

Be thankful we stick to towing

From staff and wire reports

Frustrated with the seeming overabundance of towing and parking tickets on Franklin Street? It could be worse. You could live in St. Gallen, Switzerland.

A disgruntled construction worker, fed up with drivers parking near his building site, put his skills with a bulldozer to good use by delicately removing a vehicle blocking the entrance to the site. The worker, Ralf Scherrer, lifted the offending vehicle with the bulldozer's digger arm and managed to squeeze the car into a tiny parking space away from the building site without damaging it.

NOTED. Police in southwest Ohio recently transitioned from traditional Taser stun guns to the "Swiss army knife of non-lethal weapons."

The Colerain Township Police Department is now using new Mark 63 Trident weapons, which can be used as a stun gun, baton and blinding strobe light and also shoot pepper spray. Don't taze me, bro. Oh wait, you can't.

QUOTED. "We were having fun, it was a harbor cruise!"

— Sloane Briles, 35, after he threw his 7-year-old son into a crowded harbor in Newport Beach, Calif. Briles allegedly hit his son several times to make him stop crying, before throwing the child into the harbor. He has been charged with felony child endangerment.
