 3 bilingual children (ages 5-9) near Chapel Hill campus need help getting Perfect opportunity for student or some-one with day job. Additional babysitting opportunities also available for close knit family. Must have trace patter@med.unc.edu.

TEEN TRANSPORTATION: Seeking help with transportation of 2 teenage boys to their afterschool activities in Durham. Chapel Hill. Need help on M/Tu/W. Must be available be tween 4:15-6pm. Pick up is near East Chape Hill high Must have car Please contact sud

BABYSITTER NEEDED for our 4 year old daughter in our home 7 miles outside Carrboro. Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, 1-5pm. Should have references, experience with preschool aged kids and own car. Must like dogs. $12/hr. Contact us at babysitterreply@gmail.com for CHILD CARE, AUTISM: Looking for respon sible student to provide very light child care afterschool, evenings for precious 7 year-old with autism. In Chapel Hill home about 5 minutes from campus. Non-smoker own transportation, good references are a must! After she goes to bed, you could study! Tell me about you! Email me at Tarheelfamily828@gmail.com.

TUTOR, SITTER: Looking for tutor, sitter to encourage 11 and 13 year-old to get homework done. M-Th 3-6pm. Chapel Hill area, close to UNC. School pick up, drop off at activi ties. Reliable car, clean driving Please email sbpperez@hotmail.com, call 919-240-5265. AFTERSCHOOL CARE NEEDED: M/W/F cants need reliable car and clean driving record. Emaii resuii beth_huang@yahoo.com. record. Email resume, references to

For Rent

FAIR HOUSING ALL REAL ESTATE AND RENTAL advertising in this newspaper is subject to the Federal Fair Housing Act of 1968 which makes it illegal to advertise "any preference, limitation, or discrimination based on race, color, religior sex, handicap, familial status, or nationa origin, or an intention to make any such preference, limitation, or discrimination." This newspaper will not knowingly accept any advertising which is in violation of the law. Our readers are hereby informed that all dwellings advertised in this newspaper are available on an equal opportunity basis in accordance with the law. To complain of discrimination, call the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development housing discrimination hotline: 1-800-669-9777.

For Rent

ROOM TO RENT $425/mo ROOM TO RENT 3BR beautiful home in Woodlake subdivision minutes from Southpoint Mall. UNC and Duke. Fireplace, W/D, deck, fenced in yard, front porch, views of the lake, walking trails, gym and pool access. Please call Steve, 919-593 4974.

ONLY 4 BLOCKS TO CAMPUS, Franklin Street. Check out this 4BR/2.5BA house on Stephens Street. Hardwood floors, W/D, dishwasher. Available now or August 1, great location for students. $1,500/mo for lease through May. Fran Holland Properties: herbholland@intrex.net or 919-968-4545.

WALK EVERYWHERE IN DOWNTOWN CARRBORO. Newly renovated 2BR/1BA apartment at 118-E Bim Street. Hardwood floors, W/D connections. Available imme diately. $750/mo. with water. Fran Hol-Properties, 919-968-4545 or email herbholland@intrex.net. 9am to noon.

QUIET CARRBORO 4BR/2BA RANCH on Cheek Street (or 3BR with large family room). Hardwood floors, W/D connections, nice yard with room for garden. You can bus or bike to campus, $1,300/mo. Fran Holland Properties: herbholland@intrex.net or call 919-968-4545.

5 BLOCKS TO FRANKLIN STREET: 4BR/3.5BA carriage house with 2 car garage and 2 assigned parking, energy efficient, sky lights, decks, $2,400/mo. +utilities. HRMalpass@ aol.com, 919-942-6945.

For Rent

Help Wanted

Residential Services, Inc.

Want to build your resume & gain valuable experience?

Work with children and adults with Autism and other personal goals. Earn extra money and gain valuable experience! Good for psychology, sociology, nursing majors, and other related fields. Various shifts available including weekends. $10.10/hr.

www.rsi-nc.org

Pathways for People, Inc.

102 New Edition Court□ Cary, NC 27511

919-462-1663 • 919-462-1653 (fax)

HABILITATION TECHNICIAN

Pathways for People. Inc. is looking for energetic individuals who are interested in gaining experience while making a difference

1 17 year old male with Autism and mild MR in Chanel Hill

2. Adult male in Chapel Hill. Saturdays for 6-8 hours per day. - available but optional. Position entails community activities

(movies, concerts, comedy shows, etc.), assisting individual

Call 919-462-1663 and contact the specific supervisor or go to www.pathwaysforpeople.org for more information.

with exercises, and personal care. Some lifting required. Males encouraged to apply. Call 919-297-7254 and ask for Mitch.

Occasional evenings, Sundays, and weekday fill-in also in the life of an individual. Positions available are:

M-F from 3:30pm-6:30pm, Call and ask for Michele.

APPLY ONLINE by visiting us at:

developmental disabilities, helping them achieve their

LOVELY WOODED LOT FOR 2BR/15BA townhome in North Chatham County. This Vickers Road duplex has fireplace, a lot of privacy. $750/mo. water included. Pets negotiable with fee. Email Fran Holland Properties at herbholland@intrex.net or call 919-968-4545.

WALK, BIKE FROM 13 Davie Circle. This 2BR/1BA house has hardwood floors, W/D, pets negotiable with fee. Only blocks to campus, it is located off Frankin Street. $1,000/mo. Email Fran Holland Properties, herbholland@intrex.net.

STUDIO APARTMENT, furnished with partial kitchen, separate entrance for quiet scholar. Near UNC hospitals. Rent $500/mo. +$500 deposit includes utilities. Available

Help Wanted

VALET DRIVERS needed for upscale restaurants, hotels and events. Great for students. Flexible hours, lunch shifts available. $8-13/hr. Including tips. More information and applications available at www.royalparkinginc.com.

MATH TUTOR for high school sophomore in MAIN TOTAL THIS IS THE STATE THE STATE THE STATE THE SUBJECT AND THE SUBJECT MATERIAL THE SUB

BARTENDERS ARE IN DEMAND!

Earn $20-$35/hr. 1 or 2 week and weekend classes. 100% job placement assistance. Raleigh's Bartending School. Have fun! Make money! Meet people! Back to school tuition rates as low as $299. CALL NOW! 919-676-0774, www.cocktailmixer.com/unc.html.

WEB DEVELOPER: Full-time, part-time programmer: Must have web development experience, ASP. NET, C#, PHP, work in-dependently, and as team member and be highly organized. Excellent verbal and written skills desirable. TeleSage is on Franklin Street 150 feet from UNC campus We develop survey software and conduct NIH research. Friendly work environment. Flexible schedule. Benefits available. Wages BOE. Send resume with GPA, and cover letter to prog(at)telesage.com.

UP AND DOING IT LANDSCAPING looking for part-time landscapers and per-sonal gardeners. Outgoing and ener-getic personality a plus. Please respond to upanddoingit@yahoo.com.

ties include physiological monitoring, data entry and data processing. Bachelor's degree required. Please send resume and cover letter to heidi.scronce@duke edu

RESEARCH ASSISTANT NEEDED for

Duke Clinical Research Study. Du-

CARPENTRY: Experienced student with carpentry skills needed for occasional help around the house. Also house cleaning. Write to: simons.house1@googlemail.com.

COOKS, PREP COOKS, barista, and dishwasher needed immediately for deli. Apply at Fracy's NY Deli, 400 South Elliot Rd., Suite C, Chapel Hill.

OFFICE AND CLEANING HELP: Chapel Hill near UNC. Looking for detail oriented, friendly person to clean and open our small medical office at 7:30am each weekday and work for 3 hours doing general medical front desk duties. Call 919-260-9915.

WIRELESS TECHNOLOGY COMPANY hiring a sales assistant in Chapel Hill. Must desire to move into sales, advanced Excel, Outlook, Contact Mgmt Software. Undergraduate or 2 year degree. Salary +benefits. Email resume to hr@usatcorp.com. 919-942-4214. SALES POSITION: Looking for sales reps at Southpoint Mall. Hourly or comr Full-time, part-time. 919-265-3794.

NEED A PLACE TO LIVE? www.heelshousing.com

Help Wanted

IMPRESSA JEWELRY SOUTHPOINT. Do you love jewelry? Part-time sales associate. Nights and weekends. Hours are flexible. Hourly pay plus commission. Call 919-414-

Internships

PRE HEALTH INTERNSHIPS Pursuing a career in healthcare? A Helping Hand offers unpaid internship, includes 30 hours training, 120 hours direct care experience working with older adults in the home setting. Can be done over 2 semesters. servicelearning@ahelpinghandnc.org, 919-403-5555, ahelphinghandnc.org.

Lost & Found

FOUND: THIN LEAF GOLD EARRING in New East Friday night. Contact 330-348-4175 for details

Misc. Wanted

NEED CASH TODAY? Sell your junk vehicle now! We pay up to $500, Cash on the spot, free pick up. Call now 919-341-5729.

Roommates

FEMALE GRAD, PROFESSIONAL looking to share beautiful 2BR/2BA in quiet condo community. $500/mo. W/D, large bedroom, bath, on busline. rmbeitia5@hotmail.com, 386-405-4863. 919-240-5385.

Tutoring Services

CHEMISTRY TUTOR: 20 years of experience, hourly rate negotiable. pwat-son@nc.rr.com, 919-259-5181.

Volunteering COACH WRITE VOLUNTEERS! Conference

one on one with students to improve their writing skills. Training 9/15 or 10/4 at 5:30-9pm, or 9/22 at 9am-12:30pm. Preregister: sphillips@chccs.k12.nc.us, or 967-8211 ext. 28369.

DO YOU SMOKE? Are you a regular smoker between 18-50 years? Do you experience difficulties with the following? Not paying attention to details, making careless mistakes, difficulty staying focused on tasks, difficulty completing work, chores or other tasks, disorganization, forgetfulness, difficulty staying seated restlessness, impatience. If you answered "yes" to all or some of the questions above OR have been diagnosed with Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), you may qualify for a study at Duke University Medical Center. For more information call 919-416-2099, Pro0000908.

Volunteering DO YOU SMOKE CIGARETTES AND not want to quit? You can contribute to science by participating in a smoking study looking at how smoking affects your thinking and mood. Do you answer yes to the following questions? Are you between the ages of 18 and 50? Are you smoking at least 10 cigarettes per day? If you are eligible and participate in this study, we will compensate you up to $316 for your time. If so, please call Joe at 919-416.-2099 or Justin at 919-416-2461. Pro00018866.

SCHOOL READING PARTNERS! Help beginning readers practice reading skills, 1-2 hrs. wk, Chapel Hill-Carrboro Schools. Training 9/21 or 9/22, 5:30-9pm, or 9/27, 9am-12:30pm. Preregister: srp@chccs.k12.nc.us, 967-8/211 ext 2833 967-8211 ext. 2833.

ARE YOU A WOMAN who smokes cigarettes and does not want to quit? You can contrib-ute to science by participating in a smoking study that examines how smoking affects your thinking and mood. Do you answer yes to the follow ng questions? Are you betweer the ages of 18 and 45? Are you smoking at least 10 cigarettes per day? Do you have a normal menstrual cycle? If so, please call Joe at 919-416-2099 or Liz at 919-416-2425. If you participate in this study, we will compensate you up to $118 for your time.

Volunteering

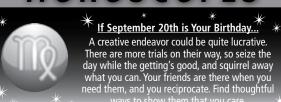

BE AN ESL VOLUNTEER! Help school age ESL students from various countries. Cha pel Hill-Carrboro Schools. Training 9/29 or 10/5, 5:30-9pm. Preregister: gmccay@chccs.k12.nc.us, 967-8211 ext. 28339. PARTICIPANTS ARE NEEDED for studies of visual and hearing function using magnetic resonance imaging (MRI). These studies are conducted at the Brain Imaging and Analysis Center (BIAC) at Duke Unviersity Medical Center. Participants should be 18 years-old or older and should have no history of brain injury or disease. Most studies last between 1-2 hours, and participants are paid approximately $20/hr. Please contact the BIAC volunteer coordinator at 681-9344 volunteer@biac duke edu for additional information. You can also visit our website at www.biac.duke.edu.

Pro0002799.

HOROSCOPES

To get the advantage, check the day's rating: 10 is the easiest day, 0 the most challenging. Aries (March 21-April 19) Today is an 8 - Work through an inter mediary, for greater impact. Let a partner negotiate. Discover hidden treasure by spending time at home. Taurus (April 20-May 20) Today is an 8 - Reason and emotion argue to a standstill. Get quiet, and meditate on it. Study. Take on more responsibility without compensation, and you'll be amply rewarded later.

Gemini (May 21-June 21) Today is a 9 - Anticipate resistance, and, if there isn't any, fly ahead faster. A prepared response gives confidence. Communications from a distance provide clarity. Consider the bottom dollar. Cancer (June 22-July 22) Today is a 9 - Travel's not advised today.

Don't confront authority directly, but be prepared to defend your position Budget for future plans, and then reach for them. You've got the power. Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Today is a 7 - Leave your money in the bank. Let your partner know the score. Get out of the house and around town on stressful situations. Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today is a 7 - You may find yourself in a maze of confrontations, contradictions and disparities. In the end, it's your imagination that carries you in the right direction.

preferably in good company. Don't focus

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Today is an 8 - There's plenty of room for misunderstandings now, but nothing you can't handle with your sense of humor. You can easily diffuse the situation. Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

Today is an 8 - Avoid confusion in interactions by creating the necessary structure. Sometimes the best strategy work now. Spending time outdoors reju-Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Today is a 6 - Don't try out a new idea yet. Even though a loved one is anxious for home improvements, don't take out any loans. Learning is tons of fun, and cheap. Business heats up. Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today is an 8 - Think of a new service to provide. Focus on work now and be won-people's anxieties. Offer food Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Today is an 8 - You're lucky in love now, and you like it. Enjoy some good social derfully productive. Don't get distracted time while you can, as things are going to get very busy soon. Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) Today is an 8 - A child holds the knowledge that you need to complete your next mission. Be playful in your labors and work hard when playing. Romance (c) 2011 TRIBUNE MEDIA SERVICES, INC.

Over 600 Micro & Imported Beers Cigarettes • Cigars • Rolling Tobacco

306 E. MAIN STREET, CARRBORO • 968-5000

(in front of Cat's Cradle)

ROBERT H. SMITH, ATTY AT LAW SPEEDING • DWI • CRIMINAL Carolina graduate, expert in traffic and FREE riminal cases for students for over 20 years. CONSULTATION 312 W. Franklin Street • 967-2200 • Chapelhilltrafficlaw.com

VNC Community SERVICE DIRECTORY

Closest Chiropractor to Campus! 929-335-72 Dr. Chas Gaertner, DC NC Chiropractic Keeping UNC Athletes, Students & Staff Well Adjusted + www.ncchi

PASSPORT PHOTOS · MOVING SUPPLIES COLOR/BW PRINTING, NOTARY PUBLIC, LAMINATING, BINDING, MAILBOX SERVICES, FAX STAMPS, PACKAGING, INTERNATIONAL SHIPPING

CLOSE TO CAMPUS at CARRBORO PLAZA ~ 918.7161 The UPS Store ®

Men at the Corner Looking for Jobs HUMAN RIGHTS CENTER OF CHAPEL HILL AND CARRBORO Household Jobs · Brick Laying · Tiling · Roofing · Painting Landscape Work · Construction Projects · Carpentry Wages start at $10/hour • Call 919-240-8162

STARPOINT STORAGE NEED STORAGE SPACE? Hwy 15-501 South & Smith Level Road. (919) 942-6666

SuperShuttle. Need a lift?

HOME & CAMPUS AIRPORT RIDE

All Immigration Matters

Brenman Law Firm, PLLC • Visas-us.com Lisa Brenman, NC Board Certified Specialist Work Visas • Green Cards • Citizenship Reduced Consult Fee for UNC Faculty & Students • 919-932-4593

BOARD GAMES

ayne Capps, a senior environmental studies major and an officer of the UNC Longboarding Club, does a trick in the Pit on Monday. Steven Vazquez, who is also a club officer, says: "If anyone is interested, no experience is required. Come join our skate sessions!" The club has all the equipment needed to participate.

Elections shake up school board

By Janie Sircey Staff Writer

With more than half of the school board seats up for grabs, Chapel Hill-Carrboro City Schools are looking at a year filled with Candidates and school officials said the adoption of a new curriculum, working with a newly hired superintendent and dealing with budget cuts will be key issues this election.

Five of the seven school board seats are on the ballot in the upcoming Nov. 8 election, an unusual occurrence for the area, said Stephanie Knott, spokeswoman for Chapel Hill-Carrboro City Schools.

"It's kind of extraordinary to have five seats open — usually no more than three or four seats are open at a time," she said. "It can really transform the makeup of the board."

Among the candidates running are incumbents Mia Dav Burroughs, Annetta Streater and Mike Kelley. New to the race are James Barrett, Raymond Conrad, Brian Bower and Kris Castellano.

These seven candidates are running for the four four-year positions.

Jamezetta Bedford is running unopposed for the board's open two-year position.

During the summer, the school system officially adopted the Common Core curriculum, a set of standards developed by the National Governors Association Center for Best Practices and the Council of Chief State School Officers. Forty-four states have adopted the standards, which were created to give school systems across the nation consistency in their education.

The 2011-2012 school year will serve as the transition year from the current curriculum to the Common Core standards for Chapel Hill-Carrboro City Schools.

Kelley said due to the amount of work that will go into shifting over to the new guidelines, he believes that the new curriculum will take all of the board's atten-

"This is a year to not start new things," he said. "The staff and the central office will have a lot to work on.

Along with the change in curriculum, new Superintendent Thomas Forcella took over the

The Lui		0 Market St. hapel Hill 32-9000
Take 15/501 South towards Pittsboro Exit Market St. / Southern Village
I DON'T KNOW HOW SHE DOES IT [Fig1:10:3:10:5:00:7:10:9:40]
SEVEN DAYS IN U	1:25-4:15-7:25-9:45
CONTAGION PGB		1:20-4:20-7:15-9:45
THE HELP @GB1:00-4:00-7:05-10
MIDNIGHT IN PARIS 1:15-4:10-7:20-9:3
All shows $6.50 for college students with ID
Bargain Matinees $6.50	DOLBY DIGITAL	STADIUM SEATING

"Nationally we talk about the importance of education, but the school board is really where we can make a difference."

Phillips Ambassadors Program

Application Deadline for Spring 2012 Study Abroad in Asia

- Thursday, September 22, 2011 -

James Barrett, Chapel Hill-Carrboro City School Board candidate

position on July 1.

Kelley and Barrett both said Forcella's leadership will bring more consistency to the school system and will change how the board is run.

"It's a great opportunity for schools and the board to see some follow through," Barrett said.

Knott said the board exists mostly to encourage professional development and ensure that children can grow academically. Board tasks include handling financial resources and personnel issues.

Despite recent budget cuts, Burroughs said she believes that the board has maintained its focus on students.

"The board has done a really good job protecting student experience even though millions of dollars were cut from our budget," she said.

The school system still achieved the highest average SAT scores in the state and the state's second highest graduation rate.

"We could applaud ourselves and stop right there, but we don't," Burroughs said. Barrett said educational change starts in the schools

"Nationally we talk about the importance of education, but the school board is really where we can make a difference," he said.

> Contact the City Editor at city@dailytarheel.com.

LifeTime Library to improve file storing

By Katie Quine Staff Writer

News

New students in the School of Information and Library Science now have access to a program that could change the way they store photos, documents and papers.

The program, LifeTime Library, is an online comprehensive file hosting site that is currently available to the school's incoming students.

Gary Marchionini, dean of the school, said LifeTime Library is the first program of its kind to be used by a university in the nation.

With the program, students can permanently store and later retrieve computer files that are usually kept on hard drives and social media sites. The program's data is stored on a series of disks managed by the school and other departments.

Marchionini, who dreamed up the program, said he began noticing 10 years ago how much information people stored on their

The idea came about that we should try to help our students who specialize in information management by providing them with a tool that will teach them

"You can be assured that the data you place on the site will be there when you attempt to retrieve it 10 years later."

Mike Conway, UNC graduate student who helped create the program to become good practitioners of their own personal record keeping," he said.

Kristen Street, a first-year graduate student in the school, said she has enjoyed using LifeTime Library to store her photos.

"It would have been useful if I had started using it as an undergraduate because of how disorganized my stuff is now," Street said.

Mike Conway, a graduate student in the school who helped create the program, said it is different from other file-saving sites because users have complete control over the storage of their files.

"You can be assured that the data you place on the site will be there when you attempt to retrieve it 10 years later," Conway said.

Sites such as Facebook own all uploaded content and can remove files at any time, which served as an impetus for the project, Conway said.

Marchionini said it would take a great deal of money and faculty support to make the program available campuswide.

A portion of the school's endowment helped fund the program, Marchionini said.

Since no state funds have been used to implement the program, partnerships with major corporations and charitable gifts would be necessary to provide the rest of the University with LifeTime Library's services, he added.

Students outside the school said they would welcome LifeTime Library's file storing capabilities.

"I know some people whose hard drives have crashed, and they lost a lot (of files), so it would be really helpful to have something where you could store everything like that," freshman Thomas Sessoms said.

Contact the University Editor at university@dailytarheel.com.

Car break-ins decline

By Sarah Mansur Staff Writer

Anna Difiore has never made a habit of leaving valuable items in

But on the night of Aug. 18, she thought her backpack full of electronics would be safe, and so she left the bag in her blue 2004 convertible BMW.

That night, someone stole $3,000 worth of items from Difiore's car, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

During August and September in 2010, police responded to 60 car break ins, according to police reports. Police have seen 61 breakins since August this year.

While those numbers have remained stable and could still increase, break-ins have been on the decline in recent years, according to police data.

Between 2009 and 2010, the number of vehicle break-ins during the months of August and September decreased by 37.5 percent, according to Chapel Hill police records.

Randy Young, spokesman for the UNC Department of Public Safety, said that decrease in vehicle break-ins might be related to a decline in GPS usage

He said having a visible GPS, or even suction marks on the windshield, can make cars an easy target for thieves.

In recent years, the popularity of the GPS has decreased because most people use their smart phones to navigate, Young said. Lt. Kevin Gunter, spokes-

Department, said in an email that car break-ins in many cases are a crime of opportunity.
"We have found those vehicles man for the Chapel Hill Police left unlocked or locked with valuables left in plain view are the most targeted," he said. Gunter said Chapel Hill police have increased patrols and launched public awareness campaigns informing residents how to protect themselves and their valuables. Chapel Hill police also sponsors programs such as the Neighborhood Watch program and Community Safety

The programs combine law enforcement and community efforts to alert police officers if they see suspicious activity.

Still, Diffore said she is now much more cautious with her belongings

"It was frustrating losing all that stuff," Difiore said. "It's not hard to replace a computer, but it's hard if you can't get any of your files back."

The 21-year-old UNC student lost her laptop, iPod and digital camera, according to Chapel Hill Police reports. "It helps to park in well-lit areas and remove temptation to thieves, like valuables in plain view," Young said. He also said people should report suspicious activity to the "People don't understand that 911 is not necessarily for life and death situations," Young said. "If you see something, say something because it might be your car next time.

> Contact the City Editor at city@dailytarheel.com.

© 2009 The Mepham Group, All rights reserved

Level: 1 2 3 4						TRIBUNE
9		2			6	7		8	Complete the grid
			3	4				6	so each row, column and 3-by-3 box (in bold borders) contains every digit 1 to 9.
2				6	5			7	Solution to
3		4				6		2	Monday's puzzle
6			7	2				g	6 1 7 3 8 5 4 2 9 3 8 9 2 4 7 6 5 1

1 9 2 6 5 8 7 4 3 8 7 3 4 1 2 9 6 5 7 4 5 6 7 9 3 1 8 2 9 1 2 6 8 5 7 9 3 1 4

NCAA response UNC responded to the NCAA's allegations with self-imposed fines and penalties. See pg. 1 for story.

Musical pirate

Former UNC student and founder of the pirate club released a folk album. See pg. 3 for story.

A new student-led group rallies behind the conservative presidential candidate. See pg. 3 for story. Let's talk about sex

Students for Rick Perry

UNC professor, is leading a career as a sexpert. See pg. 7 for story. Peaceful protest

Amber Madison, daughter of a

Groups unhappy with Peace College's changes will focus on legal action. See pg. 8 for story.

Los Angeles Times Daily Crossword Puzzle

1 Word on a red octagon

6

7

4

- 5 Tree-trunk greenery 9 Channel covering Capitol
- 14 Coif makeup 15 Queen Boleyn
- 16 Partner of well 17 Partner of willing 18 Like tilted ltrs.
- 19 Moderated, with "down" 20 Hullabaloo over a sudden
- policy reversal? 23 Ball supporter 24 Little mischief-makers
- 25 Legendary Chicago cow owner
- 29 Attack from above 31 __ Grande
- 32 Co. bigwig
 33 Sign of table tennis tendonitis?
- 37 Bushy coif
- 40 Half of a double play 41 Inventor's germ
- 55 Crossword hint 57 Inventor Whitney 58 Cry of frustration
- about a Hostess cake? 61 Montezuma, e.g

64 Snug ... bug in _ 65 "Exodus" author

3

- 66 Musical pace
- 67 Easy pace 68 Waiter's handout 69 Cuts and pastes, say
- 71 Stage accessory DOWN
- 1 Great Pyramid passages 2 One of two Commandments holders
 - 3 More greasy 4 Make ready, briefly 5 Letter carriers
 - 6 Winning
 - 7 Velcro alternatives
 - 8 Note to 9 Book of available products
 - 10 Hillside
 - 11 Exemplar of neatness 12 Hail, to Maria

13 Composer Rorem

1 3 6 2 9 8

21 Fido's poodle amie

22 Pork cut

26 Military sch. 27 Actress Russo

30 For each one

35 Little Lab

37 High point

36 Organ whistle

38 Source of linen

39 Yummy but fattening

43 Parti-colored cats

28 Class using mats

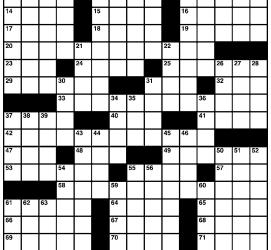

31 Campus military gp

Samaritan

- 44 Bank's claim 45 Sprawls, as by the pool
- 46 Take down __: humble

(C)2011 Tribune Media Services, Inc.

- 50 Less remote 51 Cause of odd weather 52 Equips for use
- 54 Highly capable 55 PC data disk
- 56 Gem grader's aid
- 59 Festive event 60 Trash destination
- 61 Ended a fast
- 62 Alphabet ender in England
- 63 1979 Pa. meltdown site

42 Bit of applause for an equestrian event? 47 Big thing at McDonalds? 48 Samaritan's offer 49 Game one 53 Meditation For further information instruction www.phillipsambassadors.org

he Baily Tar Heel

STEVEN NORTON EDITOR, 962-4086 OR EDITOR@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

C. RYAN BARBER OPINION EDITOR, OPINION@DAILYTARHEEL.COM

Established 1893, 118 years of editorial freedom

EDITORIAL BOARD MEMBERS

Opinion

CALLIE BOST TARIQ LUTHUN WILL DORAN ROBERT FLEMING IAN LEE MAGGIE ZELLNER

COLUMN

Holly Beilin Eye on the Environment Sophomore global studies major from Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Email: hbeilin@live.com

Alcohol: It's the footprint in your hand

here is a way to inspire environmental-consciousness in almost everything UNC students do on a daily basis. Eating, studying and even football games at the University have become sustainable. However, what might be overlooked is the tradition that takes over campus before every game — the tailgate. For that matter, what about every leisure event (of which there are many) involving alcohol? In the interest of environmentalism, it's time to consider whether alcohol can be green anytime other than St. Patrick's Day.

Beer

Beer, probably the most popular drink at those tailgates and parties, packs most of its environmental punch with its packaging. Sustainability consultant Pablo Päster calculated that shipping cans creates fewer emissions than bottles. Cans also tend to be recycled more than glass. And, just so all party-throwers know, kegs happen to be the most green, in terms of both shipping and materials.

Wine

According to a 2007 study by the American Association of Wine emissions mostly through shipping. A consumer can therefore minimize the environmental damage of their merlot by buying wine made relatively close to home. Since North Carolina is on the East Coast, that means European wine (or champagne for the super classy) travels a shorter distance than those from California.

Liquor

All liquor production tends to be worse for the environment than wine or beer. Rum and tequila are usually made from sugarcane or molasses, two particularly destructive crops. "Reviews in Environmental Science and Technology" estimated that for one liter of tequila, 10 liters of toxic acidic waste is created. Vodka and gin are made from a mix of grains, so they require more energy and water than other spirits.

Ways to 'green-out'

Fortunately, the alcohol industry is wising up to its environmental impact. The New Belgium brewing company, whose beer is sold all over the United States, has made a commitment to reduce its carbon footprint. True, it's a little more expensive than a Natty Light, but isn't it worth it to know that your good time is saving the environment?

Many liquor producers are also devising creative ways to minimize ecological damage. Maker's Mark bourbon recycles byproducts to generate renewable energy. TRU vodka not only uses organic products, 25 percent less glass than regular bottles and labels printed on corn fiber, but it also made a promise to plant a tree for every bottle sold. Your pre-game Bloody Mary just got so much more exciting, right?

Environmental awareness is about more than science and Al Gore. It also applies to one of (21 and up) college students' favorite pastimes. So for your next tailgate, think about what you're buying and, by all means, recycle your Solo cups.

EDITORIAL CARTOON By Mark Viser, mviser@email.unc.edu

EDITORIAL

No slap on the wrist

Response sent the right message to the NCAA, but questions remain for UNC.

s the University took care to note in a 111page response to the NCAA's allegations Monday, the athletic department's history is almost entirely scandalfree. But considering the gravity of the football team's violations, "almost" means nothing. The University showed an understanding of that point in answering the NCAA's allegations with hefty self-imposed punishment; however, there are questions left to answer.

In an appropriately apologetic response that stopped short of banning the football team from post-season play, the University offered the NCAA a play-by-play account of the violations committed by the football team. It proposed sanctions that would include three fewer scholarships for each of the next three seasons, a $50,000 fine and a twoyear probation. Those two years account for the seasons UNC fielded players who took improper benefits. With the University offering to vacate its wins from those years, the selfishness of those few players has now cost the 2008 and 2009 teams any formal recognition of their accomplishments.

As the NCAA considers the response and devises a final punishment, the University will be waiting with bated breath to see whether it's permitted to partake in postseason bowl games anytime in coming years. Until then, the question of bowl game eligibility should come a distant second to more pressing questions.

First among them is the investigation, or lack thereof, into the former UNC tutor and mentor in question, Jennifer Wiley. In April 2010, nearly nine months after it opted not to renew her contract, the University received an anonymous tip naming Wiley as a purveyor of improper academic assistance. An investigation launched by athletic director Dick Baddour led to the questioning of a player on three separate occasions but no clear conclusions. The player denied any wrongdoing in each round of questioning — and the case $\,$ was dropped without so much as a single meeting with Wiley.

Not until the day after Wiley aid $1,789 worth of park ing tickets in August did the University bother to begin attempts to interview her. And officials said the University didn't know about parking tickets until November.

In a Monday teleconference, Baddour said the anonymous nature of the tip hampered the investigation, as did the tip's prioritization of extra benefits over academic help.

No matter how much or little it mentioned improper academic assistance, the tip deserved a full investigation. Instead, the investigation fizzled with the denials of the player in question and Baddour said, "we couldn't do anymore with it." Baddour gave no explanation why an earlier interview couldn't have been that something more, or whether the timing of the University's long overdue interest in her was a mere coincidence.

Those explanations are owed to the community and the NCAA as it reviews UNC's response and comes up with the last word. Even after vacating its victories, that word could include a ban on bowl games for one or more of the coming years. There's certainly a case for such a ban — but the NCAA should consider the University's cooperation, concessions and reforms before dealing the team a blow that current and future players did nothing to deserve.

The reforms include an abandonment of the academic mentor program, increased funding for hiring and retaining tutors and expanding com pliance education for tutors, along additional constraints to student athletes and their tutors or learning assistants. Constraints prohibiting tutors from communicating with student athletes outside of their academic time might prove difficult to enforce, but they do set a clearer standard for what is expected of tutors and athletes.

UNC has dutifully moved to set a higher standard amid the investigation. But to make a compelling case to the NCAA and its followers, lingering questions need answering.

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"Rotting in the center has made it difficult to determine the exact age but it is likely that the tree was planted at the same time as New West."

Tom Bythell, UNC forest manager, on the tree removed from North Campus

FEATURED ONLINE READER COMMENT

"Look back at the bands that used to headline Jubilee and ask yourself if The New Pornographers belong even to be mentioned in the same galaxy, let alone the same breath as bands booked at UNC. The CUAB needs to return to earth/relevance."

come on, on the selection of The New Pornographers for Homecoming

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

False accusations led to loss of emailing rights

TO THE EDITOR:

I wish to respond to The Daily Tar Heel's excellent article about me. I never "involved the UNC network in a personal dispute."

I briefly corresponded on University email with a socalled animal activist who wrote many University officials with false claims about my association with a local nonprofit animal welfare association, FOCAS.

Two months later, after accessing my personal emails, the University's general counsel, Leslie Strohm, repeated Joseph Villarosa's false accusations, threatening to disable my IT account.

I immediately responded, copying the chancellor, but received no reply. Two months later, following hundreds of emails from Villarosa to University officials, Strohm wrote me saying "please remove - immediately - from any University resources any links to material referencing Mr. Villarosa, either directly or indirectly ... I believe you now use private email accounts to continue your disputes with others. And, I acknowledge that the website you maintain on University resources is clean on its face. It is the links that continue to be problematic."

The same day she wrote Villarosa saying, "This is not a University matter."

I did remove the link but asked for a retraction of her earlier false claims and an apology. In retaliation, the chancellor had my email and website disabled in violation of my First Amendment rights.

I believe that all students and faculty should be concerned about this invasion of privacy and retaliation for speech.

A summary of my correspondence may be found on http://tinyurl.com/cramerA1 with full documentation on http://tinyurl.com/cramerA2.

> Elliot M. Cramer Professor Emeritus Psychology Department

9/11 issue helped us all remember the tragedy

TO THE EDITOR:

I really enjoyed reading your article on Sept. 11. It helped me reflect on what I was doing and my feelings on that dreadful day.

Just like many others, I still remember exactly where I was and what I was doing. I also liked the fact that you used Alana Austin and Ashley Robinson's stories in your article. It was nice getting a feel for what other students thought about this day. Living in North Carolina during 2001 would probably have been very different from living in New York during 2001, and that's why I'm glad you expressed their views.

I believe that we, the people of the United States, have to keep patriotism for our country. Your article truly helped remind people about the terrorist attacks and to renew and instill a sense of love, pride and respect for our country.

I love how you wrote about Sept. 11 in the newspaper. I believe that this continual reflection and remembrance should never cease. Every year in early September, I hope that our country still talks about what happened in 2001 and remembers the tragic event.

> Hannah Randles FreshmanUndecided

Consider consequences of Carolina North

TO THE EDITOR:

More than 222 years ago, a committee of six men lobbied to create the first state university in a budding nation. Legend has it that under the canopy of a Tulip Poplar tree near the center of New Hope Chapel that William Richardson Davie picked this spot to build. The course of history has proved them correct.

Some 10 years ago, a selfelected Board of Governors met around a dead piece of wood to plan the future of Carolina North. This does not evoke nearly a quarter century of world class.

I hope this letter finds a voice. Î plea that these words evoke discussion about how we build in the woods of Carolina North. In a few short weeks a 40-to-60-foot wide swath of naked earth will scar Carolina North from one end to the other.

I believe as a community ze can achieve far better plan than slash, dig and replant. We should be more concerned about the initial impact and not sustaining the collateral damages.

> Harold K. Hill Housing Support

DPS inappropriately patted itself on the back

TO THE EDITOR: The Department of Public

Safety's attempt to redeem its shoddy reputation should not be made at the expense of a UNC student's livelihood. Just last year, the DPS failed to alert the campus of an armed robbery in Morrison, though now it has erred on a larger account in revealing the name, age and charges of a UNC student in a University-wide email without even entertaining the notion of this student's innocence. The line, "The identification of the suspect was a direct result of the Alert Carolina 'Informational Message' sent to the campus community yesterday," smacks of an attention-starved toddler vying for the acknowledgment of his otherwise occupied parents. While the DPS can now proudly receive a gold star, pat itself on the back for a job well done, and shuffle off into obscurity, the accused student in question can only wait in unwarranted infamy for the "All Clear" sirens to sound.

> Adriana Pollak Sophomore Environmental Science

SPEAK OUT

WRITING GUIDELINES

- Please type: Handwritten letters will not be accepted.
- · Sign and date: No more than two people should sign letters. • Students: Include your year, major and phone number.
- Faculty/staff: Include your department and phone number. • Edit: The DTH edits for space, clarity, accuracy and vulgarity. Limit letters
- to 250 words.

SUBMISSION

• Drop-off: at our office at 151 E. Rosemary St. • Email: opinion@dailytarheel.com

EDITOR'S NOTE: Columns, cartoons and letters do not necessarily represent the opinions of The Daily Tar Heel or its staff. Editorials reflect the opinions of The Daily Tar Heel editorial board. The board consists of five board members, the associate opinion editor, the opinion editor and the editor.

EDITORIAL

Faculty need more

Recent rankings show UNC needs to do more for faculty in trying times.

NC needs to do more to ensure it is creating a supportive and enriching environment for faculty success and retention, or it risks losing its status as a premier public institution. After two years of plunging in the faculty resource rankings, from 35th to 59th, it's time for the University administration

Last week, U.S. News and World Report released its rankings report of national universities. While UNC saw its overall ranking increase by one, to 29th, it saw its ranking for faculty resources fall 12 spots. This decline comes on the heels of last year's ranking, which also saw UNC drop 12 spots from 35th to 47th. Why? Faculty retention and class size are two of the biggest reasons.

As the University has had to absorb significant budget cuts in the past two years, faculty compensation and smaller courses have suffered significantly. These factors account for 65 percent of UNC's score in the rankings and now are at levels that threaten UNC's ability to remain competitive for both top faculty and students. And the outlook for improvement in the near term remains bleak.

Faculty retention for a public institution is difficult even during the best of times, but the recent economic downturn has hit UNC's ability to retain top faculty particularly hard. Last year, only 37 percent of faculty considering offers at other institutions chose to stay at UNC. These failing results come despite the aid of a $10 million dollar fund established to help UNC retain top faculty, which is now near empty. This brain-drain of more than 70 of the University's best and brightest is likely to take millions of dollars and years, if not decades, to repair.

University administrators should take a holistic view of UNC's faculty resources, identify key weaknesses, and look for innovative and cost-effective ways to make the University more attractive to faculty, as budgets are likely to keep faculty compensation tight in the near term. On the same token, faculty members wishing to stay at UNC must be understanding of the University's position and stop attempting to game the system's reserve funds for incremental raises.

While unfortunate, these declines are not entirely unexpected and are highly correlated to the impact of state budget cuts on public universities operating budgets in the past two years. During this period, the College of William and Mary, University of California-Berkeley, Michigan and Illinois have also seen their ranking drop compared to private institutions, but UNC seems to be one of the most severely affected.

Chancellor Holden Thorp and Executive Vice Chancellor and Provost Bruce Carney have largely succeeded in protecting UNC's academic core during these challenging times, making tough choices. But if something is not done to protect the world-class faculty and small classroom settings that define a UNC education shortly, we risk losing the things that give UNC its distinct identity.