For the past four decades, the American Civil Liberties Union of North Carolina Legal Foundation (ACLU-NCLF) has had the pleasure of recognizing local exemplary civil rights leaders at our annual Frank Porter Graham Awards Ceremony. We are particularly honored to have the newly elected President of the national ACLU, Professor Susan N. Herman, as our keynote speaker on this special anniversary.

Professor Herman is widely regarded as an expert on the U.S. Supreme Court, particularly in the areas of criminal procedure and constitutional law. She is a 20-year veteran of the ACLU’s National Board of Directors and the author of numerous articles on civil liberties issues and two books, including her latest, The Sixth Amendment Right to Speedy and Public Trial, part of the Praeger Press series on the Constitution. As a Centennial Professor of Law at Brooklyn Law School, Herman offers her seminar, Terrorism and Civil Liberties, which is an outgrowth of her interest in post-9/11 constitutional issues. She regularly speaks to judges and lawyers around the country on behalf of the Federal Judicial Center, bar associations and CLE providers; has written amicus briefs for U.S. Supreme Court cases on criminal procedure and constitutional law; is often quoted in the media on important Supreme Court cases; and has regularly appeared as a commentator on NBC News, MSNBC and NPR.

The Board of Directors of the ACLU-NCLF is also honored to recognize three outstanding individuals selected to receive this year’s awards. The Frank Porter Graham Award, which is given to honor a lifetime of distinguished service in defense of civil liberties, will be presented this year to Bertha “B” Holt. Born in Eufaula, Alabama, Holt attended Agnes Scott College, where she received her AB degree and, in 2007, a Doctor of Law, honoris causa. After two years at the University of North Carolina (UNC) Law School, Holt also received a LLB degree from University of Alabama Law School. She married W. Clary Holt (deceased), and they had three children, six grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Holt served in the North Carolina House of Representatives from 1975 until 1994 where she was involved in work to improve the lives of women, children and families. As a member of the delegation to the Fourth United Nations Conference on Women in Beijing, she learned the need to act globally. As the first woman to be elected to the vestry of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Comforter and the first woman elected to the Bishop’s Standing Committee, she added a unique dimension to legislative action and was awarded the Faith Active in Public Affairs Award by the North Carolina Council of Churches. For her lifetime of activism, fighting for women’s rights, reproductive freedom, religious liberty, racial justice, the basic human rights of immigrants to fair treatment and due process under law and other treasured civil liberties guaranteed by the Bill of Rights, we are proud to honor B Holt with this year’s Frank Porter Graham Award.

This year’s Paul Green Award

recipient is Rev. Dr. William J. Barber, II. This award, presented jointly by the Paul Green Foundation and the ACLU-NCLF, is given to an individual or organization dedicated to abolishing the death penalty in North Carolina. As President of the North Carolina NAACP, Barber has been a leader in anti-death penalty work.

The son of Eleanor P. Barber and the late Rev. Dr. William J. Barber Sr., Barber graduated cum laude from North Carolina Central University in Durham with a BA degree and received his Master of Divinity degree from Duke University and doctoral degree from Drew University in Madison, NJ. In 1989, Barber was ordained by the North Carolina region of the Christian Church.

As President of the North Carolina NAACP, Barber has participated in and led a variety of anti-death penalty efforts. As a leader in the effort to push the state legislature to pass a moratorium on capital punishment and to adopt criminal justice reforms such as the Racial Justice Act, he has ensured that abolition of the death penalty is a top priority on the HK on J agenda, has spoken at numerous rallies, protests and press conferences and has been a staunch advocate for clemency and for overturning death sentences in specific cases.

Barber has won numerous awards, including an Honorary Doctorate of Divinity and the Juanita Jackson Mitchell, Esq. Award for legal activism. We are honored to present Rev. Barber with the Paul Green Award.

The Norman Smith Award, presented by the ACLU-NC Board of Directors to someone who has volunteered extraordinary time and effort in service to the ACLU-NC and its Legal Foundation, will be presented to Shirley Andersen. Andersen has devoted countless hours in her 21 years of service to the ACLU-NC. In a variety of roles, including fulltime paralegal, Wake County Chapter Board member and historian, state affiliate Board member, and Treasurer to the ACLU-NC Board of Directors, Andersen has shown unflagging support for the ACLU and its defense of civil liberties. She has also been a fundraiser and event planner for the Wake County Chapter, assisting with the Chapter’s annual Finlator Awards Dinner. A grassroots activist at heart, Andersen tells us her favorite role has been disseminating ACLU literature and other civil rights information at civic events. We celebrate Andersen’s dedication and are delighted to present her with this year’s Norman Smith Award.

The 40th Annual Frank Porter Graham Awards Ceremony will take place on Saturday, February 7, 2009, at Bay 7 on the American Tobacco Campus in downtown Durham. Cocktails, hors d’oeuvres and live jazz music will begin at 5:00 PM, and the awards ceremony will begin at 6:45 PM. We would like to take this opportunity to extend a special thank you to Replace- ments, Ltd., for once again sponsoring the Frank Porter Graham Awards Ceremony.

A new year generally brings new hope, and we are hopeful that in 2009 there will be fewer incidents to add to the Wall of Shame featured in our newsletters. But rounding out 2008 on the Wall was a no-brainer: our newest members are Alamance County Sheriff Terry Johnson and the North Carolina Sheriffs’ Association.

A year ago, the North Carolina Sheriffs’ Association (NCSA) presented its plan for immigration enforcement to the state legislature in order to request additional funding to expand North Carolina’s number of local immigration enforcement agreements with the federal government. When the ACLU-NC and others raised questions about evidence of and the potential for racial profiling through these programs, the NCSA responded by emphasizing that immigration enforcement was only conducted in jails by detention officers, and therefore only people who were arrested for other offenses were being processed.

The NCSA returned in March 2008 and again this past November to reiterate the nonexistence of immigration enforcement in the field by sheriffs’ officers. And in Alamance County, the county with the highest number of reported problems with implementation of the 287(g) immigration enforcement program, Sheriff Johnson proclaimed likewise. He stressed that his 287(g) detention officers would target only people who were arrested by officers in unrelated matters, such as violent felonies.

The problem? It just wasn’t true. In December 2008, two ACLU-NC staff attorneys and several members of Fairness Alamance, a grassroots community organization in Alamance County, participated in a question-and-answer session with Sheriff Johnson during a tour of the Alamance County Jail. During this discussion, Sheriff Johnson informed the group that he did, in fact, employ an officer on an Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) Task Force. This officer was continuing his duties as an employee of the Sheriffs’ Office but was trained to enforce immigration law and was authorized to detain someone purely on an immigration violation without any other offense being committed. The contract regarding this non-287(g) role actually allows for any number of sheriffs’ officers to be assigned to ICE in “joint operations,” and was signed in early July 2008, giving the NCSA ample time to correct itself before the state legislature and the public. But such a correction was never made, and the NCSA and Sheriff Johnson continue to claim that people processed for deportation are “self-selecting” by being arrested for other offenses (such as traffic violations). For now, the reimbursement contract for this field officer program has been “put on hold by ICE,” according to Sheriff Johnson. But the work may continue without reimbursement—and we will remain vigilant in monitoring this situation and holding law enforcement accountable.

So, this quarter, the Wall of Shame dishonor goes to Sheriff Johnson and the North Carolina Sheriffs’ Association for obfuscating the true character of immigration enforcement in Alamance County to elected officials and to the general public.

Fellowship Opportunity: Immigrants’ Rights Fellow

The ACLU-NCLF seeks applicants for an intensive one-year full-time research fellowship in our office in Raleigh. The Immigrants’ Rights Fellow will coordinate and perform research and analysis of arrests in several counties in North Carolina, gathering data on items such as the frequency of arrests and other law enforcement encounters for certain offenses and the race and ethnicity of those arrested, information that must be noted by officers pursuant to North Carolina law. The Fellow will produce a comprehensive analysis of the resulting information, exposing possible constitutional and legal violations for potential use in the ACLU’s education, advocacy, litigation and legislative programs. Please note that no legal training or background in law is necessary. We are looking for someone with graduate-level training or equivalent experience in statistical analysis and research.

For complete list of job duties and qualifications, compensation, and instructions on how to apply, go to http://www.acluofnorthcarolina.org/?q=node/55

Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis until the position is filled. The ACLU-NCLF is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. We encourage applications from all interested persons, including women, people of color, persons with disabilities and LGBT persons.
Spring 2009 Board Elections Are Just Around the Corner — Nominating Committee Invites ACLU-NC Members to Suggest Candidates for ACLU-NC Board of Directors

The ACLU-NC’s Nominating Committee invites our members to suggest people who would be hardworking, committed members of the ACLU-NC and ACLU-NC Legal Foundation Boards of Directors. Board members serve three-year terms and are expected to attend quarterly Board meetings, actively serve on committees, and support the organization financially both by giving a contribution themselves and by soliciting contributions from other donors. For more information or to suggest a potential nominee, contact ACLU-NC Executive Director Jennifer Rudinger at (919) 834-3466 or aclunced@nc.rr.com. We’d especially love to receive nominations of people who live outside the Triangle or Triad or who can add diversity to our Board in terms of race, religion, sexual orientation, disability, ethnicity, gender, age or other characteristics.

In addition, the ACLU-NC bylaws allow members in good standing to seek election by petition rather than by nomination. The deadline for submission of petitions to run for the Board is Friday, February 20, 2009, at 5:00 PM. The bylaws of the ACLU of North Carolina state as follows:

Nomination by Petition. Each year, in sufficient time to use this process, the membership shall be notified that additional nominations may be made by petition of twenty-five (25) or more members. These petitions may be sent to the organization by mail or delivered to the office of the ACLU of North Carolina in person, no less than thirty (30) days prior to any election.

Nominating Process. At least thirty (30) days before the Annual Meeting, the Nominating Committee shall report to the Board the names it proposes along with a brief biographical statement about each candidate. If nominating petitions have been received, it shall also report these names. Upon receiving the recommendation of the Nominating Committee, and any list of additional nominees, as appropriate, the President of the Board shall cause ballots to be printed and mailed, along with biographical statements supporting each nominee, to the members of the ACLU of North Carolina, at least four weeks prior to the date set for the annual members’ meeting. The seven (7) nominees who receive the highest number of votes shall be certified by the Board.
ACLU of North Carolina Legal Foundation Applauds Settlement in “Dirty Dancing” Lawsuit Against the Town of Marshall: In November 2008, the American Civil Liberties Union of North Carolina Legal Foundation (ACLU-NCLF) applauded the successful settlement of a six-year-old lawsuit against the Town of Marshall, NC, for unfairly imposing a lifetime ban on Rebecca Willis, prohibiting her from dancing at the Town Depot, the public music hall in Marshall. The case, Willis v. Town of Marshall, has been nicknamed the “Dirty Dancing” case because Mrs. Willis was banned for life from dancing at the Town Depot due to disapproval of her style of dancing and/or dress by members of the Town and its Depot Committee.

The settlement came in the wake of a Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals decision in Mrs. Willis’ favor this Spring, finding that “a reasonable jury could conclude that the Town’s actions, rather than being guided by concern for the public welfare, were actually motivated by a conscious desire to single her out for undeserved punishment” and denying the Town’s request to have the case dismissed.

Attorneys for Rebecca Willis were: Jon Sasser and Tom Segars with the law firm of Ellis & Winters in Raleigh; Marc Tucker with the law firm of Smith Moore Leatherwood LLP in Raleigh; and Katherine Lewis Parker, Legal Director for the ACLU-NCLF.

ACLU-NCLF Scores Win for Street Musicians Banned in Wilmington: Last summer, we were contacted by an individual who was ticketed for playing his saxophone on a public sidewalk for money in downtown Wilmington. Officers cited Peter Barbeau for violating Wilmington’s solicitations ordinance. Barbeau was playing his saxophone while standing on a public sidewalk in downtown Wilmington, at the corner of Front and Market Streets. While Barbeau was playing, he invited donations by placing his saxophone case open on the sidewalk in front of him. A Wilmington police officer approached Barbeau and told him that he was violating Wilmington ordinance 6-16, which prohibits “[b]egging, soliciting alms, contributions, goods, or services by intimidation . . .” in the Central Business District of Wilmington. Other musicians have also been cited under this Ordinance.

Mr. Barbeau was incredulous at being ticketed for his craft. He has a degree in jazz composition and arrangement from the prestigious Berklee College of Music and has had a long career as a performer and composer. When he moved to Wilmington in March 2008, he thought he’d try his hand at the ancient craft of “busking” – performing for money in a public space. When he arrived in Wilmington, he wondered at the noticeable lack of street performers on city streets. He soon learned the reason for this.

In the Spring of 2006, the City Council in Wilmington reportedly modified its code of ordinances on begging or soliciting alms in a public space. The original ordinance, passed in May 1996, prohibited aggressive and intimidating begging throughout the city – a prohibition that has been upheld as constitutional in various courts around the country. However, the 2006 revision of the ordinance imposed a total ban on soliciting in three city districts: Central Business, Historic and Orange County Sheriff’s deputies ejected a group of homeless persons, including Barbara Sims and her husband, Paul “Taz” Herbert, from land at the intersection of I-40 and Martin Luther King Blvd. in Chapel Hill. After Sims and Herbert saw their belongings confiscated and destroyed by deputies as part of the incident, they contacted the ACLU–NCLF for help. Tragically, Barbara Sims was killed on May 17, 2008, after being hit by a car while crossing a street in Chapel Hill. Sims and Herbert were nearing settlement with Orange County at the time of Sims’s death, working with their attorneys to negotiate an agreement that will include a new Orange County Sheriff’s Office policy regarding treatment of homeless people. As part of the new policy, deputies will be required to provide adequate notice to homeless individuals before their personal property is confiscated. The policy also ensures that homeless persons will have notice and adequate due process before any confiscated property is destroyed. The ACLU-NCLF was successful in negotiating the implementation of this new policy and also secured reimbursement to Mr. Herbert in the amount of $500.00 for items confiscated by the deputies.

ACLU-NCLF Participates in Amicus Brief that Convinces Court of Appeals to Raise Concerns About the Constitutionality of Durham Public Schools’ Gang Policy: In the Spring of 2007, the ACLU-NCLF joined other education coalition partners in filing an amicus brief in a case related to the implementation of a gang policy in Durham Public Schools. A lawsuit filed by attorney Patti Solari alleged that several children were suspended based on a vague gang policy implemented by the Durham County School District. The lower court granted the defendant school officials’ motion to dismiss the complaint.

The amicus brief related specifically to two issues: (1) the vagueness of the Durham County Schools’ gang policy; and (2) the lack of procedural due process provided to one of the suspended students. The amicus brief was filed on March 30, 2007. The Court of Appeals issued its decision on October 21, 2008, and most notably reversed dismissal of the gang policy question, seemingly taking its analysis directly from our amicus brief. The ACLU-NCLF and our coalition partners consider this a huge success for our efforts to combat the school-to-prison pipeline problem in Durham County Public Schools!

North Carolina Advocates for Justice Publishes Article on 287(g) Programs by Legal Director Katy Parker:

The ACLU-NCLF continues to investigate a growing phenomenon in North Carolina, whereby local sheriffs are contracting with U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE). To date, Alamance, Cabarrus, Cumberland, Gaston, Henderson, Mecklenburg and Wake Counties, as well as the City of Durham, have entered into Memoranda of Agreement (MOA’s) with ICE, so that certain deputies can be trained to act as federal immigration agents. The ACLU-NCLF is working with our coalition partners to determine the constitutionality and propriety of these measures. Ms. Parker’s article on 287(g) was published in the October edition of the North Carolina Advocates for Justice’s Trial Briefs magazine.
The Wake County Chapter of the ACLU-NC is extremely pleased to introduce the following three new board members: Michelle R. Kaufman, who holds a Ph.D. in Social Psychology from the University of Connecticut, is a researcher who is primarily interested in sexually transmitted infection (STI) and HIV prevention for underserved populations, particularly women of color and women in the developing world. She approaches her research, which includes projects in South Africa and Nepal, from a human rights perspective. Stephanie D. Kien, who holds an M.A. in Comparative Religion from Miami University, specializes in Islamic Studies and Gender Studies. She spent this past summer at the University of Jordan to study the Arabic language and culture. The previous Spring, she presented a paper entitled Contested Identities in Postcolonial India: Islamic Feminism and the Debates over Family Law Reforms at the Miami University English Graduate and Adjunct Association’s Symposium. As the third new board member, we welcome Matthew Quinn, who will receive his J.D. from Campbell University’s Norman Adrian Wiggins School of Law in May 2009 and serves as editor-in-chief of the Campbell Law Review. He recently placed as the Third Best Oralist in the National Civil Rights Moot Court Competition. In preparation for life after law school, he clerked at the Law Offices of F. Bryan Brice, Jr. Welcome Michelle, Stephanie and Matthew!

In addition, the Wake County Chapter of the ACLU-NC celebrated its W.W. Finlator Award Dinner on the evening of November 13th with its largest group of guests ever – about 170 people in attendance! Jack Boger, Dean of the UNC School of Law, delivered a keynote address titled “Recovering Our Balances: Of Power and Liberty in a New Administration.” It was a truly inspiring speech. This year’s recipients of the Finlator Award were Clay Stalnaker and Rob Schofield, and NC Stop Torture Now received the Wake County ACLU Civil Liberties Award. Several past recipients of the W.W. Finlator Award were also in attendance, as were several members of the ACLU-NC staff.

We are proud to announce that Shirley Andersen, nominated by our very own Wake County Chapter, will receive the Norman Smith Award at the 40th Annual Frank Porter Graham Awards Dinner on February 7, 2009. Please come and help us celebrate Shirley’s dedicated service to the ACLU of North Carolina and the Wake County Chapter of the ACLU!

Last, but not least, we will hold our Annual Meeting during the second week of March (keep an eye and ear open for details TBA at a later date).

Carolina Law ACLU Chapter Update

The Carolina Law chapter welcomed about 20 new members this Fall and hosted a highly successful fundraising event: a non-partisan Election Gala, which raised more than $1,000! That money will be directed toward grants for Carolina Law students pursuing nonprofit Summer legal work.

Continuing with the election theme, many of our members also volunteered their time with various election monitoring groups to ensure fair access to the polls. This Spring, the chapter plans to involve Carolina Law students in legal research volunteer work.
Please Support the ACLU of North Carolina Legal Foundation By Making a Tax-Deductible Contribution Today!

Friends, we need your help! We see many challenges to American’s fundamental freedoms looming in the courts, in Congress, in the halls of the North Carolina General Assembly, and in city councils, school boards, and boards of county commissioners across the state. As you evaluate your budget and think about your year-end charitable contributions for 2008, please put the ACLU-NCLF at the top of your list. The demand for our services has never been greater. Our legal program now processes anywhere from 200-250 requests for assistance per month!

The American Civil Liberties Union of North Carolina is a non-profit, nonpartisan organization dedicated to the preservation of civil liberties and constitutional freedoms. Since 1965, the ACLU-NC has fought for the rights of all North Carolinians and improved their quality of life.

LEGAL PROGRAM
The legal program has been our most successful avenue for protecting and enhancing the constitutional rights and civil liberties of North Carolinians. Of the thousands of requests for assistance received each year, we litigate and provide amicus curiae assistance (friend of the court briefs) in approx. 15-20 cases. We respond to every request we receive, and in non-civil liberties matters, try to make appropriate referrals. Our current docket includes recently settled and ongoing cases on Freedom of Speech/Religious Liberty, Privacy Rights/Right to Travel, Disability Rights, Equal Protection, Right to Trial, Search and Seizure, Voting Rights and the Right to a Sound, Basic Education. For detailed docket information visit www.acluofnorthcarolina.org.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM
We provide a constant reminder to our legislators that our civil liberties should not be compromised by legislative jockeying and political posturing. The ACLU-NC’s full-time lobbyist is a permanent presence at the North Carolina General Assembly and influences public policy debates and legislation that involve civil liberties issues. We invite you to join our legislative work. Visit our web site at www.acluofnorthcarolina.org to receive legislative “Action Alerts.”

PUBLIC EDUCATION OUTREACH PROGRAM
Through our website, literature, speaking engagements, public forums, visits to schools and universities, press interviews and television and radio appearances, we educate North Carolinians about their rights. Only when each person is informed of his/her rights can we achieve the ideals set forth in the Constitution. In 2006, we introduced new innovative outreach programs focusing on the Muslim/Middle Eastern Community, Racial Justice and Reproductive Health. For a complete list of publications and upcoming events, visit www.acluofnorthcarolina.org.

JOIN TODAY!
Your dues include memberships for the national ACLU, ACLU of North Carolina, and your local chapter if one exists in your region.
